Nine Bodies Taken From Wreckage Of Boston Building and Search Continues

CRIES OF VICTIMS HEARD AS RESCUERS DUG IN RUINS OF STRUCTURE IN BOSTON

Five-story Building Collapsed While More Than 100 Persons Were Dancing on Second Floor; Known Deathlist of Nine is Expected to be Added to Greatly

Boston, July 4.—Nine persons were known to have been killed and probably a great many more lost their lives when a wall of the Pickwick Club, a well-known night Chinatown resort, collapsed during a "Night Before the Fourth" dance early to-day.

Eighteen persons were taken to hospitals after they had been removed from the wreckage. Some of them were not expected to live. Police and firemen believed many more bodies would be found in the debris, although hope was held out that some of the victims would be alive.

Voices, mostly of women, that were heard calling from beneath the wreckage during the early hours became silent later. More than 100 persons were in club at the time and many others persons had been turned away just before the crash. Many, however, were believed to have escaped unharmed through windows in the walls that did not fall.

Estimates of the number buried beneath the wreckage varied from thirty to more than 100.

Not all of the dead bodies had been removed from the debris early this afternoon and after three had been taken out it was decided to abandon this work until hazards that made the work precarious had been removed.

After lying planned beneath pieces of metal roofing and heavy joists for nearly nine hours, Mrs. Edith Jordan of Somerville, Mass., was rescued by firemen about noon. She had talked to them and had been given water through a rubber tube. She had scarcely reached the hospital, however, and asked to see her husband, who had escaped from the building when the crash occurred, when she died.

BODIES UNIDENTIFIED
She was the ninth person known to have been killed. The other two bodies identified were those of an unidentified girl and an unidentified man.

Firemen had concentrated their efforts on saving Mrs. Jordan. She was the only person known to be alive in the wreckage. The building of the Pickwick Club on an all-night dancing resort on Beach Street, was formerly the Dreyf Hotel, in the South End of Boston.

RELATIVES THERE
Friends and relatives of persons who were away from home last night and did not return crowded about the police lines to-day, many of them striving vainly to push through the guards and assist in the rescue work.

The dancers in the collapse were on the second floor of the five-story building that once was the Dreyf Hotel, well-known meeting place of the sporting and theatrical fraternity. On the second floor of an adjoining building to-day at luncheon time an orchestra blared forth jazz music, while others danced alongside the scene of the disaster.

The crowd about the ruins boomed and the police ordered the music stopped.

WALL PULLED DOWN
Shortly before 1.30 p.m. to-day the front wall of the building was pulled down. With this hazard removed, firemen and crews proceeded to dig into the ruins from the top.

Previously they had attempted to reach the victims through a tunnel to the basement, starting from an excavation in a vacant lot adjoining one of the walls that fell.

This excavation work was believed partly responsible for the crash. The rescue work continued slowly as firemen dug into the tangled debris. There was a flurry of excitement when it was reported a woman's cry had been heard.

District Attorney O'Brien said a grand jury investigation into the cause of the disaster would be ordered. (Continued on page 2)

CHINAMAN IS SENTENCED TO PRISON TERM

Eighteen Months' Imprisonment and Fine of $1,000 Imposed on Wong Kog Kow

A Second Accused Remanded For Trial Tuesday. Following Cook Street Raid

The maximum penalty upon summary conviction of illegal possession of opium was imposed upon Wong Kog Kow, otherwise known as Wong Wa, by Magistrate Jay in city police court to-day.

Stating that he believed the evidence given by the chief witness for the Crown, Benjamin Hanson, secretary of the Transport Workers' Association, Magistrate Jay remarked that a conviction must follow. It was not a case for the lightest penalty owing to the large amount of the drug involved, sixty cans of opium figuring in the transaction of which Hanson told. The accused would be sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $1,000, with a further six months' imprisonment if the fine be not paid, ruled the court.

Given an opportunity of speaking on behalf of the accused before sentence was passed M. B. Jackson, K.C., averred that Wong Wa was one of the few of which he had been convicted only aggravated the offence, returned the court.

Application for bail will be taken, stated Stuart Henderson, associated with M. B. Jackson, K.C., and J. W. de B. Farris, K.C., for the defence. An appeal will be taken, it is understood.

Wong Sun, charged with illegal possession of opium arising out of the same raid made by customs and police officers on premises on Cook Street, will be tried on Tuesday, the delay being granted at the request of the defence to-day.

Ottawa Dispatch Contains News That Efforts to Make Victoria Grain Port Have Finally Been Crowned With Success; National Railways Will Also Spend $50,000 Immediately in Preparation for $1,000,000 Grain Elevator Here.

Special Dispatch to The Times

Ottawa, July 4.—J. A. Mooney of Regina, president of the Panama Pacific Grain Terminals Limited, has completed negotiations with the Dominion Government for the lease of a portion of one of the piers at Ogden Point, Victoria for the erection and operation by his company of a grain elevator with a capacity of 1,000,000 bushels at a cost of over $1,000,000. Mr. Mooney has been here for some weeks following conferences on the subject a short time ago between representatives of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Hon. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works, Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways and officials of the Canadian National Railways.

ON HIS WAY WEST

The conditions of the lease were arranged by Dr. King, prior to his departure for London.

The final details now being settled Mr. Mooney is en route West to conclude arrangements for the projected elevator, work on which it is expected will be begun this year.

The foregoing announcement from Ottawa is the outcome of negotiations conducted with the Hon. J. H. King on behalf of the Dominion Government by a deputation from Victoria early in May.

FAVORABLE DATA

Last Spring Mr. J. A. Mooney of Regina visited Victoria in the course of investigations of elevator sites on behalf of a company then in process of organization on the prairies, which desired to erect a terminal elevator. A number of sites on the Lower Mainland were inspected by Mr. Mooney, who decided, however, before returning to Regina to see what Southern Vancouver Island had to offer. Visiting the Chamber of Commerce his interest was aroused by the data furnished by the construction and operation at Victoria which was given to him by officials of that body.

He was particularly struck with the advantages offered by Victoria as a grain-shipping port, especially in regard to its situation as the first port of call of ocean-going vessels for both the Mainland of British Columbia and Puget Sound.

He was taken to the Ogden Point piers, and after a thorough investigation of the situation from all angles agreed to recommend to his associates construction and operation of an elevator of approximately 1,000,000 bushels at a cost of not less than $1,000,000.

ST. PETER'S IN ROME VISITED BY ROBBERS

Priceless Relics Taken From Cathedral by Thieves Who Cut Through a Ceiling

Rome, July 4.—The St. Peter's Agency says thieves stole several priceless relics from the treasury room of St. Peter's last night.

The thieves made an opening through the ceiling and entered the second treasury room of the cathedral by using a rope ladder. They carried away numerous objects, including St. Peter's ring set with a sapphire and a diamond, and a gold chalice (the receptacle in which the Host is kept) studded with diamonds and rubies. This was a gift from Archbishop of Orleans to the late Pope Pius II. The robbers also took a complete altar service of gold adorned with diamonds, pearls and other precious stones.

The authorities believe the thieves must have been familiar with the location and contents of the room because of the way in which they entered and because of their selection of the choicest articles. The crime apparently was carefully planned by experts.

The company has just received advice from Ottawa that an order-in-council has been passed by the Cabinet approving the granting of a long term lease of one of the Ogden Point piers at the outer docks, Victoria. The lease has been given at a nominal rental and provision has been made for any extensions in elevators which the company will require in its future operations.

BRITISH FOLLOWING DEBT DISCUSSIONS

London, July 4.—Great Britain's action in joggling the memories of her war debtors is treated by the press in a routine manner. It is taken for granted that the reminder was prompted by the recent debt-funding conversations in Washington, which the British Government followed closely, but it is contended that Great Britain has not the least idea of interfering in any arrangement of United States may reach with her other debtors.

Foreign Secretary Chamberlain's recent circular note to Great Britain's debtors referred more specifically to France than to the other debtors of this country. It is recalled, however, that France took the lead in the matter addressed to M. Clementel by the British Chancellor of the Exchequer last February other than to make formal acknowledgment of its receipt. Furthermore, so far as is known, nothing definite resulted from the view of the French experts to London to discuss the matter with British officials.

Dr. C. D. Carter has returned from the Dease Lake country, where he staked claims on Gold Pan Creek last fall, being among the first to go in upon news of a gold placer strike there being reported. Last February he went in again over the ice and has had crews sinking bedrock and prospecting for possible paystreaks. He found nothing to warrant him in retaining the ground, so abandoned it. However, he says, it is a big country, and a few failures will not deter the many prospectors now there or going in, from giving it a thorough combing for new placer deposits.

HEAVY EARTHQUAKE RECORDED IN U.S.

Georgetown Scientist Says it Was Great as Tokio One of 1923

Washington, July 4.—Examination of the seismograph at Georgetown University to-day disclosed the record of an earthquake of great intensity during the early morning hours centering at a considerable distance from Washington.

The shock began at 2.51 a.m. Eastern Standard Time and continued until 7 a.m., passing through its period of greatest intensity between 5.14 and 5.32 a.m. Although the distance from Washington manifestly was very great, Father Tendorf was unable to estimate or determine definitely the direction.

Tokio dispatches to-day told of an earthquake in the vicinity of Kobe, Japan, which may have been a part of the same shock recorded here.

Port Arthur, July 4.—F. C. Clombe, an employee of the paper mill camp at Pass Lake, thirty-eight miles East of here, was killed by a Canadian National passenger train yesterday morning as he was walking along the track.

RUINS OF BOSTON BUILDING SEARCHED FOR VICTIMS

One wall of the structure, weakened by an excavator on the adjoining property, went down, leaving three upper stories crashed down upon the second floor, where more than 100 men and girls were dancing, and carried that floor and the ground floor into the basement.

SCREAMS HEARD

The screams of those caught beneath the brick and wood could be heard by firemen and doctors as they tried their way through the wreckage.

From a hole about twenty feet in the basement of the building could be heard the cries of women. One fireman took out alive only after physicians had amputated two of his fingers in order to free him from his trap. He laughed and smoked a cigarette while they operated. The cries of a woman sent firemen to three other men, but they were unable to find the one who directed them.

A woman was heard screaming, but before she could be rescued, firemen said, it would be necessary to remove the body of another woman believed to be dead.

Fearful of using crowbars lest some hidden victim might be struck by them, the laborers worked carefully, jacking up timbers and removing the thousands of bricks with the utmost care. "There are six of us here," a woman called to the rescuers as they worked feverishly, her voice coming from beneath a great heap of bricks and there were three here," cried another woman.

DISASTER DURING DANCE

The wall of the building crashed suddenly as an orchestra was playing a dance selection. More than 100 guests were in the building for a night before the Fourth of July celebration. Many of them were believed to have made their way out safely, but there was no knowing how many had done so. The lowest estimates of the number buried in the wreckage were between thirty and fifty, while many held that at least seventy-five were imprisoned, either dead or alive.

LOUD RUMBLE

Survivors said the crash came with a rumble that resembled an earthquake. Merry-makers in the club had been setting off firecrackers in the early morning hours and for a moment the dancers thought a big-cracker had been exploded. They went on dancing. They were on the second floor of the building and in an instant the wall and the floor above them came crashing down, smashing the dance floor and the ground floor to the basement.

Firemen and doctors came by the score and until dawn searched the ruins with flashlights. An iron fire escape fell as the men labored and delayed their work for a time.

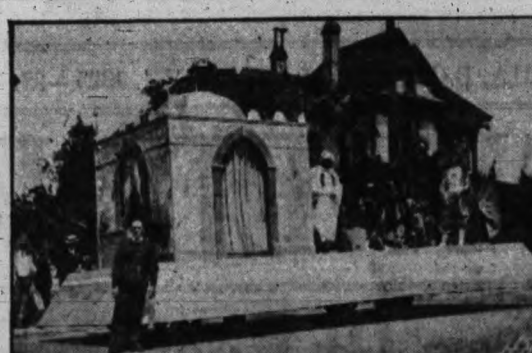

Internes from the City Hospital crawled beneath the ruins where they could, giving hypodermic in-

Knights of Khorassan float, winner of the first prize in the Victoria Crystal Garden Carnival in the section of fraternal, social and service clubs floats, was designed and built by voluntary services of the members of Tel El Mahuta Temple No. 155 of Victoria.

RECEIPTS TO SURVIVORS IN PAIN

Sections to survivors in pain who could not be released. A priest from St. James Church, just around the corner, gave absolution to the victims who were carried out.

LENGTHY TASK

Crews of wreckers and riggers arrived soon after daybreak to aid the firemen in clearing away the debris. Little hope was held out, however, of reaching all the victims before nightfall and it was thought likely the work would continue through most of tomorrow before all could be found.

The labor was considered extremely precarious as it was believed the front and rear walls of the building might fall at any time and thus delay for a much longer period the end of the search.

TOP FELL IN

The wall fell down, firemen said, but seemed to fold in the center and the top of it crashed to the inside of the building. The three upper floors were unoccupied.

MAN LEAPED GAP

A patrolman who has been on the roof of the building said there was a noise like an earthquake and three walls and then the roof went down. He jumped to an adjoining building and made his way to the street. He said there were 25 men and women dancing and drinking in the place when the collapse came. A man who was on the second floor when the crash came said there was a noise like an earthquake and three walls and then the roof went down. He jumped to an adjoining building and made his way to the street. He said there were 25 men and women dancing and drinking in the place when the collapse came.

DEATH OVERTAKES HOME

Elderly Woman Succumbs to Heart Failure at Institution

Found by an attendant who went to fetch a breakfast tray, the body of Mrs. Elizabeth Barnett, an eighty-four-year-old inmate of the Aged Women's Home, was discovered at 8 a.m. this morning in her room at the institution. The elderly woman had eaten breakfast in her room as usual, and succumbed suddenly while an attendant was absent from the room.

The late Mrs. Barnett was one of a party of elderly women to be taken by Joe North to the Air parade on Dominion Day. A son, J. Barnett, Dallas Road, survives in this city, while other relatives live at points in Eastern Canada. It is understood the remains are resting at the Thomson Funeral Home, and funeral arrangements will be announced later.

TOURIST TRADE TREND SHIFTING TO PACIFIC OCEAN

New York, July 4.—The volume of travel across the Pacific to the Orient, which has been increasing gradually each year since the war, promises to become one of the outstanding features of tourist traffic from the United States within the next several years, according to Thomas J. Kehoe, president of the New York for the American Oriental Mail Line.

Mr. Kehoe's prediction is based upon figures of the Bureau of Research of the Shipping Board showing that Seattle stands second to New York in the number of arrivals and departures of passengers during 1924, with eighteen per cent. of the total.

A second reason for the belief, said Mr. Kehoe, is our experience with Alaska. Ten years ago it was difficult to sell a round trip tourist ticket to Alaska, while now it is almost impossible to get a reservation less than five months in advance, during the summer.

There is every indication that the tourist trade to the Orient through Seattle is in the same process of development. I believe that in the next five years we shall see an enormous increase in this business. Since our company was established four years ago with Shipping Board lines, inaugurating a new standard for speed and service on the Pacific, the traffic has been advancing steadily. Many travelers are coming by ship to the great national parks of the West with journeys to the Orient.

than $1,000,000 subject to certain conditions. One of these was a lease of a portion of one of the Ogden Point piers sufficient for the purpose on reasonable terms; another condition was that there would be a sufficient number of cars available to meet peak load demand.

WENT TO OTTAWA

It was decided by the special elevator committee of the Chamber of Commerce to send a representative to Ottawa to take up the question of site and transportation with the Dominion Government and Canadian National Railway officials. C. P. W. Schwenger, president of the Chamber, B. C. Nicholas, vice-president, and M. P. Blair, chairman of the Industrial Group, went to Ottawa early in May.

They were accorded a gratifying reception from Hon. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works, who expressed himself as being favorably impressed with the proposal regarding the site and undertook to do all he could to meet the conditions set forth. Dr. King also arranged for a conference between the representatives of the Chamber and Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railway and other railway officials.

Sufficient progress was made in a few days to enable the delegation to telegraph Mr. Mooney to proceed to Ottawa and conclude negotiations for a lease of the site.

DOUBLED SIZE

In the meantime it is understood that the original plan of the Panama Pacific Grain Terminal Limited has been enlarged so that the elevator which is to be constructed will have an ultimate capacity of 2,500,000 bushels or double the size of the original building it was first intended to erect.

The Canadian National Railway has undertaken to put on a double shift of the present ferry service, to provide the necessary ships and tracking involving immediate expenditure of over $50,000. As business develops this will be substantially increased.

GROWERS' CORPORATION

The Panama-Pacific Grain Terminal Limited is to a considerable extent a growers' corporation in process of organization, a large proportion of its stockholders being grain growers. # NERVES AND FAINTING SPELLS

Sent Woman to Bed. Great Change After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sarnia, Ontario.—"After my girlie was born I was a wreck. My nerves were too terrible for words and I simply could not stand or walk without pain. I suffered with fainting spells until I was no longer any good for my household duties and had to take to my bed. The doctor said I should have an operation, but I was not in a fit condition at that time. My neighbor said, 'Why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? I am sure it will do you good and will save those doctor's bills.' So I was advised by my husband to try it after I told him about it. I am very thankful to say that I was soon able to take a few boarders for a while as rooms were scarce at that time. My baby is 17 months old now and I have not yet had an operation, thanks to your medicine. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound to a few people I know and have told them the good it has done me. I know I feel and look a different woman these last few months and I certainly would not be without a bottle of your medicine in the house. You can use this letter as you see fit as I should be only too glad for those suffering as I have to know what it has done for me." Mrs. ROBERT G. MACGREGOR, R.R. No. 2, Sarnia, Ontario.

A recent canvass of women users of the Vegetable Compound reported 98 out of 100 received beneficial results. C (Advt.)

SHOULD DO DUTY
Verigin says the men who were appointed as directors of the community should do their duty earnestly and not to sleep; they should get together and tell the people not to allow a bunch of foolish men to disgrace the community and it is their sacred duty to see that the property of the community should be kept intact instead of being confiscated to pay fines for a few offenders.

"Is it progress to destroy? True progress is to create and not to destroy."

Verigin further said: "I am telling you positively that I shall not join any such men in their actions, but instead will act against them. My father did not want to accept schools, but now it is necessary to accept the schools and to educate the children. There was a time that armaments have been burned, but now it shall not be so. Instead we will make ploughs, harrows and everything necessary for tilling the soil out of them."

P. P. Verigin Sends Word From Russia B.C. Doukhobor Extremists Are in Error

Saskatoon, July 4.—"In Verigin's telegram to you he asked and hoped you would live in peace and reason until he arrived, which very plainly meant you should have been peaceful and acted reasonably, and instead you have allowed the schools to be burned, forcing the Government to take drastic action against you. In his letter to you he requested that you should make every effort and increase your energy toward creating things useful and good. Burning schools is not creating."

This is part of a letter received by M. M. Chasakoff from the delegates of the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood who went to Russia to invite P. P. Verigin to come to Canada.

"SILLY DOINGS"
The letter says:

"P. P. Verigin early requested us to write to you and ask you to stop these silly doings and act like reasonable, peaceful people. He asked us: 'Is it possible that you have not any clever people in your community who would undertake to stop such foolish doings?'"

"You should have paid strict attention to you and ask you to stop these silly doings and act like reasonable, peaceful people. He asked us: 'Is it possible that you have not any clever people in your community who would undertake to stop such foolish doings?'"

Mine Deadlock In Old Country

London, July 4.—Refusal by delegates representing coal miners in all parts of this country to consider proposals of the mine owners for a new agreement, embracing reduction in wages and an increase in the working day, makes a deadlock in the mining industry inevitable.

It is considered almost certain the annual conference of the Miners' Federation at Scarborough, called exclusively to consider the wage question, will endorse the decision taken by the delegates at their private conference yesterday. The miners' representatives say that unless the owners show willingness to make further concessions, giving the miners a living wage, war is inevitable.

Despite these assertions it is pointed out that the mining industry is in no position to stand a long strike or lockout. Much will depend on whether, and how far, the miners and railwaymen can work together to resist the demands of the employers for lower wages.

BARON BYNG'S APPEAL

BARON BYNG'S APPEAL for more genuine co-operation in this Dominion is a timely one. He could have extended it to the Empire and the world in general with equal force. There are times when a healthy division of opinion is an excellent thing. But there are also times when that division is carried altogether too far, when sectionalism develops into dangerous parochialism, when individual effort becomes warped by sheer selfishness.

To argue that a division in political opinion prevents the creation of a united front on the broader question of Canadian national life is to suggest that only by standardization in human activity can progress be accomplished. It may well be said, however, that there is a danger in class support which takes too virulent a form and fails to comprehend the demand which the country's welfare makes upon the citizen of every shade of thought. This is the sort of sectionalism to be avoided.

Quite right is Baron Byng when he says that "if there was a united public opinion throughout the whole Dominion of Canada, something great would happen." What country in the world offers better or more opportunities to the young and the industrious than Canada to-day? Are the Canadian people united in this belief? Are they doing enough on organized lines to convince the young people of this and other countries of their own belief? This is the united front which Baron Byng unquestionably has in mind when he pleads for the destruction of sectionalism.

THE WASTE OF WAR

OUR NEIGHBOR TO THE south of us is getting a number of novel suggestions as to the manner in which she might arrange to accept payment of her bill against France. Of particular interest is the proposal which one of the well-known Parisian journals submits and it is worth noting if only as a commentary upon the attitude of a responsible institution towards debts incurred by armed conflict. But it is not without point to the people who pay the additional taxes occasioned by war. It suggests that the United States should agree to extend a moratorium to France for a number of years and then discuss a funding arrangement which would spread the payments over something like seventy or eighty years.

Seventy or eighty years of excessive taxation to pay for the last war! And yet the next war is being talked about in quite a number of countries as if it were almost upon the world. Less than seven years since the last shot was fired parliaments are being asked to consent to more alliances of the very kind which have caused all the trouble in the past, and people who ought to know better are scoffing at the efforts of the League of Nations as if that organization were the product of a crank and not worth two minutes' thought. They would presumably add another seventy or eighty years of taxation to the lifetime's burden to which the Parisian journal so lightly refers.

It is useless to suggest that the world will ever be in a position to pay all the material costs of the last war. Nobody is expecting that. But one of the things which the governments of the various combatant countries should not ignore is the moderating influence which a constant reminder of the size of the outstanding bills ought at all times to have upon even those hot-heads who are never satisfied unless they are rattling the sabre. Only by a thorough realization of the fact that another war within the next fifty years would shake the world from its economic and social foundations will it be possible for the majority to restrain the minority in whose hands the opportunity to make war so often rests. In the meantime the League of Nations is the only organization in existence which is trying to bring the world to its senses and keep its outlook peaceful.

HAVE YOU SEEN CANADA?

CANADA CONTAINS nearly 3,730,000 square miles of land. How much of this area have you seen? This question is asked by the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior. Canada has all the attractions that any one could wish to see. There are quiet spots where those wanting a real rest may find their heart's desire; there are rivers, lakes and the sea where he who delights to hear the whirr of the reel may secure the finest of game fish; throughout large portions of the country the canoe routes beckon to those who would get away from the nerve-straining conditions of present day civilization, and camping sites await those who would live in the open.

Many thousands of miles of the best of highways offer to the motorist opportunity to tour Canada as never before. Untold millions of money have been poured out that road travel shall be comfortable and pleasurable, and over these good roads each year thousands of visitors view the country and revel in its beauties and appreciate its natural resources. When outsiders can see so many things to interest them in Canada, why should Canadians not pay more attention to their own country's charms and see and admire them before going outside to do their motoring and spend their money. See Canada, know your own country and be proud and thankful that you have been blessed with such a wonderful heritage.

HIT BY THE TARIFF

IN A LETTER TO THE London Daily Mail recently a Britisher residing in Louisiana complains that he had to pay twenty-one dollars on a parcel of goods from London valued at twenty-eight dollars. He inquires how he and other Britishers in the neighboring republic can buy British goods and help the Old Country when such high duties make it almost impossible.

Nothing but a change in the tariff policy of the United States can help The Mail's correspondent. He is in the same fix as many people in this city who pay a few hundred dollars more for their automobiles than the same article can be bought for across the line. And if Mr. Meighen could have his way, the Canadian would be charged more duty on British goods than he is charged at the present time under the preference, notwithstanding the fact that our annual account against Britain is nearly three times as large as her bill against us.

We venture to predict, however, that there will come a day, and it is not far distant, when the consumer's capacity to pay the high costs which a tariff wall imposes will become a question that the people of the United States will have to consider. Special privilege can be defended successfully for a time; but the will of the majority must sooner or later prevail. Then British and Canadian goods will get into the United States much easier—and mutual benefit will result.

LET THEM ALL COME

IT WOULD OBVIOUSLY be an excellent stroke of business if Canada could draw several thousand experienced agriculturists from other countries every month. She would immediately force ahead by leaps and bounds. But too much stress is very often laid upon this particular aspect of the Dominion's population problem. It will not be solved by any such hand-picked policy.

Development will take place as the result of a movement of people similar to that of the years prior to 1911. There may not be as much free land now as there was then; but this deficiency is counterbalanced by the operation of governmental machinery which simplifies the job of acquiring the necessary acres. Those people were not all farmers by a long shot. Thousands of them were of the artisan class and complete strangers to rural pursuits. They had made the experiment, however, and if statistics could be compiled, it would no doubt be discovered that some of the most successful agriculturists to-day were the greenhorns of fifteen and twenty years ago. There was no alternative. They had to live and die live. The thought of turning back entered the heads of very few. The majority had their pride as well as their grit. They were not in the mood to confess themselves failures.

Why then should not the ten-dereft of 1925, the men who know nothing about the farm and come to Canada with the express intention of finding a job in the city, be among the world's great wheat producers of 1940? Everything is in their favor. Canada is giving the world more food than most people imagine. The demand upon her will grow from year to year. It will not be long before the Orient forsakes its rice for our wheat. A 350,000,000-bushel crop will be quite inadequate when between 300,000,000 and 400,000,000 additional people begin to eat wheat bread. This and many more reasons could be cited in support of the argument that the young man who goes on the land in Canada to-day will get his experience at the right time. His dividends are assured.

It is the general movement of the mentally and physically healthy to this Dominion and not the hand-picked movement which should be brought about. It is for that reason that the implements with which people are going to develop the country's natural resources should be made available at the lowest possible cost. That policy is a short cut to general prosperity, for every family the farm requires articles which represent scores of other industries.

QUITE RIGHT

PROHIBITING THE parking of cars on the main highways of this Province is a timely ordinance. Quite a number of what might easily have been serious accidents in the vicinity of Victoria have been avoided by the narrowest of margins in several places along the more frequented thoroughfares where motorists have left their automobiles on the roadside. Very little ceremony is observed by the authorities on the other side of the border where an offender against this regulation is caught in the act. Nor should it be forgotten that the local Government's order-in-council is in the interest of all concerned and its provisions should generally commend themselves.

GERMAN BONDS

To the Editor:—I have seen a great deal of criticism in various newspapers respecting the value of German state and municipal bonds, and warning investors to have nothing to do with them.

I think, however, that if you will allow me space I will show that though the Germans may have been responsible for a great deal, yet if people lose money over German bonds the blame should be attached to the right parties.

I have before me a brokers' circular urging me to buy 1234 issue of Frankfurt O-M the third city in Germany at a price—$10 bid and $30 asked—for bonds of 1,000,000 marks.

Now these bonds were issued when marks were selling about 250,000 to the dollar, and at the present time a bond of one thousand millions can be purchased for at the outside $50, so it is easily figured the profit the broker expects to put in his pocket and how much there may be left for the investor.

Another instance recently came under my notice where a bond for 100,000 marks was sold for $750, and I pointed out to the buyer that it could never be redeemed at a higher price than 40 cents.

It is quite conceivable, however, that German bonds bought at correct prices, which are ridiculously low, will shortly realize profits, as it is certain a scheme of revaluation will be put through the German Reichstag where all these bonds will be valued at a gold basis approximately to their value at the time of issue, and any student of German affairs will know that this is being demanded in no uncertain terms by the Germans themselves.

HEALTH & DISEASE
The Common Cold in the Head

This is an acute inflammation of the mucous membrane of the nose, lasting from five or six days to three weeks or more. It is usually infectious. Persons with nasal obstructions, adenoids and diseased tonsils are especially prone to recurrent attacks.

At the outset there is usually a sense of feeling out of sorts, a slight fever and a sense of stuffiness of the nose. There may be sneezing, watering of the eyes, and a burning watery discharge from the nose, accompanied by more or less obstruction to nasal breathing causing headache, impairment of smell and taste and a full feeling in the ears. At this stage there should be no forcible blowing of the nose for fear of causing infection into the nasal sinuses. If the cold is not checked in its early stages it may rapidly spread to the throat or chest causing laryngitis, bronchitis and even pneumonia. Sometimes what appears to be an ordinary cold is really the first stage of some serious condition like measles, scarlet fever or diphtheria. In all other general conditions which may be ushered in by similar symptoms.

WHO'S WHO IN HISTORY TO-DAY

SATURDAY, JULY 4

ROGER WILLIAMS

English colonist in New England, the founder of Rhode Island, settled in Providence in that state on July 4, 1639. He was famous as an apostle of religious toleration, thus arousing the ire of the early Puritans. On two occasions he was driven from Salem, where he was a pastor, for denying the right of magistrates to punish Sabbath-breaking and for supposed heretical opinions. He founded the first Baptist church in America, but soon afterwards withdrew from all church connections.

SAMUEL RICHARDSON. English novelist, called "the founder of the English domestic novel," died at London on July 4, 1871. As a boy he was employed by girls to write love-letters for them. His best known works, all published in the form of letters, are "Pamela," "Clarissa Harlowe," and "The History of Sir Charles Grandison."

NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE. Celebrated American novelist and short-story writer, was born on July 4, 1804. Several years of his life were spent in the public service, his last prominent position being that of consul at Liverpool. "The Scarlet Letter" is generally regarded as his greatest work. Other writings include "Twice-Told Tales," "Mosses from an Old Manse," and "The Marble Faun."

THOMAS JEFFERSON. Third President of the United States, the leading American statesman of his day, and the founder of the Democratic Party, died on July 4, 1826, the fiftieth anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, of which he was the principal author. He was zealous in the cause of free speech and assembly, and was the foe of intolerance.

JOHN ADAMS. Second President of the United States, and a leader of the Federal (now Republican) party, died on July 4, 1826. He was active in affairs leading up to the Revolution, and took a prominent part in the formation of the United States Government. His last words are said to have been: "Thomas Jefferson (a political rival, but a personal friend) died a few hours earlier."

STEPHEN C. FOSTER. American song-writer, famous as the composer of "Old Kentucky Home," was born at Pittsburgh, Pa., on July 4, 1826. Other compositions include "Old Folks at Home" and "Old Dog Tray."

JAMES MONROE. Fifth President of the United States, whose name is given to the doctrine of non-intervention of the United States in the affairs of the American continent, died on July 4, 1831. A movement was recently started to purchase and restore as a memorial the house at 120 West 12th Street, New York City, now used as a junk-shop, in which he spent his last days.

CHATEAUBRIAND (François René, Vicomte de) distinguished French author and statesman, died at Paris on July 4, 1848. He was successively a Royalist, a follower of Bonaparte, and a supporter of the Bourbons. He served as ambassador at London and as minister of foreign affairs.

CALVIN COOLIDGE. President of the United States, was born at Plymouth, Vt., on July 4, 1892.

SUNDAY, JULY 5. MRS. SIDONS (Sarah Kemble) celebrated British actress, was born at Brecon, Wales, on July 5, 1755. For thirty years she held the London stage, being considered the leading woman in her profession. Her greatest role was Lady Macbeth. She is preserved for us in portraits by Gainsborough and Sir Joshua Reynolds.

GEORGE BORROW. English romance-writer, traveler, and philologist, was born at East Dereham, Norfolk, on July 5, 1803. His writings, especially "Lavenger" and "The Romney Rye," have been translated into many languages and are picture-book literature. Other works include "The Bible in Spain" and "Wild Wales."

GEORGE SAND (Auntie de plume of Armandine Lucile Aurore Dupin, Baroness Dudevant) noted French novelist and playwright, was born at Paris on July 5, 1804. Her married life was unhappy, and she left her husband to engage upon a literary career. Several years of her life

Auction sale of 150 city-owned lots, some with improvements, scattered in all parts of the city, will take place on August 20, with C. S. Austin, of Seattle, as auctioneer, if the City Council accepts a recommendation of the lands committee, arrived at yesterday afternoon.

The lands committee supported the view of Chairman Dewar that an auction of this type requires the services of a specialist, and the reputation of the C. S. Austin Co. as a firm of North America, where Mr. Austin has won friends as a result of similar auctions.

The next session of the council will have before it a number of protests from local auctioneers against the employment of an outside firm for a land sale, all claiming ability to handle the business to the satisfaction of the city.

TO-MORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SUNDAY AND MONDAY, JULY 5-6

Sunday's astrological figure warns against travel, removal and change, and enjoins strict attention to affairs in hand. Beware deception or fraud, and do not resort to quarrels of litigation.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a moderate success during the year if they will attend strictly to their duties, and be on guard against fraud or deceit. Change and travel should be postponed. A child born on this day will be restless and unsettled, but may succeed through industry.

Monday's horoscope is a generally favorable one, excepting for those in the employment of others who should be careful of their positions. Others may make advantageous changes or journeys, as the financial opportunities are well supported by a friendly Jupiter. In the employment of others it may encounter difficulties.

Old Ladies Think Trained Pig Funny

With Joe North as their chaplain, inmates of the Old Ladies' Home went to the circus this week, saw the acrobatic stunts, the dancing girls and the trained pigs. The performers, they said, were most surprising to them as they had always thought that pigs were good only for ham and bacon, without any histrionic ability.

Mr. North to-day issued a statement of thanks to Robert Butler, head of the circus, for the entertainment. Mr. Butler's name was omitted from the list published yesterday. While the old ladies were out seeing the carnival sights, they were supplied with draughts of Coca Cola and the trained pigs. The performance, Mr. North also extended his thanks to the Coca Cola Company.

Radio Competition Robs Gramophone Makers of Profits

Camden, N.J., July 4.—Stockholders of the Victor Talking Machine Company to-day received notices from the board of directors that the dividend customarily due July 15 would be omitted. The company had been paying its share annually.

The company has also given notice to its employees that all holidays this year have been cancelled and business will proceed on a normal basis.

Severely of radio competition is blamed for the depression under which the Victor company is laboring.

The company hopes to improve its outlook by entering the radio field and incorporating a radio reproducing machine.

"Lady of the Peony Rose"

A blaze of color will meet the eyes of those who visit the C.P.R. park at Wembley this month; for 5,000 peony blooms have been shipped overseas from Canada for exhibition purposes.

Canada has long enough been heralded as "Our Lady of the Snows," say those who are behind the scheme. The time has come when she should be known as "Our Lady of the Peony Rose."

The bulk of the blossoms are cut from plants grown by W. Ormiston Roy, well-known landscape gardener of Montreal.

This is the first time cut flowers have been sent across the ocean on a considerable scale. A temperature varying with the humidity, but below 40 degrees Fahrenheit, is required for the best results.

W. Ormiston Roy's world-famous collection of peonies, recognized as the greatest and largest assemblage of the classic sort old enough to produce exhibition blooms, will be supplemented by a few rare kinds from the noted peony gardens of H. Norton, Ayerscliff, Que.

Wants It Recognized
Mr. Roy has a growing ambition to have the peony recognized in Canada at its true value as a landscape plant; and he claims that it is in his country the most beautiful plant that will thrive the length and breadth of Canada. This is a rare and proud distinction, because our national emblem, the maple, cannot exist in many parts of our country. The peony requires less care than any other plant or shrub, and will succeed in any good garden soil, provided it is exposed to sunlight and is well drained. Given these simple conditions, and if it is not planted more than two or three inches below the surface of the soil, it will grow in any province of the Dominion, even the Klondike, he says.

The varieties which Mr. Roy includes in his collection are La France, Solange, Tourangelle, Sarah Bernhardt, Enchantress and Ayrshire, all of which are seldom seen in such perfection in English gardens. In fact, in no country in the world do they flourish as in Canada—not even in China, where the first peonies came from, and where for upwards of a thousand years the plant has been regarded with love and reverence.

From Mr. Norton's garden will come blooms of such unusual varieties as Kellway's Glorious, which originated in England; Le Geste, perhaps Victor-Le-Moine's greatest contribution to the peony world; Martha, Bulloch and Mrs. Edward Harding's outstanding varieties of American origin, all of which still range from $25 to $100 a plant.

"CLASSIC SORTS"
While such rare kinds as these mentioned are of great beauty on the exhibition table, Mr. Roy is chiefly interested in the creations of the noted French hybridizers—sorts that have stood the test of time, and which for landscape embellishment are in many cases superior to very expensive kinds. For this reason, Mr. Roy likes to think of his peonies as "classic sorts"—varieties that no peony fancier could do without.

shrub. It is often remarked that the peony has short blooming season, but Mr. Roy claims for it a longer blooming season, taking the early and late varieties together, than any hardy shrub such as lilacs, spirea, mock oranges, etc., and no shrub, not even the rose and the rhododendron, has anything like its wide and exquisite range of color.

Mr. Roy points out that if Canadians once appreciate the value of the peony in landscape planting, every city and village in the country could be as noted for peonies as is comparatively few years ago Portland, Oregon, is now famous for its roses. Canada yet has the opportunity to pre-empt the peony and to grow it in every garden where there is a yard or two of soil open to the sun. No other country has yet wakened to its wonderful possibilities.

MISS HOPE LEEMING WRITES PRIZE POEM

Wins Prize Given by Miss Cann of Victoria College; Others Commended

Announcement is made of the award to Miss Hope Leeming of a prize for the best poem composed by a student of Victoria College during the college year which ended last May. The prize of twenty-five dollars was offered by Miss Cann, Professor of English Literature, and the difficult task of selecting the winning poem was kindly undertaken by Dr. J. G. Sedgewick, head of the English Department of the University of British Columbia. Miss Leeming, the successful one of seven competitors, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Leeming of Victoria. She has just completed her first year in Victoria with an exceptionally high record, which shows that verse-writing is only one of her many interests.

Dr. Sedgewick praised the quality of the work of the students, and while Miss Leeming's verses best, he particularly commended "Bushveldt Dreams" by Richard E. A. Diespecker and "Evening" by Hester Cleveland, the formal presentation of this prize will be made with the usual scholarships at the beginning of the next college year.

The poem by Miss Leeming and the other two selected for special praise are given below.

"The green fields of my home,
 The glowing sunset, and the rich
 brown earth;
 The lacy trees against a pale green sky.
 The joyous cry of lark to lark
 From out the distant woods—
 These are the things that make my life for me.

Now the hills are all a dream of blue;
 The mountains creep beneath their dusky veils;
 The leaves of tulips in the garden bed
 Whisper their vespers in the fading light;
 The sky leans on the sea—
 Gray mist arises and fold the world in night.

HOPE LEEMING.

BUSHVELDT DREAMS

Night, cool gloom with its myriad jewels,
 Gleaming and flashing above the veldt;
 The bark of baboons on the solemn belugas;
 And the hyenas' laughing chorus
 melt
 Into the solitude, soundless and deep.
 Of the shadowy valley below the steep.

Cold grey dawn, with its feathery mist;
 Swirling and dancing beneath the hills;
 The Bok-ma-kerr's lonely cry
 Echoes away with a trembling thrill.
 As the peary light of the breaking day
 Whispers the falling night away.

The great red eye of the sun upthrust.Till the bush with a rosy hys;
 Timid springbuck daintily step,
 Out of their covert beneath the blue.And the veldt awakes to another day.Throbbing with life—ferocious and gay.Night with a thousand diamonds hung;Dawn with the rolling seas of mist;
 Life of the dark, and life of the day,
 Cared by the stars and sunlight kissed.List to the roar of that mighty throng.Tis the far-off sound of the Bushveldt's Song!

RICHARD E. A. DIESPECKER.

EVENING

The swallow wings its homeward way
 Across the sunset sky,
 A black boat on a crimson sea.
 That fades as night draws nigh.
 From out the gloom of grey dense fog
 The gold lights twinkle bright;
 The spangles of the silver stars Shine on the gown of night.A light breeze rustles through the leaves;
 A light breeze from the sky
 The shivering whispers of the trees
 Shake through the dark—and die.

TRAINING SCHOOL FOR GUIDERS WILL OPEN HERE MONDAY

Many Fascinating Subjects to Be Taught to Potential Girl Guide Officers

In the hope that the course will arouse interest among the girls and younger women of the city and so ensure an adequate and much-needed supply of leaders for the Girl Guide movement on Vancouver Island, a Summer training school for Guiders will commence on Monday, July 6, and continue until July 11. The school, through the kindness of Miss Barton, will be held as in previous years at St. Margaret's school, which has every facility and equipment for instruction in guide-work.

Miss Dorothy MacGregor, a blue diploma guider of Toronto, will have charge of the training course. It will be interesting to those who took last year's classes to learn that Miss MacGregor was passed for her blue diploma by Miss Joyce Wolton, who had charge of last year's school here. Miss Wolton is now in England, and was recently signally honored by being awarded the coveted chief's diploma, and has also been appointed to the examining board for the blue diploma.

The classes will be held daily from 10 to 12.30 a.m. and from 3 to 5 p.m. The afternoon classes to include patrol leaders and second, while at night the classes will be from 8 to 9.30 p.m.

The subjects will include ceremonial, company and signalling drill, nature and observation work, stalking and tracking, map sketching, country dancing, games, story telling, sing songs and Brownie work, all of which promise to be most fascinating in their appeal. Visitors interested in watching the classes will be welcomed at any time.

On July 18 a Guide and Brownie presentation at the Arena, together with kind permission of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Nichol, and the proceeds will be devoted to the Summer camp arrangements.

Dancing will commence at 9 o'clock, and continue until 1 o'clock.

Tickets will be limited to 300 and issued at a nominal charge, sufficient to cover the supper and other necessary expenses, and will be obtainable from group leaders or the office in the Pemberton Building, which has been placed at the disposal of the players by Superintendent Shephard.

A meeting of the group leaders and the dance committee has been called for Monday evening at 8 o'clock at 402 Pemberton Building, when Major Taylor will give details of the proposals for the dance, and the dance committee will invite suggestions towards making the Friday evening celebration memorable.

PREPARED WEDDING AT REFORMED CHURCH

Marriage Last Night of Miss Violet Harper and Horace Shandley

A quiet wedding at which only relatives and intimate friends were present took place Friday evening at the Reformed Episcopal Church, when Rev. A. B. Owen united in marriage Violet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Harper, Quadra Street, and C. Horace Shandley, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Shandley, Head Street, Victoria.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. W. Carter, the bride looked very smart in a grey and navy suit with hat to match and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses and sweet peas.

The bride was attended by Miss Elsie Jenkins, who wore a dress of green crepe de Chine, her bouquet being composed of pink and mauve sweet peas.

The groom was supported by Mr. P. Martin.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Shandley, Menzies Street. After a short honeymoon motoring up to Island points the young couple will return to make their home in Victoria.

Two popular local teachers married

Miss Jessie Stewart of North Dairy School Bride of R. Kipling of North Ward

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's aunt, Miss Murray, 1009 Park Boulevard, Tuesday evening, when Rev. A. B. Owen united in marriage Jessie Murray, youngest daughter of John Stewart and the late Margaret Stewart of Victoria, and Rudyard Thomas Kipling, of Hollywood, California.

The home was prettily decorated for the occasion with masses of flowers.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. William Murray, the bride made a charming picture in her simple gown of white charmeuse satin draped at one side with a handsome rhinestone ornament. Her exquisite veil of embroidered net was held in place by three strands of orange blossoms.

Her shower consisted of Ophelia roses and white sweet peas. Miss Margaret Stewart, sister of the bride and her only attendant, was gowned in a beautiful imported "Udell" gown in a member also a rug with a band of silver leaves and carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas.

Miss Nora Edwards played the wedding march, and during the signing of the register Mrs. P. M. Shandley sang very sweetly "Ode." After the ceremony the young couple received the good wishes of their guests beneath an arbor of roses. Later a delicious buffet supper was served in the dining room, the following girl friends of the bride assisting: The Misses Honora Standen, Lois Peacey, Nora Edwards, Thelma Schroeder, Ruth Kipling, Jean Murray. Among the many beautiful gifts received was a silver entree dish from the staff of the North Dairy School, of which the bride is a member.

Reported in the evening the young couple left for the Mainland where the honeymoon is being spent. The bride traveled in a smart crepe de Chine dress, the color of ashes of roses, with coat and hat en suite.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Kipling will reside at 1444 Mitchell Street, Oak Bay.

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, JULY 4, 1925

NEW RECORDS IN MOTOR FERRY BUSINESS

FERRIES CARRYING RECORD NUMBER OF AUTOMOBILES HERE

Over 3,000 Cars Handled, Inbound and Outbound, by all Vancouver Island Ferries Converging on Victoria This Season.

Automobile traffic into Victoria has now commenced to reach its highest pitch with tourists pouring into the city from all routes. This afternoon thirty-five cars and 200 passengers arrived on Canadian Puget Sound Ferry Olympic from Port Angeles. This is the greatest number of automobiles that have been carried so far this year.

According to figures released this morning there have been 3,048 incoming and outgoing cars handled at the three wharves, namely the C.P.R. Olympic ferry wharf and the Sidney wharf, since April 1.

There have been 2,343 cars handled at the Sidney wharf, 219 at the C.P.R. terminus, 467 at the Olympic ferry dock and nineteen at the Outer Wharf.

The Victoria-Anacortes route has proved popular. Up to date there have been 1,433 automobiles handled, while on the Bellingham run 805 motors have made the trip.

The ferry service to Port Angeles was inaugurated by the Canadian Puget Sound Company's ferry Olympic on May 23, while on the Victoria-Anacortes run the Mount Vernon, of the same line, started the single trip on April 9, and on May 30 the ferry Puget was also put on the trip, the two boats running a double service.

ADVERTISING RESULTS

Proof of the results of the advertising done by Puget Sound and British Columbia Associated, a co-operative group representing civic organizations of Victoria, Vancouver, Bellingham, Tacoma, and Seattle, is found in the check made by the Seattle Chamber of Commerce on the north-bound automobiles on the Pacific Highway between Tacoma and the international boundary. A check was made Tuesday, showing that forty per cent of all the automobiles bore California license plates and more than fifty per cent of all the cars were foreign license cars.

The check showed that the average number of cars per hour was 240, with an average of three people to a car, thus estimating that approximately 6,000 people were in cars being driven north.

Puget Sound and British Columbia Associated, devoted practically all of its $24,000 advertising fund to newspaper display space in California.

Nor only are thousands of California cars now in the Puget Sound country, but the motorist is also being attracted to the arrival at Seattle last Monday of the H. P. Alexander with more than 500 passengers, and other boats are arriving with big passenger lists.

The number of California cars coming into the state of Washington from June 1 to September 1, 1925, was 10,990. As a result of the expenditure of $24,000 California cars last year by the Puget Sound and British Columbia Associated, the number of California cars driven into the State of Washington for the same period of 1924 was 24,000, despite exaggerated reports relative to the hoof and mouth disease and fumigation requirements at the Washington boundary, which kept a great many tourists away from Washington and British Columbia.

Information from automobile clubs in California indicates that there will be at least 35,000 California motorists who will drive into the Puget Sound country this summer, and with an average of three people to a car, this will mean at least 100,000 Californians will come north by automobile.

SEATTLE SHIPPING

Seattle, July 4.—Included in the cargo of the freighter Lewis Luckenbach, rated as the largest motor vessel in any service operating out of Seattle, which arrived yesterday, were two former German artillery pieces captured on the battlefield of France by state of Washington troops. The guns will be displayed as part of the fourth of July ceremonies.

The Lewis Luckenbach brought 1,200 tons of general cargo from New York, Boston and Philadelphia. The vessel will load 6,100,000 feet of lumber and 1,100 tons of general cargo at Seattle and Tacoma for the return voyage.

A 2,500-ton general cargo is to be brought here on the motorship Challenger, of the Ishman Line due here Monday on her first voyage to North Pacific waters.

A shipment of specially bred cattle, fifteen choice milk cows was loaded aboard the Matsun Navigation Company's freighter Mauna Ala for shipment to Honolulu yesterday.

Weather-protected walls on the deck of the freighter were used. The Mauna Ala also took out 5,000 tons of general cargo, including a large quantity of telegraph poles.

TOURISTS
The Ruth Alexander brought 342 passengers, many of them Californians visiting the Summer and ground of America on their vacations, and of these a number have made reservations for trips to Southeastern and Southwestern Alaska points.

Among the arriving passengers were Hon. P. E. Lessard, premier of the province of Alberta, who has been visiting in the South for several weeks, and Mrs. E. F. Parmelee, wife of the manager of the San Diego Union and Tribune. Frank Clark, representative of the string of farm journals at San Francisco, and a brother of George S. Clark, of Seattle, was also among those disembarking yesterday.

MISSION TEACHER DESCRIBES A NATION-FOREIGN BOYCOTT

School Children Prime Movers in Disturbances in China, it Declared

A paradoxical situation in which school children of from twelve to fifteen years persuaded merchants to adhere to the anti-foreign boycott in China was described by K. K. Thompson, a worker of the Presbyterian Mission in the province of Shanghai, returning on furlough on board the Ss. President Jackson this morning.

Despite the age of the students, says Mr. Thompson, they are leaders of most modern movements in China and in this instance have proved the misapprehension of the world. In some instances foreign endowed schools were closed before the trouble broke out. In others the students themselves forced the closing of the schools and insisted on remaining in the dormitories to sleep.

FOLLOWED CHILDREN

Agitation set up by the students throughout the country found a focus in Shanghai where the international settlement became the centre of the trouble. Students, supported by native merchants who appeared to have followed their children into the boycott, set up the anti-foreign demonstrations which led to rioting and some bloodshed.

At the back of the whole trouble, according to Mr. Thompson, is Soviet propaganda and the general feeling exists, he states, that this Soviet campaign has been deliberately fostered in China with a view to bringing about just what has taken place.

AUTOCRATICS
At the school in Shanghai where Mr. Thompson was teaching the students were autocratic and insisted on having just such changes in the curricula and school discipline as they wished. The school, however, was closed before the active trouble commenced.

British, French and Japanese are most affected by the trouble, stated Mr. Thompson, who told a serious story of the closing of the China coast. When the President Jackson cleared open rioting had been quelled and while surface conditions were quiet there was a feeling of great unrest in the international settlement at Shanghai, concluded Mr. Thompson who is en route to Yakima on a first furlough after several years. After a year's leave he will return to the Orient.

ON FURLOUGH
Though there were many missionaries on board none had left as a result of the trouble, they said, but on having just such changes in the curricula and school discipline as they wished. The school, however, was closed before the active trouble commenced.

Lieut. J. H. Severins and Mrs. Severins, Lieut. P. H. Wells, Lieut. C. J. Miller and Mrs. Miller, Lieut. N. M. Dupre and Mrs. Dupre, Lieut. M. R. Derr and Mrs. Derr, Lieut. R. Bolton and Mrs. Bolton, and Lieut. L. Abercrombie and Mrs. Abercrombie are returning from Asiatic waters where the officers served for the past three years on United States naval ships and stations.

Dr. Paul Monroe, prominent member of the faculty of the University of Columbia, is returning from an educational tour of the Orient in which he visited many centres and spoke before many leading universities in the Orient.

Dr. Arthur E. Bowditch, chief librarian of the St. Louis Public Library returned on the President Jackson after a special mission in the Orient. When the ship docked here Dr. Bowditch took occasion of the two-hour stay to drive around the city and narrowly escaped missing the ship when she cleared at 9:30 a.m. for Seattle.

All American passengers were jubilant at the thought of landing on American soil in time for the July 4 celebrations, the first many of them have seen in a great many years.

HISTORIC SAILERS WILL BE SCRAPPED
Indiana, Bohemia and Llewellyn Sold at San Francisco

San Francisco, July 4.—Three historic full-rigged American sailing ships, known in every part of the world, were sold Thursday in San Francisco by the Alaska Packers' Association to Edward and Joseph Markowitz of Oakland, for scrapping. The vessels were built in Maine nearly fifty years ago. They are the Indiana, Bohemia and Llewellyn J. Morse.

For the last fifteen or more years they have been engaged in the Alaska fishing trade. Prior to being acquired for this service by the Alaska Packers' Association the vessels were engaged as merchant ships in the trade between San Francisco, New York and European countries. The Indiana was built in Bath, Me., in 1874. The Bohemia was built in the same port in 1875. The Llewellyn J. Morse swept down the ways from her builder's yards in Brewer, Me., in 1877.

BUT TWO OF ARCTIC BAND EXEMPT FROM SHIP WHEEL OUT

Wiscasset, Maine, July 2.—The cook and engineer of the Bowdoin, which with the Peary, is now carrying the MacMillan-United States Navy party to the Arctic region for exploration, are alone of the ship's complement who have not to take turns at the wheel. The Bowdoin, of the auxiliary schooner type, has a passenger list of ten men. The Peary has a crew of thirteen men and a personnel of thirteen navy officers and men.

The Bowdoin and Peary sailed last week from this port. The crew and the complement are volunteers. The crew were selected principally from three viewpoints, personality, which was ranked first; physique and ability. It requires a good personality to withstand the rigors of Arctic isolation as much as good physical condition.

Commander MacMillan is in charge of the Bowdoin, Commander Eugene E. McDonald, Jr., in charge of the Peary, and Commander R. E. Byrd, U.S.N., in charge of the navy personnel. The plan of the expedition is to sail from the Peary's Arctic bases at any time. They will also carry carrier pigeons and smoke bombs.

TAKE CARRIER PIGEONS

The planes are of the amphibian type and numbered NA-1, NA-2 and NA-3. They will have a maximum flying distance of 1,200 miles, but will not be required to fly further than 500 miles from their Arctic bases at any time. They will also carry carrier pigeons and smoke bombs.

Heretofore Arctic explorers have figured out their compass variations by the relation of the North Pole to the magnetic pole. At the suggestion of Secretary Wilbur, this expedition is armed with a new chart which makes the magnetic pole the chief factor and provides a set of variations of the compass with the North Pole playing second hand. This may simplify observations, calculations and navigation.

SIR TOM WINS PACIFIC COAST CHAMPIONSHIP

Riowna Victorious In Heavy Weather Race

Sir Tom Finishes Nearly Six Minutes Behind Vancouver Boat in Final Race But With Two Firsts and a Second Won Isherwood and Pacific Coast Cups; Lady V. Carried Away "Spreaders" and Had to Withdraw; Had She Stayed in and Beaten Sir Tom Another Race Would Have Been Necessary

Sir Tom, champion Class R boat of the Pacific Coast! That's the way yachtsmen will have to refer to Ted Geary's famous little craft for the next year. Despite the fact that the Sir Tom was beaten in sailor-man's weather yesterday afternoon by the Riowna, of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, she had sufficient points to capture both the Pacific Coast championship cup and the Isherwood cup.

On Thursday the Sir Tom won the Lipton cup, denoting the Class R championship of the Pacific International Yachting Association. The deed of gift for this trophy called for the best two out of three races and the Sir Tom was the first home both Wednesday and Thursday.

Yesterday the Riowna had an orphan's chance of causing a change in the competition for the Isherwood and Pacific Coast cups. If the Riowna won and the Sir Tom finished third there would have been a tie and a fourth race would have been necessary to-day.

"THE SLENDER THREAD"

The slender thread on which the Riowna's hopes held parted when the "spreaders" on the Lady V. of Los Angeles, carried away on the first round. In the heavy blow the California boat, like the Riowna, was able to make better headway, but when her "spreaders" went she had to withdraw from the race.

Ron Matland and his crew got the young sail they had been praying for all week and the Riowna stood up to it in great fashion. She amply demonstrated that she is a heavy weather boat and the Sir Tom, to the finishing line by nearly six minutes. Although there was a heavy sea on and a wind that blew close to twenty-five miles an hour at times the Riowna's deck was dry, save for a little flying spray. The Sir Tom shipped a great deal of water while the Turenga had her lee rail buried most of the way.

YACHTS SOUGHT SHELTER
Fifty of the yachts which gathered here for the regatta of the Pacific Coast Yachting Association were able to stand the blow and had to seek their anchorage. They missed a race, which, though it lacked the spectacular thrills of Thursday, showed off the boats under new conditions and demonstrated what courageous crews they all packed.

Three of the boats, the Sir Tom, Riowna and Turenga came out for the start with a reef in their mainsails. This trio got away well together at the start, but the Sir Tom, the Lady V. had some trouble and did not pass the judges' boat until four minutes later.

The race was over a triangular course. The boats had a beam wind on the first leg, a beat on the second and a run on the third.

SUITED: RIOWNA
Before the first buoy had been reached it was clearly apparent that the Riowna was revelling in the weather. She stood up beautifully in it, while the others were laboring at times.

On the first buoy to windward Geary created a big stir by cutting the Riowna. The Sir Tom took the lead for the only time during the race. Geary went on to the starboard tack when some distance from the turning buoy, while Matland let the Riowna run well on to windward. The tactics of the Riowna proved the best for she rounded the buoy on her second tack, while the Sir Tom took four. This put the Riowna once again in the lead and she retained it to the end.

The Riowna made a great run before the wind and Geary in an effort to catch her ran out an "epinacker." The Sir Tom could not carry the extra canvas in such a strong wind and the sheet carried away.

"JIBED" PERFECTLY
Matland tried a nifty manoeuvre to round the judges' boat for the first time. Despite the heavy wind he "jibed" the Riowna and she responded splendidly. It was a further indication of her stoutness. Geary took no such chances with the Sir Tom when he was ready for the turn. He was not willing to risk the danger of something snapping when the mainsail whipped over for the sake of gaining a few seconds. He cautiously "put about" and was quickly off on his second tack. The Sir Tom was nearly two minutes slower on the round than the Riowna.

The Lady V. raced up to the judges' boat, with her crew in oil skins and ready for anything. She was the first rounder just twenty seconds slower than the Riowna and great things were expected of her. But as she passed the judge's boat, her skipper pointed aloft. His spreaders had carried away, so he was forced to proceed to Esquimalt harbor.

TURENGA'S CREW GAME
With the Lady V. out of the way the Sir Tom just had to settle down and hold on to second place. She was in no danger of losing it as the Turenga was having a hard time. Despite the fact that the conditions were all against them the crew of the Turenga showed a courageous fight. When the little craft, heeling far over, was ready for the turn Ernie Rogers, her skipper, showed his nerve by "flying" her. Nothing carried away but Rogers did not have sufficient room to pass the stern of the judges' boat and it was only after a thrilling bit of seamanship that he avoided a collision with the judge's boat. Her mainsail lay right across

Fayth Wins Lipton Cup in Long Race in Heavy Weather

The Lipton Cup, presented to the Royal Victoria Yacht Club by Sir Thomas Lipton for a long distance race for two-stickers of all classes, remains in Victoria as a result of the victory of the Fayth, owned by Dr. Hudson of this city. It was the only big cup to be won by a local boat during the P.C.Y.A. regatta which concluded yesterday.

The yavla yesterday had a long race in heavy weather. They started off the mouth of Esquimalt harbor, raced to a buoy off Pedder Bay, then ran before the wind to Brodie Ledge and returned to the starting point. The Gwendolyn II. of Seattle was second.

the fore-deck of the judges' boat. Rogers did not attempt to "jibe" on his next effort. He "put about," but again did not have room. On his third attempt he went well to windward and cleared. The Turenga had her rudder half out of water at times and her main boom and lee rail were smothered in the seething water.

The completion of the first round was as follows: Riowna, 3:16; Sir Tom, 3:18.19; Lady V., 3:20.25 and Turenga, 3:23.45.

A PROCESSION

The second round did not produce anything spectacular. The Riowna continued to increase her lead, the Sir Tom went along safely while the Turenga kept going in a blaze of spray. The times on the completion of the second round were: Riowna, 3:58; Sir Tom, 4:02.15 and Turenga, 4:12.02. The Riowna made this lap in 42 minutes, the fastest time made in any of the races.

The third round was a repetition of the second. The wind came on stronger than ever and this only served to push the Riowna farther in the lead. She finished the round nearly six minutes ahead of the Sir Tom while the Turenga had not begun to run for home on the last leg.

While the heavy wind produced a great deal of water on the Sir Tom yesterday it also produced some upsets in the other classes. The heavy weather boats had things to their liking.

In the special sloops the Alexandria, which sailed third on the two previous days, won easily over the two Spirits of Vancouver. The Gwendolyn II. of Seattle was right in the lead, followed by the big yawl race.

The Satellite, of Los Angeles, won the Star Class for the third day in succession. It was the only victory for California in the regatta.

The boats shifted this morning for second half of the regatta at Roche Harbor and will return to their home ports on Sunday.

The results were as follows:
Special sloops—First, Alexandria, Vancouver; Spirit II, Vancouver; Spirit I, Vancouver.

Yavls and schooners under 30-foot waterline—First, Gwendolyn II, Seattle; second, Diana, Los Angeles.

Sloops, over 25-foot waterline—First, Dione, Seattle; second, Spirit, Onoma, Vancouver; third, Imp, Seattle.

Yavls and schooners under 30-foot waterline—First, Tamahoua, Vancouver; second, Belle R, Seattle.

Sloops, under 25-foot waterline—First, Dione, Seattle; second, Spirit, Onoma, Vancouver; third, Imp, Seattle.

Star Class—First, Satellite, Los Angeles; second, Stella H, Vancouver; third, Corona, Vancouver.

Kitten class—First, Kittiwake, Vancouver.

WON BY A KNOCKOUT
Calgary, July 4.—Defending his western championship, Alex Wilson, hard-hitting Calgary boxer, knocked out Ted Williams of Red Deer at Red Deer last night in the fifth round.

There is this to be said about the dog here of the Nome serum drama, recently signed up in vaudeville: he does not try to sing "Hot Tamale Kelly."

Ty Cobb Pushes To Front In Batting Race In American

Aged Pilot of Detroit Tigers Showing up Youngsters in Hitting

Three of His Team-mates on His Heels; Hornsby Still Leads National

Chicago, July 4.—Tyrus Raymond Cobb, for twenty years a star in baseball, to-day has an opportunity to laugh at the old adage that "Youth must be served." Cobb, forty years young, is fooling youth—fooling the youngsters of the American League at least, for he is safely perched at the top of the leading sluggers with an average of .409. His batting performance in the last eight games netted him sixteen hits, putting him into first place from fourth place.

The work of Cobb is noticeable in almost every department. He is tied for second place honors in two-base hitting, having twenty-five, the same number as Boone of Boston. Cobb also has pounded out nine triples and eleven homers, but the stolen bases column testifies to a creaky underpinning as the former speed king has stolen only three bases this season.

Cobb's sensational batting has been an inspiration to his team-mates, three of whom are trailing him, all hitting around .400. Wingo is second to the Tiger pilot with .405, while Heilmann and Burroughs are tied for third with .397. Sammy Hale of the Athletics, the leader a week ago, has dropped out of the picture.

CLEAR FENCE TOPS
Although the home runs have been rattling over the fence tops during the last week, the leaders have not made as rapid strides as some of the lesser lights. Menus of the Yankees ran his total to nineteen and Williams of the Browns boosted his mark to sixteen.

Johnny Mostil of the White Sox was the top to tie with Rogers Hornsby for the leadership.

Milton Stock and Jack Fournier, buddies with the Dodgers, have made the greatest strides toward the top. Stock advanced to third place with an average of .389, while his teammate added twenty-five points to his average for a mark of .383 and a berth in sixth place. Hornsby dropped his average to .375, but continued to lead the Federals, the prized goal of many amateur pilots and which was nearly won by Walter Lorimer's Elks several years ago. The antlered herd lost the third consecutive pennant in the final game with Yarrow's, then managed by George A. Beck.

The Rithet Cup was presented four years ago by Jack Rithet for competition between outlaw teams which were not entered in any organized league. The first year it was won by the Native Sons of Canada and has been held by them ever since, although last year it was not competed for.

A meeting of the trustees of the cup will be held next week when it will be finally decided whether or not they will agree to the suggestion which has been advanced.

REDDICK WINS AGAIN
Vancouver, July 4.—Jack Reddick, of Moose Jaw, sloped Roache Stragmala, of Portland, in the fourth round of their scheduled ten-round bout here last night. Reddick knocked out the Oregonian with a right to the stomach after Stragmala had immediately before taken a count of nine from a right to the jaw. Reddick had the edge on his opponent all the way.

Rithet Cup May Be Battled For In Post Series

Senior Amateur Ball Teams May Play For Trophy; Plan Will Lengthen League

Matt Hunter, the energetic president of the Victoria Amateur Baseball League, alive to the increased interest of the fans as shown in the capacity attendance this season, is being urged by fans to request the trustees of the Rithet Cup—George Beck, George Burnes, Bob Peden and Kenny Hughes—to put up the trophy for a post-season series between the senior amateur league—the Sons of Canada, C.P.R., Eagles and United Commercial Travelers.

Owing to shortness of the playing season necessitated by the play-downs for the British Columbia championship the senior league terminates its schedule on July 13. Matt Hunter feels that the fans' enthusiasm for the popular Summer pastime should not be allowed to wane, and therefore is asked to gratify their desire for still more thrills at the Royal Athletic Park, with every prospect of success.

ANOTHER ANGLE
There is another angle to the Rithet Cup series contingent upon the C.P.R. team winning this year's pennant. It would be the third consecutive win and would give the railroaders permanent possession of the Rithet Cup, the prized goal of many amateur pilots and which was nearly won by Walter Lorimer's Elks several years ago. The antlered herd lost the third consecutive pennant in the final game with Yarrow's, then managed by George A. Beck.

The Rithet Cup was presented four years ago by Jack Rithet for competition between outlaw teams which were not entered in any organized league. The first year it was won by the Native Sons of Canada and has been held by them ever since, although last year it was not competed for.

Bishop Will Put On Boxing Bout In Capital Soon

Seattle Promoter, Though He Lost Out on Wrestling Match, Coming Back

A fine lacrosse game is looked for to-night when the Victoria Capital lacrosse team will meet the Victoria Hawks at the Victoria Athletic Club, commencing at 6.30 o'clock. This is the first time these teams have met this season, and a real battle is expected.

The Capital team will trot out a formidable array of stickhandlers. The soldiers have several of the best players in the city on their line-up, including former Victoria Mann Cup stars. Some new blood has also been introduced, so the Tommies are confident of scoring a win.

The Capitals need the win badly in order to get into even terms with Sidney for the leadership of the league. The Victoria team will use several of the intermediate players, and with these hitting a fast pace along with the veterans the Capitals should give the Garrison a tough battle.

EXPECT BIG CROWD
So far this year the senior league has received fine support from the fans. The games have all been keenly contested, with the teams showing plenty of enthusiasm. One of the largest crowds of the season is expected at the game this evening.

The teams will be as follows:
Capitals—Griffin, Kroeger, Johnson, Popham, Brynjolfson, Nute, McGregor, Pascoe, Oliver Macmurchie, Jack Taylor, Patterson, McInnes and John Taylor.

Garrison—Wingert, Weir, Redgrave, Kirk, Passmore, White, Russell, Sweeney, Nicol, Coulter, Wright, Noel and Hicks.

VERDICT FOR SILVER
San Francisco, July 4.—Jack Silver, San Francisco, lightweight, took a six-round decision over Frankie Tierney, of Los Angeles, in a one-sided match at Dreamland Rink here last night.

Puffy Wing, of Portland, won a technical K.O. over Larry Murphy, Los Angeles lightweight, in the second round of a scheduled four-round bout.

BOB GARDNER WINS
Chicago, July 4.—Robert A. Gardner, twice national amateur golf champion, for the second time in succession won the championship of the Chicago district golf association. In the final 18-hole match he defeated Tom Frayne, a public links player, over the Onwensville Club Links, 3 and 2. In the semi-finals he eliminated Rudy Knepper, former Princeton player.

WESTERN LEAGUE

At Columbus 6, Louisville 2.
At Kansas City 12, Milwaukee 2.
St. Paul-Minneapolis—not scheduled.

ARTHUR COMPSTON BEATS MITCHELL IN GREAT FINISH
Glenside, July 4.—A. E. W. Compston of Manchester won the Thousand Guineas golf tournament yesterday, defeating Abe Mitchell of the North Foreland Club, at Broadstairs by one hole after the latter had been five up in the last round of the thirty-six-hole match play for the prize money.

JACK BERESFORD DIAMOND SCULLS CHAMPION AGAIN

Manley, July 4.—Jack Beresford Jr., of London, won the Diamond Sculls in the Manley regatta to-day by defeating G. H. Gellan, of Leander Club. Beresford won the event last year.

The Leander Club eight successfully defended the grand challenge cup in the final heat of the event, defeating the Thames Club by a length in the record time of 6 minutes 53 seconds. The contest measures a mile and 500 yards.

Stan Coveleskie Wins Tenth Game For Washington

Pitched Brilliant Game Against Boston Yesterday; Yanks Win Close Game

Donohue Tames Giants and Reds Win; Pittsburgh and Athletics Fail

New York, July 4.—Two shutouts, one of them a thrilling pitchers' duel, featured the American League games yesterday. In the Yankee Athletics game here, Bob Shawkey and Sam Gray put on a mound duel that weakened the heart attack of thousands of fans. The Yankees scored the only run of the day in the fourth inning. The Athletics' pitcher, who circled the bases on hits by Meusel and Gehrig.

Stanley Coveleskie turned in his tenth pitching victory of the season for the champion Washington team in the contest at Boston. Twenty-one hits were bunched behind his brilliant hurling by the Senators, as the league leaders boosted their batting averages, trouncing the Red Sox 11-0.

Tiny Osborne stayed the bats of the Giants in the face of an opportunity to regain the National League leadership as Pittsburgh went down to an 8-0 defeat before fine pitching of Pete Donohue of Cincinnati. The Brooklyn-Louisville game was a single by the Cardinals, who won the Giants a three-run handicap in the first inning, shut them out in the remaining eight innings, and the Dodgers rushed home in the ninth to win by a single in the eighth after the bases had been filled.

DONOHUE PITCHES WELL
Four scattered hits constituted the limit of Pittsburgh batting liberty permitted by Donohue. Babe Adams, opposing Donohue, was driven from the mound with a four-run rally in the eighth while off Morrison, who succeeded Adams, the Reds made four more runs.

In the other games of the Nationals the Cardinals got six hits and beat the Cubs 10-8, scoring three runs in the tenth, while the Phillies gained at 10-6 victory over the Braves. Home runs by Bell, Bottomley, Frisbie and Hartnett featured the St. Louis-Chicago game.

After scoring five unearned runs in the first inning on Cleveland's errors, the White Sox had no trouble winning 10-6.

Detroit favored by steady pitching from Daus after the third inning, stepped away from St. Louis, 8-4.

FINALIS IN FRIDAY
On Friday morning, Aug. 23, the finals will be played. In the afternoon the annual team match, Canada vs. United States, for the Lieutenant Governor's cup, will be played. Prizes will be distributed on Friday afternoon and that evening the annual dinner will be held at the Union Club. The final meeting of the association will be held on Thursday.

It is expected that the biggest entry list in the history of the association will be compiled by the secretary. Interest is very keen among the veterans and the fact that there will be a big drawing card, the old form of having two days of medal play for the championship and the other day set aside for a bonus competition and the international match was looked upon with disfavor.

Veteran Golfers Arrange Tourney For Next Month

Seniors From All Parts of Pacific Northwest Will Compete For Title

For Third Year in Succession Capital is to Entertain Link Veterans

Veterans of the golf links are beginning to get giddy again as the time draws near for the tournament in which baldheads and greyheads can be pitted against each other and the youngsters, can be told to stay at home.

Capt. J. V. Perks, secretary of the Seniors Northwest Association announces that the third annual championship will be staged at the Victoria Golf Club on August 23, 26, 27 and 28. The tournament committee, under the chairmanship of Judge Lamson, of Victoria, has just completed the programme and it looks as though the veterans are going to have one grand and glorious week all to themselves.

This will be the third time that the tournament has been staged in Victoria. The veterans of the Northwest have a fondness for the Capital and they refuse to let their tournaments go elsewhere.

CHANGE STYLE OF PLAY
Another feature of the coming tournament will be the introduction of match play to decide the championship. In the previous tournaments the championship has been determined on medal play. The veterans played eighteen holes on two successive days and the man with the willow scored the lowest number of strokes was crowned the champion. The first year L. A. Lewis, of New Westminster, B.C., won, while Josiah Collins, of Seattle, was the victor in the year 1923.

This year there will be a qualifying round of eighteen holes. This will be played on Tuesday, Aug. 25. The sixteen best gross scores will qualify for the final championship, all classes. The next eight best will form "A" class to qualify for the Class "A" championship. The next eight will play "B" class. The next eight will play "C" class. All competitors failing to qualify in any of these classes will be formed into flights of eight.

On Wednesday, Aug. 26, the first round of the various championships and other flights will be played. In the afternoon the first round of the championship and first flight will be played.

On Thursday morning, Aug. 27, the semi-finals in all matches and flights will be played. In the afternoon there will be a twofold four-some competition, handicap, eighteen holes medal play.

FINALIS IN FRIDAY
On Friday morning, Aug. 28, the finals will be played. In the afternoon the annual team match, Canada vs. United States, for the Lieutenant Governor's cup, will be played. Prizes will be distributed on Friday afternoon and that evening the annual dinner will be held at the Union Club. The final meeting of the association will be held on Thursday.

It is expected that the biggest entry list in the history of the association will be compiled by the secretary. Interest is very keen among the veterans and the fact that there will be a big drawing card, the old form of having two days of medal play for the championship and the other day set aside for a bonus competition and the international match was looked upon with disfavor.

PLAYERS SELECTED To Play in P.N.W. Sectional Tourney
At a meeting of the committee of the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club held last night the following local players were chosen to represent Victoria in the Pacific Northwest sectional championships at Seattle, beginning July 20. W. M. Gordon, J. S. Proctor, G. E. N. McCallum, J. Cunningham (spare). The representatives in the junior events will be H. Harrison in the under eighteen, and A. S. Clist in the under fifteen, both Brentwood College boys.

The Canadian lawn tennis championships, which open at the Vancouver Lawn Tennis Club on Monday, are attracting the attention of tennis players all over Canada and the United States. The entry this year will be the largest ever received for a Canadian championship tournament, and will contain the names of Canada's best players and a large contingent of Americans anxious to gain fresh championships.

Miss Marjorie Leeming, last year's runner-up in both the Canadian and B.C. tournaments is again entered. She will play in the ladies' singles, ladies' doubles and mixed doubles. In the ladies' doubles she is paired with Miss Helen Taitlow, ex-Vancouver city champion, and in the mixed doubles she will be partnered by John Proctor. Miss Leeming is looked upon as a strong contender for this year's title, as her game has improved a great deal.

Miss Mary Campbell and Mrs. McGovern and Hope Leeming, junior champion, are other Victoria entries, and can be counted upon to make a good showing in all events. Miss "Dot" Symons of Halifax who has been playing at the Victoria Club for the past three months, will also play in Vancouver.

HOW TO IMPROVE YOUR TENNIS

By WILLIAM T. TILDEN, 2nd

THE OVERHEAD

The circle of strokes in now complete with the overhead smash. We opened our discussion with a service and we close it with a similar stroke—the smash. This shot is the joy of tennis galleries. It is the stroke that made Maurice McLaughlin's fame ring around the world. It is the shot that today makes Gerald Patterson world-famous. It is the hokum standby of tennis.

The smash is not the most difficult shot in the game, but it is certainly the most sensational, and often one of the most effective.

The rule of footwork, position and direction that govern the volley will suffice for the overhead. The feature alone is different. The swing should be closely allied to the slice service.

Most missed overhead shots are due to the eye leaving the ball, but a second class of errors is due to lack of confidence that gives a cramped, half-hearted swing. Follow through your overhead shot to the limit of your swing.

The overhead is essentially a doubles shot, because in singles the chances of passing the net man are greater than lobbing over his head, while in doubles two men cover the net so easily that the best way to open the court is to lob one man back.

In smashing the longest distance is the safest shot, since it allows a greater margin of error. Therefore smash across court when pressed, but pull your shot lobs to either side, as determined by the man you are playing.

Flight of Time Won Horse Race

New York, July 4—W. J. Salmon's Flight of Time won the $10,000 Tremont Stakes, one of the feature events at Aqueduct today, with Sarmaticus second and Mars third.

The victor went to the post a big favorite. The time for the six furlongs was 1:13.

If it is true, Dempsey is doing a song and dance act on the stage then you can bet he'll never fight again.

Some one will shoot him.

Conditions Right Now For Heavyweight Bout

Great Bally-hoo Could be Built up Around Match for Title; Tunney is Ready to Meet Champion, But

Question is Will Dempsey Fight Again? Reports Say He is Very Fat, Has Softened up a Lot and His Nose Will Not Stand Punishment

By ROBERT EGDREN

There have been rumors, but nobody knows yet whether or not Dempsey will ever enter the ring again. Mrs. D. wants him to forget fighting and become a movie actor. But will he?

For the first time since the Carpenter fight conditions are just right for a wonderful ballyhoo over a world's championship match that would draw another million and a half dollar gate—even more.

Hundreds of thousands in America, who never followed boxing very closely before are interested in the swift advance of Gene Tunney. Tunney has literally an army of friends, and the opinion that he can beat Dempsey has grown day by day since the sweltering evening at the Polo Grounds when Gene knocked out Tommy Gibbons.

A Dempsey-Tunney match would have the ready-made ballyhoo. Dempsey-Carpenter fight was boomed as a match between the champion who didn't go to war and a picturesque French boy with a war record and a habit of knocking out English champions in the first round. There was still an undercurrent of prejudice against Dempsey. Although a court decision had cleared his record and Dempsey's own personality had made friends for him wherever he appeared, many Americans who sat in the Jersey Bowl were more than willing to see the American champion knocked out.

PREJUDICE DISAPPEARED
At the time of the Firpo fight the prejudice against Dempsey had almost disappeared and it was seldom spoken of after the furious battle in which he knocked out the invader after being knocked through the ropes himself.

If Dempsey had gone on fighting after the Firpo bout his popularity might have been at its peak to-day. But he didn't go on fighting.

Dempsey's end of the purse in the Carpenter fight was $300,000, and in the Firpo fight was $475,000. Taxes and a fifty-fifty split with Manager Kearns didn't leave much of this for Dempsey, and his expenses as champion were heavy; but he made money on the stage and in pictures, and as his prosperity increased Manager Kearns raised the price for Dempsey's services until even Tex Rickard threw up his hands and quit.

As a fighter Dempsey might have held the public fancy, but the public that supports boxing soon grew weary of much talk and no action. When, after a couple of years of ring idleness, Dempsey and his nose re-modeled, married a moving picture star, stopped his usual training, ditched his manager and went on a trip to Europe, the public began looking around to see who could take Dempsey's place.

TUNNEY HAS HOST OF BACKERS
Right here, Tunney who had been doing some very fair fighting and improving steadily, knocked out Tommy Gibbons.

Tunney has all the qualifications to make an interesting "contender." He is a very unusually intelligent fellow for a fighter and "as clean as a hound's tooth" morally. That makes him a rather picturesque figure anywhere under modern conditions, but is hardly enough to base a ballyhoo on.

Tunney was also a veteran of the World War—and a volunteer in the fighting Marines that As a volunteer, a veteran, a very pleasing fellow, a first-class fighter with a good punch, and the man who has knocked out and knocked out Gibbons, Tunney has arrived. For three or four years Harry Wills, a large, dark gentleman who also takes good care of himself, has been patiently waiting for Dempsey. But as a picturesque figure and natural stuff for a successful ballyhoo, Wills isn't in it for anything.

Gene Tunney, Wills has permitted to dodge any real fight for a long, long time. He has taken on a few soft ones, and he hasn't shown up very well at that. He has been a "space grabber," and he's no longer "good copy."

WANT DEMPSEY STOPPED
Within a few days after knocking out Gibbons, Gene received several hundred telegrams and letters of congratulation from war veterans all of whom expressed a wish that Gene would knock Dempsey kicking.

If Tunney could win the championship he'd be a sensation and a big money maker for everybody concerned for at least a couple of years. Probably he'd go the way of all other holders of the big title since Jeffries' day, and do a lot more posing than fighting. But at least, he'd give the fight fans a few thrills, and thrills are two years apart in the heavyweight class under Dempsey.

This brings us back to considering Dempsey's case. If he wants it, Dempsey can have a match that will draw at least a million, of which he'd get a good share even if he still has to split with Kearns under the old contract. If Dempsey is still Dempsey he could knock out Tunney or anyone else, and go back to the easy life again. If he isn't the old Dempsey, very likely Tunney would bring the championship to the Marines.

There is a possibility that Dempsey has gone back too far, and knows it. He has certainly changed his mode of living entirely in the past two years.

When Dempsey was a boy he worked hard at all sorts of tough jobs. There was no truth in the story that he was a hobo. He was always the one boy in the Dempsey family on whom his mother could depend for support, and that means that he worked hard whenever he could get a job. He didn't get that magnificent physique of his losing around corner cigar stores and poolrooms.

Until he won the championship, Dempsey fought—every couple of weeks or so, which kept him hard and tough. He was tireless and he didn't care how much he was hurt. In his first Eastern fight of any consequence, with Carl Morris at Buffalo, Dempsey was repeatedly struck damaging "roll" blows. "This fight is a disgrace," said Morris. Dempsey begged him to let the fight go on until he could knock Morris out.

After beating Willard, Dempsey didn't fight every couple of weeks. He went back to business to try to get the title for small money, and Manager Jack Kearns developed so much business sense that Dempsey had to hire a bunch of big, tough sporting partners and keep right on training for a year at a time, between fights, to get exercise enough to feel fit.

LIKED ROUGH STUFF
Between fights Dempsey often went on long hard hunting trips. The rougher the going the more he enjoyed them. He crossed deserts, forests, wild country, on foot and carrying a bigger pack than any other in the party. He wanted the rough stuff.

Now and then Dempsey worked in a moving picture. He softened his face with grease paint and became a "make-up" expert. The movie crowd took the place of guides and hunters. In the end he had his nose beautifully and went over entirely to hotel and cafe life, although he never did, and doesn't yet, drink liquor, smoke or fall for any of the direct dissipations. He stopped the daily boxing he kept up for several years, and trained spasmodically when he felt that he was growing a little fat.

They say that on the way to Europe Jack boxed with some of the ship's crew, and some sailor slammed him on the back, and the old back that used to weather anybody's punch before it was re-molded, was a good deal softer than it was before someone thought of putting a cake of ice on the back of Jack's neck to stop it from bleeding. It was a very inconvenient to fight along with a bleeding nose. If

Don Carrick Leads In Canadian Golf Finals at Ottawa

Junior Champion of Canada Two up on Sommerville at End of Morning Round

Youngster Goes Around in 76 While His Opponent Takes Two More Strokes

Ottawa, July 4—Don Carrick, youthful golfer of the Scarborough Club, Toronto, was leading C. Ross Sommerville of the London Hunt Club, two up at the end of the first eighteen holes of the final for the Canadian Amateur golf champion here this morning.

Smarter iron work and a steadiness on the green accounted for the Carrick margin. Sommerville, usually at his best with the putter, failed to play up to his form in the short game and frequently lost chances to win holes or halves by falling down on the easiest short ones, after having made beautiful approach putts. Carrick gave the impression of being stronger generally, with apparently more tricks in his bag than Sommerville, but the London player finished strong on the last few holes this morning, and if he maintains his improving standard, may yet make a stubborn battle of it.

Both started out this morning with excellent golf, birdies featuring the first two holes, but the rain overnight had rendered the greens a trifle holding and the two had just got used to the changed conditions.

The morning cards:
Carrick out 4 2 6 5 4 3 4 4 4—36.
Sommerville out 4 3 4 6 5 4 4 3 6—39.
Carrick in 3 4 5 5 5 4 4 4—40-76.
Sommerville in 3 4 3 5 4 5 5 5 5—39-78.

Ottawa, July 4—Don Carrick of Scarborough, Toronto, junior Canadian champion, sang a 13-foot putt on the 36th hole in his match with Norman K. Scott of Montreal for a birdie four and won his way into the final of the Canadian amateur golf championship here yesterday afternoon. This gave Carrick the match, one up.

It was a sterling battle with Scott. Carrick led until the 23th hole, where Carrick squared the match, after being three down in the morning. They halved the next six holes, and Carrick won the match on the 36th hole.

He meets C. Ross Sommerville of London in the final to-day. Sommerville defeated J. A. Cameron, Rivermede, Ottawa, 7 and 6 in the other match.

The Sommerville-Cameron match produced the best round of the morning, and was a see-saw affair until the 14th hole, with first one and then the other in the lead. Sommerville was one over par going out and one under coming in, for a par 75.

Pool work on the greens in the last four holes, however, cost Cameron those holes. Both played excellent driving games, getting good distance and accuracy, but he'll always be in trouble on three of his tee shots. Their approaches were well played. But in some instances their handling of the putter was weak.

a sailor's tap did that, what would one of Tunney's jabs do?

DEMPSEY MAY SPRING SURPRISE
Probably Dempsey doesn't know himself whether he'll fight again or not. He has been out a long time, and Kearns kept him idle until he began to slide back. The Dempsey of Toledo never would have been hit on the chin by Firpo's first wild swing from the ankles. Perhaps Dempsey feels that he has gone back enough in the past two years to be hit by any first man. If so, he'll show good sense if he passes up the chances for a match with a grand ballyhoo, all ready to start, and retire permanently. He'll always money he's saved and what he can make in the future as a retired undefeated champion. He can't get any half-millions, but he'll always be able to wear clothes and pay his board bills.

If Dempsey is going to "come back" he'd better make it soon. An ex-champion who has been out a long time, and who comes back and tries to "out-clever" the younger fellows, is always a sorry sight. Remember Johnny Kilbane with Critch? Kilbane was clever enough when he was good, but he looked like a plaid and flabby pastry-cook that night. They all do, after they've been living softly a few years.

MAYBE HE'LL BE MAD
After all, Dempsey has given us a few great thrills, and there are few who have followed his career who'd care to see him come out again, slow, fat, soft, bleeding at a touch; a sloppy caricature of the old Dempsey. I'd rather not see Dempsey in a ring again.

I prefer to carry the picture of Dempsey as he was at Toledo, clean, sun-blackened, tearing the tremendous Willard apart like a rag doll. Or, as he plunged headlong back through the ropes after being knocked out of the ring dazed and groggy, to watch him start again, until the bell, and then come back clear-headed and confident to knock Firpo out as soon as the second round began.

But is Dempsey fat and soft, as European reports say? For my part, knowing Dempsey's relentless energy when he starts anything, I wouldn't be surprised to see him slip back into New York one of these days, lean, brown, from Indiana, quietly in some sequestered corner of Europe, made clear, through because of the criticism that has followed him all over the world, and ready to fight anybody or anything without waiting for "a million dollar purse." If that happens—look out!

MANY MOTORISTS ARE ATTRACTED TO CAMP

The warm Summer days of the past few weeks have routed out the old camping bug from his Winter quarters and he is again at large in search of new victims.

Favorable weather conditions have called him from his Winter nap, and he is now in an extremely ugly mood and will attack anyone who crosses his path and without a second warning.

The weather must be just right before this insect begins his yearly incursions. Take a day of the Spring with a crisp morning mixed with a lazy Summer afternoon and the bug is on its way, picking out its victims, biting all whom he chances to encounter.

A peculiar thing about this epidemic is that no one seems to take steps to prevent being bitten. In fact, his approach is welcomed by all. After the victim has been stung, he is done for and he falls under a strange spell. He will sit at his desk staring out of the window for hours at a time, his mind on anything except work. Everything goes wrong—everyday tasks that usually seem minute, look up like mountains and as warmer days approach and reports of limit catches of mountain trout fall on his ears, he becomes worse and as a last resort, the old family physician is summoned—old Doc Open Road.

His case is filled with strange medicines. Here are boxes of mountain roads; phials of warm weather, of fleecy clouds and blue skies. Lakes filled with bass and mountain streams of trout are included in his kit—all to be used in the treatment of the patient. A few weeks of the doctor's medicines and the patient is convalescing nicely. Another few days and he is normal, the treatments end and he is ready for work until the past year.

SLIPPING INTO NEUTRAL

When the gears acquire the habit of slipping back into neutral from high or second the trouble is due to the shifter forks. If they are worn the gears will not always be fully engaged, and where there is considerable strain or vibration (as in climbing a steep hill in second) it will be necessary to hold the shifter lever in the desired position. Misalignment of the forks will often cause the gears to slip back to neutral from any position, particularly annoying in the case of slippage from high to neutral when descending grades. If the trouble is confined to the latter, and in slight, it can often be overcome by avoiding sudden application of power or brakes, and by gentle handling of the clutch.

SPARE TIRES

When stranded without a good tire and tube and one cannot be secured, fill the old casing, after removing the tube, with grass, rope or anything to fill space. This will carry the car to the garage and save running on the rims or felloe band, which might ruin the rim or wheel.

ROAD DELEGATES TO DISCUSS TAXES

The special committee of the Canadian Good Roads' association, under the chairmanship of S. L. Squire, has drawn up a tentative programme for the annual convention which will be held this year at the city of Quebec on September 22, 23 and 24 next.

It is planned to bring before the delegates, by means of papers and discussions, some of the most important problems dealing with road construction, the financial obligations attached thereto, and the vital question of maintenance in view of the tendency of modern traffic to spread to districts off the main traveled routes.

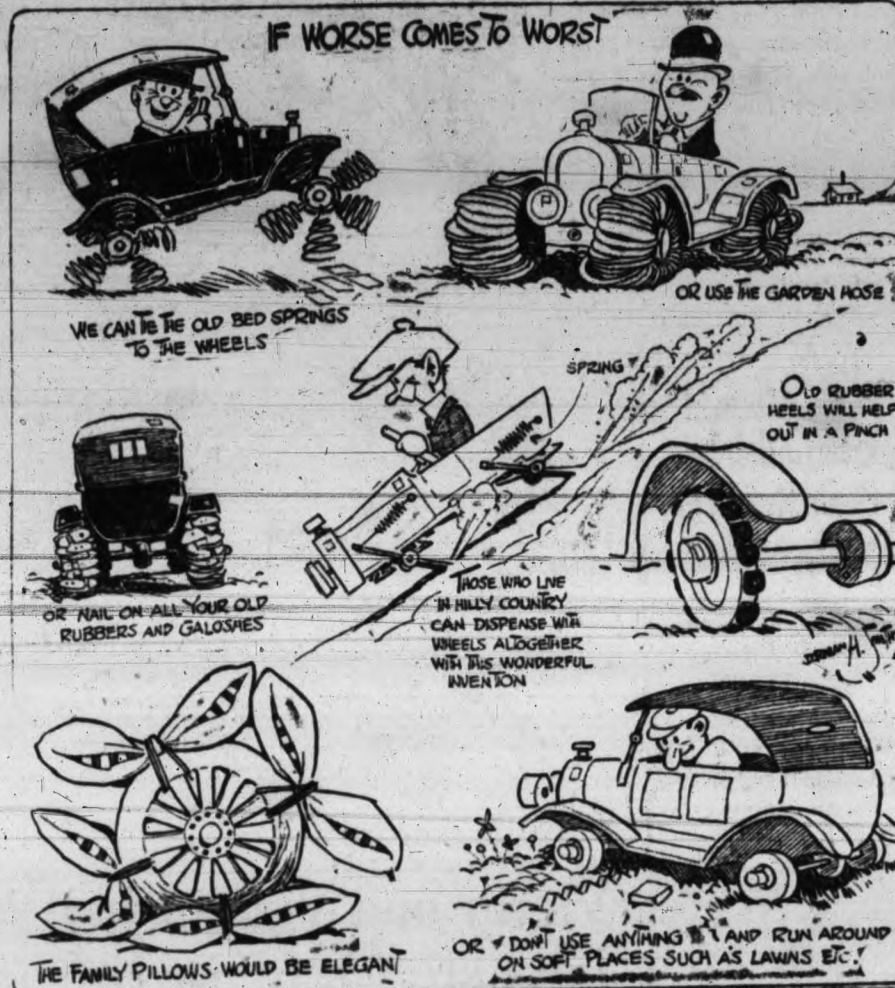

One of the most important papers that will be submitted will deal with equitable taxation for highway construction and maintenance, and this will provide scope for discussion as to the best way of levying such taxation and the proportion that each section of the community shall bear. The burden of highway building and maintenance is a problem that is causing anxiety to many municipalities, and those who are desirous of placing the cost on the shoulders of those who benefit by the use of such roads will have ample opportunity to make their views known at the convention. This paper has a bearing on another paper entitled "What we have learned from the traffic census," which will give the municipal authorities a great deal of valuable data to aid them in regulating the use and restricting the abuse of the highways. The efforts that have been made to secure the continuance of federal aid, and the results achieved in Canada and the United States to date will be reviewed in another paper, which will cover the situation from all sides, and point out the ways and means for promoting a continuance of the grants which had been granted in the Dominion. Another subject of general interest will be that dealing with dust, elimination on gravel roads. For many years to come the majority of the highways in Canada must of necessity be gravel, and one of the problems confronting the engineers is the elimination of the dust nuisance. Eminent engineers have given this subject much study and the results of various experiments will be placed before the convention by competent authorities.

Provincial maintenance systems will also come under review, and due to the widening area of general traffic this is a question that will be of particular interest to municipal authorities. There will be also papers dealing with the principal permanent types of construction, such as bitumen, cement, and so on. Practice in road construction in other parts of the world will also be brought before the convention, for in addition to a representative of the English Road Board who will speak on the highways of Europe, the association is inviting the executive of the American Road Builders' association to hold a conference during the convention in order that there may be an opportunity for the exchange of knowledge and ideas on highway matters with them.

The question of the opening and maintaining of Winter roads, not only in the vicinity of the big cities, where motor traffic is carried on throughout the year, but in the sub-arctic and outlying municipalities will also be brought forward and some

THE RUBBER SITUATION IS GROWING SERIOUS

OWNERS SHOULD BE CAREFUL OF THEFT

"In the event of your automobile being stolen would you be in a position to positively identify it to the satisfaction of the authorities when located, even if the thieves had made unusual efforts to disguise it?"

"This is a problem as old as the industry itself and is one that will never be solved except by the owners of automobiles. The manufacturers have wrestled with it for years, and the steps taken by them are undoubtedly more complete than will be found in any other class of manufactured products."

"Every frame, every body, every motor and transmission, and every axle, every tire and steering gear, and many other units bear the factory serial number, cast, forged or stamped into it. And for a time this precaution was an effective means of identifying a stolen car."

"But automobile thieves have found the stealing of cars so profitable that they have devised an amount of work and cunning to their practice that is worthy of a much better cause. It is a matter of common knowledge that they will steal two or more of the same make of cars, switch the various units about from one to another, obliterate some of the serial numbers and change others, so that eventually these numbers in many cases are almost useless from the standpoint of the rightful owner."

"That is a condition that cannot be controlled at the factory. Similarly it cannot be controlled by the owner. But there is a way for the owner to get around it. He can put some private marks in obscure places on his car where they will not be likely to be detected, or if detected will not be regarded seriously by the thief. But as long as the owner continues to leave the mark on any other car of the same make, otherwise it is not a positive means of identification."

"A private mark, to be a private mark, must be unique—it must be different from the mark on any other car of the same make, otherwise it is not a positive means of identification."

DEFECTIVE BRAKES

Brakes that aren't adjusted and equalized, rattle, chatter and squeak. The tread of one or more of your tires is soon worn down; the frame of the car is distorted with strain; the wheels lose their perfect alignment. Brakes should be adjusted every thirty days.

NEW JEWETT SIX SETS FINE RECORD

Spokane to Los Angeles, a distance of 1,549 miles, in forty-five hours and forty minutes running, time is the latest record reported to the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company for its new Jewett Six. The information was about to be filed away with a mass of other records held by the Jewett when further down on the page was observed the information that the record was made by two girls, Misses Jeanne Robideau and Catherine Narup. The car is owned by Miss Robideau. The two girls left Spokane with the avowed intention of breaking the overland record and succeeded by several hours, according to the report from Los Angeles. Miss Robideau was on the road for two days previous to the start of the record-breaking run and it was only against the advice of her physician that she attempted the trip. Miss Narup was going to California to recuperate from a strenuous Winter devoted to music.

The start was made from Spokane at 8:50 a.m. Monday, April 6. They had laid out a schedule and were considerably depressed when they found themselves five hours late in Portland, having been forced to make two long unexpected detours en route. Grimly determined to get back on schedule, the girls stopped only an hour in Portland and at 2 p.m. on Tuesday they were away again. Eleven hours after entering the state of Oregon they were crossing its boundary line into California.

Reading, California was reached at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. By this time both of the girls were so exhausted that they were driving only two hours at a stretch, then changing places, one sleeping and the other handling the Jewett.

Sacramento was reached at 2:30 a.m. Wednesday. Coffee helped them brace up a bit here and they were off again in a few minutes.

Bakersfield was reached at noon Wednesday. It took the girls from 10 o'clock that afternoon until 4:45 reaching the city limits of Los Angeles, where they were met by a guide car which took them through the city to the Western Union office, where the girls officially checked their time. The total elapsed time was fifty-seven hours and fifty-seven minutes. Twelve hours and seven minutes were spent in changing tires, replenishing fuel and grabbing a sandwich or two.

The girls reported that the Jewett Six touring car used seventy-six gallons of gasoline on the trip, an average of better than twenty miles to the gallon. Six quarts of oil were placed in the tank prior to the start and no mechanical trouble of any kind developed.

Jack up one of the wheels of the car and spin the wheel. Then take a wrench and tighten all the rim nuts. Tires may be wearing out at a fast rate due to the fact that the rim is not tight on the wheel.

OAKLAND MOTORS TO PLAN SECOND SERIES

E. V. Joffe, M. L. Buck and J. H. Vickers, instructors in the sales development department of the Oakland Motor Car Company, are again planning a nation-wide tour among Oakland distributors and dealers to present a second course in better salesmanship and merchandising. The date has not yet definitely set when they will reach Seattle.

The first schools earlier in the year were held in the large centres and lasted a week each. So enthusiastically were they received and so many letters from dealers warmly commended the work that it was decided to start a new series of schools immediately.

The second series will differ from the first in that each will last but two days, with the result, however, that there virtually will be three times the number of schools. In other words, the schools will be brought right to the dealers' "front doors."

The routings of the schools among the twenty-two sales districts will be made by the various district managers. It is expected that it will take well into September to cover all the Oakland dealers.

"This school will be primarily for dealers," explained W. M. Chamberlain, director of sales development at Oakland, "although we are glad to have the presence of all salesmen who desire to attend. It is intended to help the dealers to train their own salesmen and emphasize such things as prospect list, salesmen and prospect control system, demonstrations and conduct of the showroom. In addition, the selling problems of each dealer will be taken up and the particular application of our various forms and charts made on the ground."

TWO POINTERS ON PARTS

A V-shape fan belt is not likely to slip even if it is loose, for it nearly twice the friction surface of a flat belt, their sizes being equal. After grinding valves of an old engine the car may not run slowly in high gear for a time without bucking a little. Air works past the valve stems through the guides which, though worn before the job, were clogged with carbon, dirt and oil and

JUNE RECORD SET BY GREGORY COMPANY

Sales reports of the Gregory Tire and Rubber Company Limited for the month of May show a far greater volume than in any previous month since the company went into business. This result is attributed by Assistant General Manager W. E. McCormick to the consistent, high quality of the tires and tubes now being turned out by the Gregory plant, and also the reorganized and extended system of distributing and selling.

dustry, with its extensive modern plant at Port Coquitlam, B. C., has made rapid and substantial progress this season. Sales are increasing by leaps and bounds, and the factory is working at high pressure to keep pace with demands at the many distributing points in British Columbia and throughout the provinces.

In conjunction with its wide distribution and selling organization, the Gregory company is conducting an extensive advertising campaign, the results of which so far have been most gratifying. Mr. McCormick states. He has recently made a tour of the prairie cities, and states that everywhere Gregory products are more than holding their own, in spite of very keen competition.

How weak a thing is gentility if it wants virtue.

What You Should Know About the Starting System

It is not so very long ago that the usual starter used on an automobile was a good strong arm applied to the starting crank in front of the radiator. Today we simply step into the driving seat, press our foot on a small button and the engine turns over immediately. Few owners give much thought to the hard working little unit that does the work we formerly performed ourselves when the engine required starting. As a matter of fact the starting system requires very little attention, but intelligent operation of the starting motor will very often save the cost of a new battery or expensive repairs to the starting unit.

When the starting motor is operated to start a cold engine it drains current out of the battery at the rate of about 200 amperes. Even with a warm engine it requires about 150 amperes to start and about 100 amperes to keep the engine turning over. Most people now know something about radio and if I explain that 200 amperes of current is sufficient to operate, at the same time, 200 four-tube radio receivers, you will realize that 200 amperes of current is a lot of "juice."

If the starting motor is used excessively, that is used every time the engine is started on a large number of very short runs, it will not take long to run down the battery. But there are other things that will also reduce the efficiency of the starter. You will note that the wires leading from the battery to the starting switch and from the switch to the starting motor are very heavy, much thicker in fact than the ignition wires. The reason for this is that a very large amount of current is required to operate the starting motor and thin wires would not carry sufficient current. Suppose, however, that one of the battery connections is corroded or that the contact on the starter switch is dirty or burned badly, you will set up a high resistance in the circuit that will prevent the current flowing freely to the starting motor, causing it to operate very slowly. If you find that your starter does not turn over the engine as fast as it formerly did, examine the battery and switch connections to see that they are clean and tight.

Practically all starting motors use the Bendix drive to connect the starting motor to the engine, and an understanding of its operation is helpful.

Mounted on an extension of the armature which comes through from the starting motor is a long sleeve, part of which has a coarse screw thread cut on it. A stiff spring connects this shaft to the sleeve. Running loosely on the screw thread is a weighted pinion. When the starting motor switch is pressed, the armature shaft on the motor starts revolving, but owing to the weight on the side of the pinion it does not revolve but screws itself along the coarse screw thread until it engages the teeth on the flywheel.

As soon as it is meshed with the teeth on the flywheel the stop prevents further movement forward on the sleeve. The spring connecting the armature shaft to the sleeve now winds up about half a turn and takes the sudden shock of applying the power of the starting motor to the flywheel and the engine starts turning. As long as the starting motor is revolving the engine, the pinion will remain in engagement with the flywheel. Immediately the engine starts to fire, however, the flywheel gear will drive the pinion faster than the sleeve is revolving, and the screw thread then carries it out of mesh with the teeth on the flywheel. If the threads on the sleeve are dirty the pinion will not move along it freely. Clean them occasionally with some kerosene. This is all the attention the Bendix drive requires.

Save your starter and battery as much strain as possible by keeping your engine tuned up so that it starts readily. If you use your car for a large number of short runs, during which the engine is used frequently, have a good starting and lighting mechanic raise the charging rate on the generator so that your battery will always have a full charge.

MODESTLY SHRINKS FROM CUPID'S ROLE RECORD MONTH FOR HUDSON AND ESSEX MOTORS

Denver Station KOA Strikes Against Serving as Matrimonial Matchmaker

Radio may be faced with the whole-sale responsibility of solving matrimonial problems for enterprising spinsters and bachelors of the country, if the Spring rush on KOA, at Denver, is any criterion.

Regardless of growing demands from correspondents in the unmarried class, officials of the Rocky Mountain broadcasting station, have adopted a strict matrimonial policy of "hands off" in declining the responsibility of finding mates.

Ohio ranks first in the number of correspondents appealing to the General Electric Station for guidance in the matrimonial field, with Iowa taking second place and Washington third.

YOUTHFUL WISDOM

An Illinois girl gives her age as eighteen and advises she could settle down with "any nice man, if such a creature exists." She adds further, "I have never been able to run across one yet." A Cincinnati maiden declares she is "very good looking and quite popular among the younger set," and a high school girl in Iowa who furnishes a photograph and complete description, suggests, "I suppose I am counted as old fashioned because my hair is not bobbed." Another correspondent from the same state says, "I have bobbed hair and am five feet six inches tall."

ALL ARE WELCOME

From an Oregon lumber camp a bachelor writes "women are very scarce here and I am looking for someone to write to. Please forward some names." An ex-soldier asks KOA to supply him with names of pretty Denver girls, and a Colorado rancher wants to hear from a girl who cares about living in the country.

A Hartford, Conn., correspondent wrote a lengthy letter to the broadcasting station after finishing a book of romance which "has such a beautiful ending" and a Frankfort, Ky., correspondent advises that she is "just past thirty; sews, loves music and reads books."

CAREERS OF MOTOR MEN ARE COMPARED

Greatness of Henry Ford Seen in Walter P. Chrysler's Progress

Announcement here to-day by Thomas Plimley, local distributor for Maxwell-Chrysler automobiles, that the volume of Maxwell-Chrysler sales is exceeding $120,000,000 per year, emphasizes the amazing growth of the organization headed by Walter P. Chrysler. Within four years, under Mr. Chrysler's leadership it has grown to be one of the largest American industrial concerns. The strides it has made, and its known plans for the future, have resulted in recent weeks in numerous comparisons of the careers of the automotive industry's two foremost men, Henry Ford and Mr. Chrysler himself.

For a dozen years the identity of the latter was largely submerged in his work. Within the industry itself he was widely known as a master of production—second only to Mr. Ford in the magnitude of his operations. CAREERS SIMILAR But to the world at large, until a few years ago, he was almost an unknown quantity. Then with startling suddenness and speed his name began to assume a large importance. To the public it seemed the beginning of a very successful and intensely interesting career. Actually it was the culmination before the public eye of a long period of preparation behind the scenes of a score of gigantic manufacturing operations. Like Henry Ford, Chrysler had humble beginnings. His first work was that of an engine wiper in a western railroad roundhouse in the little town of Ellis, Kans., where he was born. Like Mr. Ford he was, and is, highly individual, highly national, and always interesting. The two names began to link themselves together.

Quick to utilize comparisons, those in the industry who know both men began to parallel the careers of Ford and Chrysler. With bluntness comparable to that of Mr. Ford, Walter Chrysler disposes of this question in a few short sentences. "Henry Ford," he said the other day, "is pre-eminent. He pre-empted his particular field beyond hope of rivalry. Only one man in a generation can hope to contribute so much to the economic well being of the world. I am perfectly conscious that a comparison of my career with his is a compliment and of value—but I cherish no delusions. He stands alone and always will."

Men in close touch with the automotive industry still marvel at the progress the Chrysler made in the year following its presentation to the public. Before its introduction many were frankly skeptical. It was the opinion of most of the best informed men that a new car could not be produced and win a major place because of conditions existing in the industry. Yet the Chrysler was accepted by the motoring public as no car had ever been accepted before in its first year. In that year it attained a volume, both in numbers of cars produced and in sales in dollars that exceeded those of any other car ever made.

Habeas Corpus Plan is Tried

Toronto, July 4.—Application has been made for a writ of habeas corpus for the production of Catherine Dunn, a maid of the home of Ambrose J. Small in 1912, on behalf of Florence Small, sister of the theatrical magnate, who has been missing since December, 1915, and is presumed to be dead. Miss Dunn was committed to the Whitby Hospital for the Insane shortly after Small's disappearance, and she disappeared from the hospital in June last year.

LOS ANGELES, July 4.—The wire chief of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company's toll lines here said that owing to recurring earthquakes at Santa Barbara the telegraph instruments of the Associated Press in The Daily News building there were being moved outside. The wires, however, were still intact.

TOURIST STREAM TO B.C. IN FULL SWING

Seattle, July 4.—Figures made public here on a check of northbound automobiles on the Pacific Highway between Tacoma and Vancouver, B. C., Tuesday showed forty per cent of all the cars bore California license plates and fifty per cent carried foreign licenses. An average of 240 cars passed every hour, with three persons to an automobile. The Puget Sound and British Columbia Associated, a co-operative group representing the Chambers of Commerce of Victoria and Vancouver, B.C., and Bellingham, Tacoma and Seattle, conducted an advertising campaign in California and the check was made to learn what results had been obtained.

Cigar Connoisseur Here, Lands Bliss of Just Right Smoke

The bliss of smoking cigars, not too light, or on the other hand, not too strong, but just right, that is half way between the extremes, is being extolled to newspaper reporters here by a connoisseur of cigar smoking in the person of J. Z. Horter of Cuba, who is here to-day on a trip through Western Canada. Mr. Horter says he is an expert on cigar smoking, but is not even in the tobacco business, being an importer of agricultural implements. But Cuba, he points out, is the centre of the world's cigar trade, and he, himself, as a true Cuban, who has studied the art of smoking all his life, knows when a good cigar is just right. "If you smoke too light, or too strong a cigar, you don't get the real aroma," Mr. Horter said. Because the best people throughout the world have taken to Cuban cigars, business in that country is good, Mr. Horter declared.

Edmonton, July 4.—Pouring forth clouds of gas and dust, shooting sand at intervals with the extreme pressure from the bowels of the earth, No. 11 well of the Northwestern Utilities Gas Company "came in" as a big producer at Viking, Alta., on Friday afternoon. It is estimated the well is producing at the rate of 2,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day.

TIMES CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

Only two or three words in this puzzle may hold you up for a while. But they are crossed by such easy words that there should be no difficulty in discovering the hard ones.

Cross-word Puzzle 2356

HOW TO SOLVE THE CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

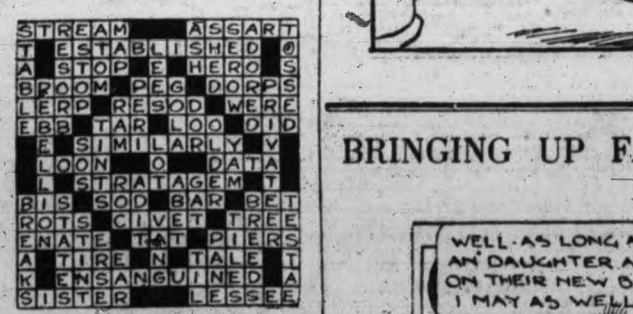

Every number in the form represents the beginning of a word, reading either horizontally or vertically. If there is a black square to the left of the number, the word is horizontal; if above it, the word is vertical. The same number may appear in both a horizontal and a vertical position. The definitions for the correct words to fill the form are found below, with numbers corresponding to those on the form. Run through the definitions till you find one that you recognize, and put it in its proper place on the form, one letter for each white square. This will furnish several cross-clues to the words linking with it at right angles. Continue in this manner till the form is completely filled. If you have solved the puzzle correctly it should read both horizontally and vertically with words corresponding to the definitions. The correct solution of to-day's puzzle will be printed in the next issue of The Times.

TREATY RATIFICATION

Paris, July 4.—The two treaties relating to China which were drawn up during the Washington conference were recommended yesterday for ratification by the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Deputies. Foreign Minister Briand requested this action be taken. The first of the treaties relates to policies to be followed by foreign powers in safeguarding the rights and interests of China and in stabilizing conditions in the country. The second provides for revision of Chinese customs duties in order to bring about increased revenue for the Chinese Government.

TO GIVE ABDUCTION RULING NEXT WEEK

Point Grey Magistrate Will Decide After Preliminary Hearing on Wong Charge

Vancouver, July 4.—Points brought out by defence counsel yesterday in applications for dismissal of accused persons at the preliminary hearing of abduction charges before Magistrate George R. McQueen in the Point Grey police court caused a further adjournment until 2:30 next Thursday afternoon, at which time it is expected the magistrate will render his decision whether or not to commit for trial those under arrest and under summons in connection with the alleged abduction of the Chinese houseboy, Wong Poon Sing.

A. S. Matthews, one of those summoned, was released by the court, there being no evidence against him brought out at the hearing, and A. M. Johnson, K.C., and H. S. Wood, counsel for the Crown, withdrawing the information.

MUCH EVIDENCE
The adjournment to next Thursday was made to enable the magistrate to review the evidence, the transcript of which will not be ready until that time.

Arguments on the applications for dismissal of the charges against their clients were made by Alex. Henderson, K.C., representing the police commissioners of Point Grey and police officers of the municipality, and by J. Pittman Hogg, representing Mrs. F. S. Stratton and David Patterson, officers of the council of the Scottish Societies.

Application for lower bail in the case of the Robinsons, father and son, who with V. W. Norton, are in jail on the abduction charges, was made by Joseph Oliver, their counsel, who declared with some heat: "It is unfair that some and not all should be confined. Bail in the case of my clients has been set at $10,000—an amount that cannot be raised."

No application was made in the case of J. S. Cowper, one of those under summons, but his counsel, Walter E. Haskins, made a statement to the court, saying he was not making an application at this time, but an explanation that "any knowledge had by Mr. Cowper about the abduction was obtained by him in his newspaper connection," and his client was not only willing but anxious to go before a jury and tell what he knew about this abduction.

POLICE TESTIFIED
Sergeant Neil Macpherson and Sergeant Edward Munro of the Point Grey police were called by Alex. Henderson, following the announcement by Mr. Johnson, special Crown prosecutor, that the case for the Crown was ended.

Sergeant Macpherson's testimony was that on instructions from Police Chief Murdoch he and Munro had gone to the appointed place on Twenty-fifth Avenue and there met Police Commissioner Henderson, who had told them to proceed to a point west, and there they were met by Norton and the Chinese prisoner. Sergeant Macpherson drove the car after Norton and the Chinese had got aboard, and Sergeant Munro sat in the back seat with Norton and Wong. After delivering the Chinese to Detective Sergeant Kirkham, he said, he drove Norton back to Twenty-fifth Avenue, and then drove Sergeant Munro home.

STEPPED INTO CAR
"Was the Chinese blindfolded?" asked Mr. Wood for the Crown.

"No, I sat beside him. I even asked him if he was cold."

"Was there a bandage on his head?"

"Yes."

"Do you know what it was there for?"

"No."

Mr. Henderson—When it is said the chief drove in the car on Marine Drive with Norton and the Chinese, what do you say to that?"

Witness—It's an absolute lie.

ROBINSON'S BAIL
After court adjourned Mr. Oliver obtained a reduction in bail for William Robinson from $2,500 to $1,000 in two sureties of $500, while in the case of O. B. V. Robinson, the order for $10,000 bail in two sureties for the full amount was varied to $15,000 bail in three sureties of $5,000 each.

Verity W. Norton, another of those on the original charge laid by Walter Owen, Assistant Superintendent of Provincial Police, was brought before the magistrate on a separate charge yesterday and contended for trial. On advice of his counsel, Douglas Armour, K.C., he waived preliminary hearing and no evidence was taken. He went back to Oakalla without applying for bail.

Only nine names now remain on the information, which originally charged thirteen people with the illegal detention of Wong Poon Sing.

SCHOOL DAYS By DWIG

IF IT WASN'T FOR THE GUARDIAN ANGELS THE 42 WOULDN'T LAST LONG

PLANETS WILL FORM SPECTACLE FOR SKY GAZERS THIS MONTH

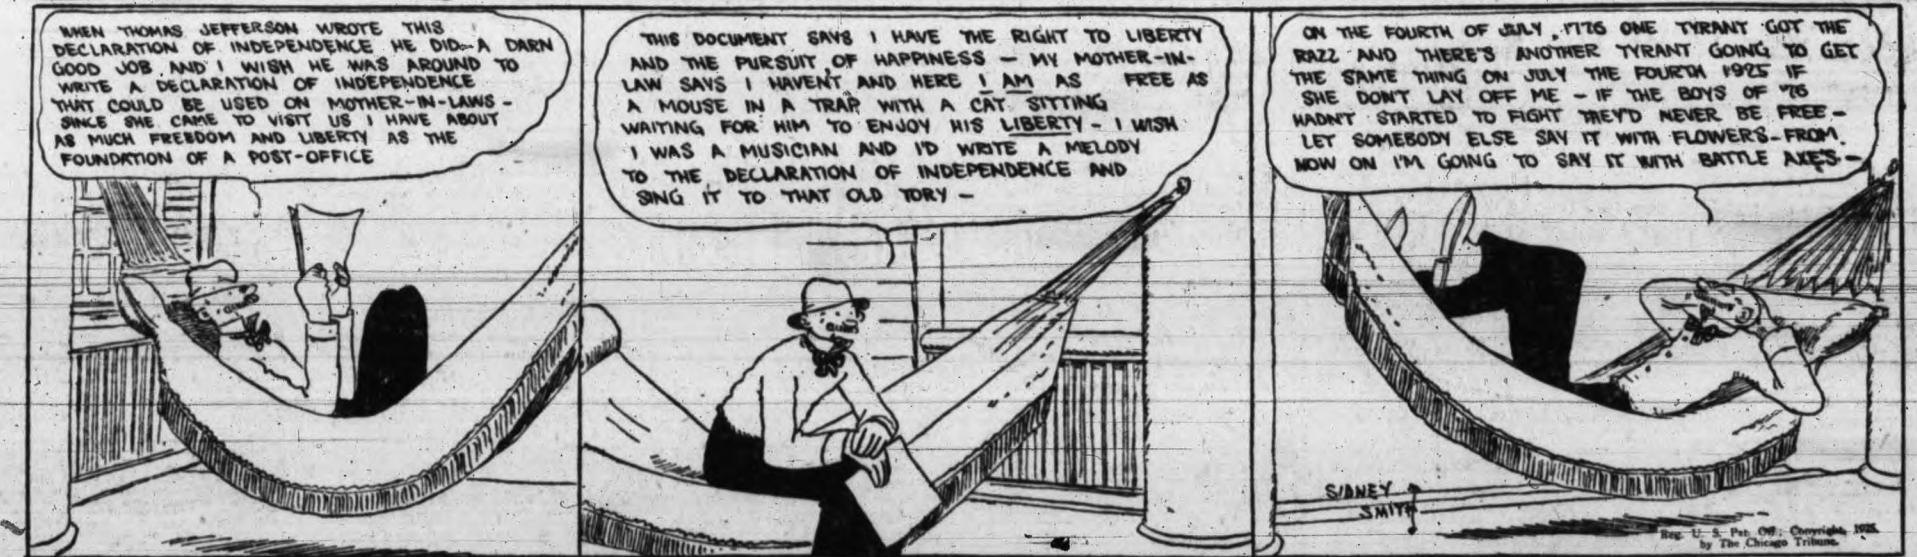

Washington, July 3.—Shortly after sunset during July five brightest planets—Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn—all will be above the horizon at the same time for the greater part of the month.

On the evening of July 10, says a bulletin from the American Nature Association, Mercury, Venus and Mars will appear so near together that they might almost be mistaken for a triple star, although in fact Mercury will be about 195,000,000 miles from the earth, Venus 146,000,000 miles and Mars 228,000,000 miles. Mars is increasing its distance from the earth and drawing in toward the sun, so it will be increasingly difficult to find it in the twilight. Mercury and Venus now are approaching the earth.

Mercury will reach its greatest eastern elongation on July 25, when it will be more than 27 degrees east of the sun. This the American Nature Association points out is within one degree of its greatest possible distance from the sun and great enough to enable it to be picked up easily in the twilight after sunset.

PLAYING TAG
Anyone watching these three planets this month with the aid of a small telescope or field glasses might imagine they were playing tag or running a race in the northwestern sky after sunset. All three will move eastward during July from Cancer into Leo, but all will be moving at different speeds with respect to each other and the earth. Mars, the slow-moving one of the trio, will be at the beginning of the month farther east and higher in the western sky than the other two, but the other two planets will pass it on July 10. Saturn, which has been above the horizon in the evening hours for some time, has been moving slowly westward, but on July 12 it will become stationary, as viewed from the earth, and then begin to swing slowly backward toward Libra to the east. Jupiter, now rising over in the southeast in Sagittarius, will be in opposition to the sun, or on the meridian due south, at midnight on July 19. It will then rise at sunset and be in view all night. On that date Mercury, Venus and Mars will set about an hour and a half after the sun.

WORLD GIVE BUS SYSTEM TO DISTRICT

Lake Hill Buses. Should be Privately Operated, Councilor Kirkham Says

Objecting to municipal operation of buses on principal, Councilor Kirkham last night suggested that when, at the end of the present year, the Lake Hill buses will have repaid their cost to Saanich, the system should be turned over to the residents in the area which has been served, who guaranteed by by-law to make good any deficit incurred.

The buses have yearly paid all operating charges, and set aside one-third of the cost of the equipment, but no overhead charges for clerical work or management have been made, being contributed by the Municipal staff.

Councilor Stubbs was prepared to consider the matter, but doubted the wisdom of relinquishing the business at the time the principal payments will cease, and viable profits accrue.

Reeve Macneil said that, if any such transfer took place, it would have to be upon a valuation, as all Saanich has an interest in the business.

Councilor Kirkham remarked, "I have merely opened the question at this time to enable us all to give study to the matter and the question was shelved until later in the year."

B.C. VETERANS ARE VISITORS IN SEATTLE

Seattle, July 4.—Allied veterans of the World War grasped hands in a festival of international good will here to-day.

Thirty-five officers of the Canadian army arrived in Seattle yesterday morning for a three-day visit as guests of a group of reserve corps officers of this city.

The coming of the Canadians is in the nature of a return visit, repaying a courtesy call made by the Seattle officers to Vancouver, B.C., last year.

Last night the guests were entertained at a banquet in the Spanish ballroom at the Olympic Hotel.

To-day the Canadians witness the Fourth of July street parade from reviewing stands in Times Square, and during the afternoon will be taken on a yacht trip to Bremerton, returning to Seattle in time for the American Legion carnival and fireworks display at the Stadium in the evening.

They will leave for Vancouver Sunday evening.

FACTORY OUTLOOK IN EAST NOW MORE CHEERFUL, BANK SAYS

Montreal, July 4.—"The tone of the annual convention of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association which met in Hamilton this past month, was more cheerful than for the past couple of years," says the Royal Bank of Canada in a statement of Canadian business conditions issued to-day.

"It may not be an exaggeration to state that many of the manufacturers of Ontario and Quebec feel that, although the situation is still spotty, the end of the depression is at hand. Overproduction rather than underconsumption seems to be the factor which is upsetting the Pacific lumber market, but general business conditions on the Pacific coast seem to be on the mend."

The second Spring trip of the Lunenburg fleet resulted in quite satisfactory fares and good prices have been obtained. The Maritime potato and lumber markets remain poor, and the strike situation at Sydney is acute.

"While there is still a long time before harvest, the soil moisture is excellent, the reports from the Prairie Provinces are more optimistic than any that have been received for some years."

PROSPECT LAKE FIRE COSTS MUCH MONEY

Council Pays Fire Fighting Wage Bill of $824; Votes Soldiers $50 For Aid Given

"We have a fire bug," was the assertion wherewith P. H. Sundin of Prospect Lake last night startled the Saanich Council.

Mr. Sundin's statement concluded a letter dealing with the recent fire at Prospect and Green Mountain. After remarking upon his yearly work of putting out small fires in July and August "cigarette stubs thrown from touring cars on this narrow road I think started them," Mr. Sundin adds:

"In going through the bush trails, outside of the fire area, after my cows, I have found several places where fires have been deliberately started and gone out. We have a fire bug. What is the motive and how can we get him?"

EXPENSIVE FIRE

Reeve Macneil, when speaking upon the recent fire, stated that fire fighters' accounts totaled $824, and while he believed some of the forty-five wage claims were from the fire bug, the council decided that own-ers of homes in wooded districts hereafter will have no claim to protection unless their residences are protected with well conditioned fire guards.

At the suggestion of Reeve Macneil, the council decided that own-ers of homes in wooded districts hereafter will have no claim to protection unless their residences are protected with well conditioned fire guards.

The aid of the military forces was highly praised, forty men being on duty one day and ten men on other occasions. A donation of $50 was voted to the military forces for the thanks of the corporation.

WADING POOL PLAN ALIVE ONCE MORE

Kiwanis Club Offers Practical Aid For Construction

The dormant proposal to construct a children's wading pool at Beacon Hill Park became active again at yesterday afternoon's session of the City Council works committee.

Alderman Marchant, chairman of the parks committee, informed the committee that the Kiwanis Club had offered to provide sufficient material and labor to permit construction to be completed at no greater cost to the city than the $650 voted earlier in the year.

Mayor Pendray objected to the location of the pool, but sufficiently central, but was reminded that salt water facilities were not obtainable elsewhere.

The proposal was referred to the parks committee, City Engineer Preston and the Kiwanis Club for detailed examination as to costs, after Mr. Preston had done knowledge of specifications for construction of a wading basin or costs involved.

Council Goes on Summer Schedule

There will be no Friday afternoon sessions of the City Council works committee during July and August, the aldermen decided yesterday afternoon. Works committee business should take place at Monday evening council.

Mayor Pendray asserted that weekly council debates are no longer essential, in his opinion, and declared that he would prefer to attend during the summer, to call council meetings at fortnightly intervals.

POLISH LEADER IS TO VISIT THE U.S.

Warsaw, July 4.—Count Alexander Skrzynski, Foreign Minister of Poland, is expected to visit the United States for the purpose of attending the Institute of Politics, to convene July 23, declared Poland always would be under a moral debt to the United States for its assistance during and after the World War.

"I am glad," he said, "of the occasion to study personally the people of the United States and the conditions there. Despite the unwillingness of the United States to become too much involved in European politics, it nevertheless plays such a marked role in world politics that it is impossible to be a good minister of foreign affairs without a personal knowledge of that country."

Paris, July 4.—Le Journal's Berlin correspondent says the visit of Premier Skrzynski of Poland to the United States is related to difficulties experienced by Poland in raising funds to pay her debt to the United States.

Canada Wheat Yield Estimate 350,000,000 Bu.

Ottawa, July 4.—A wheat yield of 350,000,000 bushels for Canada in 1925 is estimated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in a crop report issued yesterday. The figure is based upon the acreage of last year, and according to reports received by the bureau to date the area sown this year is approximately the same as last year. A yield of 250,000,000 bushels would be 10,000,000 bushels above the average of the last five years.

"Splendid rains have fallen this year during the critical period of growth, and should favorable conditions continue, the yield may well be considerably larger than that indicated," says the report.

SAANICH PUTS UP WATER RATE

Councillor Vantreight Vainly Protests and Leaves Council Chamber

With Councillor Vantreight of Ward Three vacating his chair as a protest against "railroad tactics," the Saanich Council last night put through preliminary readings a by-law increasing water charges to consumers five cents per 1,000 gallons and increasing the net minimum monthly charge per residence to $1.65, in place of the present charge of $1.50.

Councillor Murphy advocated no increase in the minimum charge, suggesting an alternative that the supply be cut from 3,000 gallons monthly to 1,000 gallons, and where surcharge shall commence.

Reeve Macneil deprecated any suggestion that he favored increase to householders, but said the Council that the impending increase in payment to the city will be about $10,000 over the four summer months, and the only method of collection a small increase on all connections.

Clerk Sewell stated that the meter reading for June had shown a consumption of 50,000 gallons, as compared with 27,000,000 gallons in June, 1924. Councillor Hagan feared that further delay in establishing a water metering system would result in a general revenue and have to be paid, in great part, by sections of Saanich not benefited by water service.

Councillor Vantreight charged undue delay by Reeve Macneil in obtaining a better price from Victoria, an allegation warmly denied.

Councillor Vantreight again urged delay when Reeve Macneil endeavored to bring discussion to a vote.

Councillor Kirkham moved adoption of the by-law, and Councillor Vantreight retired from the Council chamber.

The water bill paid by Saanich in June, 1924, on a six-cent basis had been $1,320. On the same rate of payment the consumption of the past month, 50,000,000 gallons, would have cost Saanich $1,524, whereas Saanich will be required to pay $1,650.

The increase is 23,000,000 gallons above last year, practically all used by irrigators, but the increased charges to be levied from this class of water user would not be sufficient to pay the increased cost of the water, and the small householders are therefore assessed fifty cents per month additional to make up the loss.

If more revenue accrues than is required a rebate will be allowed the consumers pro rata.

If the by-law is passed by the council at its next meeting, it will come into effect immediately. It is approved by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council.

SEVENTEEN GENERALS AT U.S. CONFERENCE

Washington, July 4.—Heads of the War Department and sections of the War Department, called into conference yesterday by Major-General Hines, chief of staff, examined the plans for holding a nation-wide master test of the national defence machinery to-day.

The meeting, presided over by Gen. Hines as a preliminary muster of the War Department itself.

Seventeen major-generals were among the twelve or fifteen officers who attended the conference, a similar departmental muster having been held under Gen. Pershing's direction just prior to the first defence test last September.

In a statement explaining the reason for the conference, Gen. Hines pointed out that the department's plans under the National Defence Act really constituted "a scheme for putting the country into a complete state of defence against any enemies whatsoever."

BRANCH BANK IN ONTARIO ROBBED

London, Ont., July 4.—A branch of the Bank of Montreal at Thorndale was entered by a lone armed bandit at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The money was forced into the vault at the point of a revolver and locked in.

About $7,000 was taken from the vault. The man escaped in a large touring car.

MAN WAS CRUSHED

Everett, Wash., July 4.—Harry W. Shaw, leading business man and civic worker, narrowly escaped fatal injury late Thursday afternoon when he was caught between two logs at the bunkers of his fuel yard here. Physicians reported his condition good to-day though he is not yet pronounced out of danger.

HULTON ESTATE PUT AT £2,000,000

London, July 4. (Canadian Press Cable).—The will of Sir Edward Hulton, former well-known newspaper owner, who died May 23, has been probated at £2,000,000. A bequest of £5,000 is made to the Catholic Church of Leatherhead, Surrey, where Sir Edward resided, and there are handsome legacies to the testator's domestic servants.

Sir Edward sold his various newspapers, interests about two years ago for £4,000,000. The discrepancy between this figure and the £2,000,000 which is given in the will as the value of the estate is explained by the fact that the Hulton newspapers descended from Sir Edward's father, who left their value in various shares to members of the family generally.

"CHARLEY'S AUNT" CREATED RECORD FOR STAGE RUN

The screen version of the international personality is always an intentionally famous farce. "Charley's Aunt," will be the feature attraction at the Columbia Theatre to-day for the last time. Syd Chaplin has the title role and the supporting cast is composed of players of wide repute. As a stage play "Charley's Aunt" has already grossed over three million dollars and holds the money-making record for the stage. It has been produced in every civilized country in the world which, in addition to giving it an international reputation, has established it as a play with the basic qualities of farce comedy that can be appreciated and understood in any language.

"Charley's Aunt" was first produced at Bury St. Edmunds in Suffolk in 1892 with W. S. Penley starring, and was then brought to London, playing first at the Royal Theatre and then at the Globe, where it ran continuously for four years a total of 1,466 performances.

Some of the great stage stars who have played in "Charley's Aunt" were the original W. S. Penley, who is said to have made a million and a half dollars out of it; Lyn Harding, Brandon Thomas, Miss Nina Boucicault, Julian Hayes, Reeves Smith and A. E. Matthews. It was first played in America by Grand Old Theatre.

The Christmas Eve picture is especially elaborate production and it is said to be the funniest feature that the screen has offered this season.

"MAGGIE AND JIGGS" IN POLITICS DUE AT PLAYHOUSE MONDAY

"Maggie and Jiggs in Politics" is announced as the offering of the Frank Morton company at the Playhouse next week. This is the third of the big cartoon stage-to-screen unit having proved a huge success. "Maggie and Jiggs in Politics" is said to be even better than the first two, which is saying a great deal. The entire cast, headed by Mr. Morton and Miss Vaughan will be used in the production, with new songs, dances, specialties, costumes and scenery an important part of the bill. "Entertainment," a true to life story with a tremendous "punch" has been booked as the screen feature, to be shown on the same bill. For the last times to-day, the Playhouse presents the sensational success, "Abraham Lincoln," with the Morton company in "The Georgia Minstrels."

BARBARA LA MARR MODISTES' IDEAL, SAYS DESIGNER

Barbara La Marr, whose individual inspiration to the costume designer, wears eighteen new gowns of the very latest fashion in her new picture, "The Heart of a Siren," now showing at the Capitol Theatre. They were designed by Charles LeMaire, the well-known New York costumer for the stage and screen.

LeMaire says that Miss La Marr is one of the few women of the screen who knows instinctively how to dress, what to wear and when to wear it.

"During the tedious hours of fitting," he said, "Miss La Marr was untiring, sometimes standing for a period of three or four hours at a time, waiting patiently until the fitters could find just the right draperies and lines. There was very little trouble or delay as she would know immediately if the lines, colors and materials selected would suit her particular type."

"While Barbara La Marr likes to look well groomed and smart, she is by no means a slave to the latest thing in fashion. For instance, no matter what the fashionable skirt length may be, she will wear a skirt that long, graceful lines are best suited to her personality. To me, she represents the elegant rather than the exotic type. She carries herself in a majestic way that lends an added grace and distinction to the most simple gown. In fact, the more simple and draped her clothes are, the better she looks in them. Were it possible to make up the costumes for the picture, she would be the one to wear them. Her type lends itself to any foreign atmosphere and she has an instinctive feeling for design, which is an inspiration to one who has the privilege of creating costumes for her.

Conway Tearle, co-featured with Miss La Marr, has the role of a young English diplomat who finally wins the love of the siren, then is forced to abandon her, by his poor but aristocratic family.

The picture was produced by Sawyer-Lubin for First National releasing. Phil Rosen directing. Rosen made "Abraham Lincoln."

Convict Necklace Solved Problem For Actress

Convict No. 9445 in the Utah State Prison solved a problem for Alma Bennett, prominent Paramount player, and enabled her to do a kindly deed.

Miss Bennett was undecided what sort of a necklace to wear in her role of "Bonita," a bewitching Spanish dancing girl, in the new Zane Grey romance-drama, "The Light of Western Stars," now at the Dominion Theatre. Then came a letter from a friend, which explained what was in the package, read in part:

"I am sending you under separate cover a genuine rose-leaf necklace that I made by hand in this prison, and have hopes that you will be sufficiently compassionate to one who is in deep trouble to aid me by purchasing same. My idea is that you may be willing to buy this article not because you need or greatly desire a rose-leaf necklace, but to aid and encourage one of our trouper who has fallen upon evil ways and is trying to fight his way back to respectability."

Miss Bennett decided the necklace was just what she wanted and she sent Convict No. 3945 a sum greatly in excess of what he asked. In "The Light of Western Stars," which William K. Howard directed, Jack Holt, Noah Beery and Billie Dove have the three important featured roles.

EVERGREEN CITY OF THE PACIFIC COAST IS CONVENTION CENTRE; LURES VISITORS IN THOUSANDS

Shady Beaches, Delightful Parks, Old World Gardens Contribute To Charm Of Vancouver Island Gateway

Tourists From All Over the World Find Days Too Short to Take in Unique Attractions of Famous Vacation City

HALF a million holiday makers chose Victoria last Summer for the scene of their vacations. From all parts of the world they came to the capital city of British Columbia. In automobiles, by train and by boat and even on foot except of course on the boat from Vancouver or some other point they poured into Victoria during the Summer and through the Winter. This year they are pouring into the city again. Every sight-seeing car has been crowded for weeks with holiday makers. One thousand visitors were here from Seattle last Saturday. Five thousand came over for the Eagles convention. More big conventions are booked. Individual reservations by train and boat are heavier than at any other time and this Summer it is confidently anticipated that Victoria will play the role of genial host to over 1,000,000 people.

PANORAMIC PICTURE

Why do the tourists from all over the continent pick Victoria? The answer could not be better told than to quote from an article "In and About Victoria" written by Frank Giolma whose business it is to write the publicity that has helped build up Victoria's tourist trade. Victoria has a charm and romantic glamor all her own. There is an enticing welcome awaiting the traveler entering the harbor. The blue-tinted Sooke hills, the Little Saanich mountain, the eternally snow-capped Olympics away in the mainland, and then, as the steamer swings round into the inner harbor, a foreground of beautiful trees, shrubs and flower gardens, with the majestic Parliament Buildings rising from lawns on the right, and the ivy-covered Empress Hotel right ahead, the city away to the left, and the old Cathedral on the hill above seeming to dominate the city. All combine to form a hydrangeas, roses, hedges, oak trees, holly, bungalows, old world gardens, trim boulevards, shaded streets, golden broom, and 1,600 acres of delightful city parks. Victoria's mild climate makes it a haven of content in Summer as well as in Winter, for while there is no zero weather there is also no excessive heat. The average Summer day temperature is 61 degrees, the Winter, 42 degrees, and the average yearly rainfall only 27 inches, for Victoria is in the meteorological dry belt of the Pacific Coast.

UNIQUE SPECIMENS OF INDIAN WORK

Visit the Parliament Buildings, facing the steamer docks, seeing the Connaught Library which contains the best collection of books in Canada west of Winnipeg; the natural history museum containing exhibits of all the fauna of B.C., and the mineral exhibits and archives. In these latter will be found most interesting specimens of Indian work, weapons and relics of Indian life of the Province which is quickly passing away, also many of the original charts, logs and maps of the discoverers not only of Vancouver Island but of other parts of the Pacific Coast.

From the Parliament Buildings go to Beacon Hill, which is the chief city park. It is 154 acres in extent, its south side being washed by the Straits of Juan de Fuca, while on the west, north and east it is bounded by the city. Wonderful seascapes and views of the eternally snow-clad Olympics are obtained from this park and its beaches.

THE SWANS AT BEACON HILL

Other points of special interest in the park are the nursery gardens, Goodacre Lake, the swans, the Chinese bell, and the bowling green and cricket greens. At Beacon Hill Park you will call on Ursus Kermodei, the little white bear that has made such a world-wide furor among naturalists.

The topiary work in Mayor Carl Pendray's gardens is pronounced by experts to be unequalled on the whole American continent. Here you will find box, yew and other shrubs cut and trimmed to represent people, birds and animals. Many of these are over thirty years old.

Unique to-day on the North American Continent is the all-glass Crystal Garden, housing a 150-foot heated sea-water swimming tank, peacock promenade, concert auditoriums, gymnasiums, palm

A CITY OF FLOWERS

To-day she is the evergreen city of Canada—a city of flowers, gardens and picture galleries. These gardens are on Douglas Street, opposite the Empress Hotel, in the heart of the city.

At Esquimalt you will find beside the old navy station, the great new Dominion Government dry-dock, the second largest on the continent. This giant basin, hewn out of the living rock, cost approximately $6,000,000, and measures 1,150 feet long. The dock will take any ship afloat.

WORLD-FAMOUS SUNKEN GARDENS

Mr. Butchart's sunken gardens are to-day world-famous. Ten years ago, what is now a spot as lovely as an Arabian Night's dream was as desolate and uninviting a place as could be found within the limits of the whole Island. But man's ingenuity, aided by the regenerating forces of Nature, succeeded in making a paradise of an eyesore. For the reason d'être of Mr. Butchart's gardens is a large cement plant. Hundreds of tons of material for the works had been carried away, and had left a great, gaunt excavation. To this yawning chasm were brought countless loads of rich, black loam. An artificial lake was made, trees planted, lawns laid out, shrubs of all kinds distributed, and clambering vines and rock plants set in place. They feature, besides the great sunken gardens, with their blossom-covered walls, a hundred feet high, and the lake, into which many waterfalls fling their silver argosy; the acres of rose gardens, with their heavily hung pergolas; stretches of velvet lawns bordered with flowers of every description; and a Japanese or fairy garden, in which miniature trees and shrubs predominate, and

EACH JUNE HAS DISTINCTIVE CHARM

Victoria has well been called the "Portal to a Thousand Miles of Wonderland," for from the city radiate many drives, each one of which has its own distinctive charms. Perhaps the first one generally taken by the newcomer, is the Marine Drive, which, starting at the steamer landing, winds round the waterfront, past Beacon Hill, Oak Bay, Cadboro Bay, Cordova Bay and through Saanich by the East Road and coming back by the West Road, taking one past such famous beauty spots as Beacon Hill Park, Gonzales Hill, Oak Bay, Gordon Head, Patricia Bay, Deep Cove, Brentwood and Mr. Butchart's famous sunken gardens, the total distance being between fifty and sixty miles. Or one can drive west right out to the great Pacific Ocean at Jordan River, going via the Gorge and Colwood, on to Sooke Harbor and Jordan River, the total distance there and back being eighty-four miles. Another day can easily be spent meandering about the city, through the world-famous residential sections such as Foul Bay Road, Rockland Avenue, Oak Bay, the Uplands and Fairfield, while the drives in Saanich will remind one of the heart of England, and then there is the famous Malahat Mountain Drive, running north from Victoria, and rising to over 1,250 feet above the sea, the view of sea and mountain from which is superb.

NONE OF THESE SHOULD BE MISSED

The foregoing are considered by most visitors to be the high lights in the picture of Victoria that they carry away with them. However none of the following should be missed:

Hillside—Beautiful view from Reservoir.

Victoria College—At Craigdarroch on Fort Street.

Fernwood—Victoria High School.

Rockland Avenue—Beautiful homes, Government House, also St. Charles Street, Joan Crescent and Foul Bay Road between Oak Bay Avenue and the sea.

This beautiful spot is eleven miles from Victoria; and the gardens, while being private property, are open every day in the week, and can be reached by sight-seeing cars from the city by good motor road.

HOME INTERESTS AND ACTIVITIES

DOMESTIC ARTS APPARENTLY NOT POPULAR WITH TEACHERS

Domestic Science and Needlework Eliminated From Summer School Course Which Opens at High School Monday; 300 Teachers to Attend

Three hundred teachers from all parts of British Columbia will be in Victoria for the Provincial Summer Schools arranged by the Department of Education, which commences its sessions on Monday. The course will be held at the Victoria High School and will last for five weeks. A particularly interesting fact is the heavy registration this year, which is larger than usual in spite of the withdrawal of certain concessions hitherto made by the Department. Until this year the Department of Education paid teachers attending the Summer school half the cost of their transportation, but that grant has now been stopped. It is, therefore, an interesting reflection of the desire of the teachers of this Province to keep abreast with the times in matters educational that so many should come at their own expense to take this Summer school.

The administration of the school will be in the hands of Hon. J. D. MacLean, Minister of Education, S. J. Willis, B.A., superintendent, and John Kyle, acting director in the absence of J. W. Gibson, who has left for California to take a course at Leland Stanford University.

ABLE INSTRUCTORS

All of the classes, with the exception of those in technical and commercial work and university classes which will be held in Vancouver, are to be held at the Victoria High School. An exceptionally able body of instructors has been secured as the following list will show:

Arthur Anstey, B.A., Instructor, Provincial Normal School, Vancouver—History; W. Gordon Brandreth, Member of the Institute of Hygiene, London, England—Hygiene and Physical Education; Miss Elizabeth G. Breeze, Chief School Nurse, Vancouver City; J. E. Britton, B.S.A., Specialist in Science and Agriculture, Kelowna High School—Horticulture; Miss L. A. Burpee, Instructor, Provincial Normal School, Vancouver—Primary Grade Handwork; F. E. Coombs, M.A., Director of the Department of Primary Education, Ontario University—Theory and Practice of Primary Grade Work; Miss E. M. Coney, Instructor, Provincial Normal School, Vancouver—Vocal Music; Miss L. K. Cotsworth, Supervisor of Physical Education, Vancouver—Folk-dancing and Physical Education; Ira Dilworth, M.A., Graduate Student, Harvard University—English Literature and Reading; John Davidson, Assistant Professor of Botany, University of British Columbia—Plant-life Studies; E. S. Farr, B.A., LL.B., Instructor, Victoria High School—Civics and Citizenship; John Fraser, Instructor, Vancouver Technical School—Sheet-metal and Forge Work; E. A. Howes, B.S.A., Dean, College of Agriculture, University of Alberta, Edmonton, Alta.—History of Agriculture and Agricultural Education; F. A. Jones, B.A., D.Paed., Instructor, Provincial Normal School, Ottawa—Geography; Harry A. Jones, Instructor, Vancouver Technical School—Machine-shop Practice; John Kyle, A.R.C.A., Organizer of Technical Education, Victoria—Art Appreciation and Applied Design; Will Menelaws, Graduate of Royal Scottish Academy of Art, Edinburgh—Figure Drawing and Sketching from Nature; H. B. MacLean, Instructor, Provincial Normal School, Vancouver—Penmanship; R. W. MacKenzie, Instructor, Tennyson School, Vancouver—Penmanship; E. W. Parker, Instructor, Vancouver Technical School—Building Construction; G. S. Spencer, B.S.A., M.S., Assistant Professor of Zoology, University of British Columbia—Animal-life Studies; Mrs. Ina D. D. Uthoff, Graduate of Glasgow School of Art—Advanced Art and Applied Science; W. P. Weston, Instructor, Provincial Normal School, Vancouver—Preliminary Art, and F. G. T. Wickett, A.R.C.O., Victoria—Choral singing and Summer school accompanist.

DEMONSTRATION SCHOOL POPULAR

In connection with the Summer school there will be a demonstration school. So popular is this feature with the local school children that already the department has had to refuse a large number of students anxious to attend because the limit of accommodation has been reached. The staff which will have charge of this demonstration school includes Head-Master H. L. Campbell, Grade 7; Miss C. Mazzoline, Grades 5 and 6; Miss Margaret Cameron, Grades 3 and 4; Miss L. G. Bollert, B.A., Grades 1A and 2; Miss J. E. R. Fisher, Receiving and 1B, and F. Waddington, instructor in singing.

DOMESTIC ARTS UNPOPULAR

Several classes in domestic science and needlework was originally included, but the demand for these subjects were so negligible that they were eliminated from the course. This is a rather curious commentary upon the attitude of the teacher towards these subjects, and one of special interest in view of the division of public opinion upon the question of the teaching of domestic science in the schools. Evidently the teachers do not think it worth while to take Summer courses of study in these two branches.

TO TEACH ART APPRECIATION

A somewhat new departure is in the art section in which five distinct courses are given. First year, second and third year courses, and a first year High School course were inaugurated last year, and proved most popular, but this year these have been supplemented by a course in applied art and design—thus fulfilling a long-felt want—also a course in art appreciation, a new venture initiated by Mr. Kyle. Under this heading he will give a series of interesting lectures on the Florentine school of painting and art craftsmanship, as well as artists of Flanders, Holland, France, Britain, America and Canada, also the various crafts and the life of the great craftsman, William Morris.

SOCIAL DIVERSIONS

The courses outlined go to show how varied and how comprehensive is the real work of the Summer School, but they give no suggestion as to the social and recreational features, without which no Summer school would be complete. Teachers who work faithfully in their own classrooms for ten months in the year and who voluntarily devote five weeks of the Summer vacation to their own professional improvement deserve every possible facility for social and recreational life outside the classroom.

To this end there will be dances every Wednesday evening, in addition to various concerts, tennis tournaments, swimming events, picnics and similar diversions without which the course would lack that recreational complement which is essential, for "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy"—an old adage which may be applied to teachers as well as their pupils.

WITH ONE CAKE RECIPE

If you have a good layer cake recipe, you can vary it into half a dozen desserts.

For instance, there is strawberry shortcake, made by putting crushed strawberries between the two layers, whole, sweetened berries on top, and whipped cream on that.

Then there is a pie arrangement, which consists in putting custard between the layers, powdered sugar on top.

And there is a fresh grated coconut layer cake, made by adding the coconut to a thick boiled icing to spread between the layers and on top.

Or a tutti frutti cake, with preserved fruits in syrup spread between the two layers.

Or else a banana shortcake, with sliced bananas and whipped cream used for filling and topping.

COUNTESS WEDS SECOND TIME IN GREAT SECRECY

Widow of Earl of Jersey Married Quietly to Young Publicity Agent of Wembley

London, July 4—Great secrecy marked the marriage of Cynthia Countess of Jersey, widow of the eighth Earl of Jersey, to Mr. William Rodney Slessor, son of Major Slessor, of Eynsham, Oxfordshire, at Cassington Parish Church recently.

When the countess left her home in the morning none of the servants knew that she was going to her wedding, and the clerk of the church was only informed twenty minutes before the ceremony that the marriage was to take place.

There were only a few personal friends at the ceremony, and afterwards the bride and bridegroom left for the honeymoon, the scene of which is being kept secret.

The bride wore a crepe de Chine dress, with a close fitting toque. The engagement of Cynthia Lady Jersey to Mr. Slessor was announced on May 14 last. Her marriage to Lord Jersey took place in 1908 and she has four children, the eldest of whom, the present earl, is fifteen.

Mr. Slessor is twenty-five. He intended to make the army his career, but ill-health prevented this, and he is at present engaged in publicity work for the British Empire Exhibition.

Mr. Slessor is the son of a high official at one of the Oxford colleges. The Countess of Jersey has been on friendly terms with the bridegroom's sisters for some time.

16,000 CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS TO MEET IN PORTLAND

Dr. Francis E. Clark, Founder of Movement, to Attend Convention July 4-10

Portland, Ore., July 4—Sixteen thousand Christian Endeavor leaders from the forty-eight states of the union and many foreign countries are expected to gather here from July 4 to 10, for the thirtieth International Christian Endeavor convention.

Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania has been announced as one of the speakers by E. P. Gates of Boston, general secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor. Other speakers will be: Ernest Cherrington, general secretary of the World League Against Alcoholism; Dr. Ira Landreth, Christian Endeavor extension secretary and former candidate for vice-president on the prohibition ticket; Rev. Dr. William Hiram Faulkes of Cleveland, Presbyterian clergyman; Rev. Dr. Mark Matthews of Seattle, and John Willis Baer of Los Angeles, former moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly.

Dr. Francis E. Clark, founder of the Christian Endeavor movement, will also be in attendance. A feature of the convention will be an automobile drive of 175 miles over the famous Columbia River Highway and then around snow-capped Mount Hood. The loop road around Mount Hood is just being completed by the United States forest service, and the Endeavor caravan of 2,500 cars, will be the first group to use it. The government has agreed to throw the road open on July 10 to the Endeavorers, whether it is completed or not.

The largest evening mass meetings of the convention will be held in an athletic club stadium, seating 22,000. The regular convention sessions will be held in Portland's Municipal Auditorium.

Music is to be furnished by a chorus of 500 voices under the direction of Percy Foster of Washington, D.C.

When you want a cheap disinfectant, use permanganate of potash. Use it in the proportion of one ounce to a quart of boiling water, and pour a little down the drains occasionally.

TO TAKE UP MISSION WORK IN NATIVE LAND

Miss Sylvie Lee, a well-known Chinese girl of Victoria, left on Thursday of this week for China where she will take up kindergarten work at a Christian mission in the province of Canton.

Miss Lee was born in China and while but a baby was sold as a household slave into a Chinese family and brought by them to Toronto. Although they treated her—according to her story before the Women's Missionary Society of the Metropolitan Church last week—with great cruelty, she was unable to get away until she was eight years of age, when a relative, Rev. John Lee, who was in Canada for a holiday, rescued her in time to save her life. He brought her to Victoria and placed her in the care of the Oriental Home and School, Cormorant Street, where she has been for the past fifteen years.

Under the loving care of the successive superintendents at the home, Miss Lee received her education in the local schools, including the High School. She studied kindergarten for two years under the tuition of Miss Grace Baker at the home and is now returning to her native land to impart the knowledge she has acquired. She will be met in Hong Kong by Rev. John Lee, the relative who rescued her in Toronto fifteen years ago.

HON. IRENE PARLEY WAS DISAPPOINTED WITH WASHINGTON

Alberta M.P. Criticizes Personalities and Methods of International Council

Edmonton, Alta., June 27 (By Canadian Press).—Hon. Irene Parley, writing in the Journal of her impressions of the recent International Council Meeting at Washington, has some crisp comments to make. As an onlooker she felt disappointed in some ways, the open business sessions of the council being "tedious and uninspiring, the machinery cumbersome and top heavy."

"Lady Aberdeen, though evidently warmly regarded by many of the delegates and undoubtedly a woman of kindly, generous heart and sincere interest in her work, does not shine as a chairwoman, and could not but wish that the conference had had the good sense to select from its own ranks some one with the qualities that are so necessary for the handling of any large meeting; for the temporary business, that is, of conducting the sessions, while allowing their president to carry on the many other arduous duties of such an office. We have found such a method so eminently satisfactory in our own farmers' organizations, relieving the president to attend to more valuable work, that one wonders why the system is not more frequently adopted."

"I could not help laughing to myself when one English delegate remarked that having seen the council at work I should now be much more able to understand the international mind. I thought of prairie provinces with our many faces, many tongues, many creeds, tearing together to build the foundations of a mighty nation, and it seemed to me that if there were such a thing as an international mind, surely it would be here it could be best learnt and understood."

"I did not sense in the meetings either the spirit of the labor organizations or of the great agricultural organizations. I am convinced that the ideals of both these great groups were alien, and not understood or even known by a large number of the delegates; how then could they represent the womanhood of the different nations in any adequate way?"

DOMINICAN NUN GIVES UP CONVENT FOR VARIETY STAGE

Miss Mercia Gregori Was in Natal Convent For Two Years

From the convent to the variety stage is the romantic story of Miss Mercia Gregori, a girl who made her debut at the London Coliseum a few days ago, where she is appearing in a series of sketches.

Two years ago, at the age of twenty-one, she was a novice at a Dominican Convent in Natal.

"I left the convent in 1923 because I felt I had a call," Miss Gregori told a reporter. "The sisters knew all along that I was destined for the theatre, and they did all in their power to encourage the talent I possessed for acting."

"I always think that the stage brings out the most intimate religious side of our natures. When I am acting I regain the atmosphere of the convent cell and feel that I am back once more in the little Dominican chapel in Natal."

Miss Gregori inherits from her Spanish ancestry the gift of tongues. Her mother was a Spaniard and her father came of an old Scottish family.

She can speak eight different languages, and as a nun was wont to sing to the Zulus. Such was her impression upon the native chiefs that she was named by them N'Gossani—the little princess.

BEHOLD THE GREEN HAND-KERCHIEF

The green handkerchief is not in any way a novelty. It is, however, a decidedly smart accessory of dress at the present moment. With the big vogue for green, naturally the green handkerchief has come into prominence.

HUNT SIX YEARS FOR CLAIMANTS TO BIG FORTUNE

Princess Alexis Dolgorouki Died Intestate in 1919; Heirs Being Sought

A notice in the London Gazette marks another stage in the proceedings relating to the estate of her Highness Princess, Princess Alexis Dolgorouki, who died at Bayonne, France, on August 23, 1919.

The Princess—whose residences were at 46, Upper Grosvenor-street, Mayfair, and Nashdom, Burnham, Bucks—left English property valued at £47,796.

The daughter of Mr. Fleetwood Pellew Wilson, of London, she married Prince Dolgorouki, a former Chamberlain to the Tsar of Russia. In November, 1923, the Court of Chancery directed an inquiry to ascertain what person or persons became beneficially entitled to any personal estate of hers, as to which she died intestate; whether any such persons were alive; whether she left any godchildren.

Notice is now given that Frank Lawrence Meynell, the elder child of Francis Meynell and Jessie, his wife (nee Lawrence), also any children of Lieutenant Peter Reid and Jean (otherwise Jane) Wilson, who were married in 1922 at Banff, Scotland, also any persons claiming to be godchildren of the testatrix, and all other persons claiming to be entitled under the inquiries, are, before September 23 next, to send to Edward Alexander Collins, of Collins and Co., of Edgware-road, London, W., full particulars of their claims.

Frank Lawrence Meynell is believed to have been born about 1845, and to have left England in early life for Australia.

WINNIPEG PROFESSOR SHOCKED BY WILD LIFE ON PRAIRIES

Says Parents Living in 'Fool's Paradise'; Denounces Dance Halls and Gambling

Winnipeg, July 4—Mobilization of Christian opinion behind a campaign to put an end to the sale of salacious literature in Winnipeg; to get certain dance halls and places of evil repute closed; to end race-track gambling and to stop Sunday sale of gasoline, is urged by Prof. F. W. Kerr, of this city.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL
Copyright 1925 by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate

When Transparent Fabrics Play a Leading Role, Much Thought Must Be Given to Materials Used Beneath Them.

A foundation slip of shell pink, when draped with oyster white georgette, gives an effect that is a beautiful mother of pearl, or "nacre," as the French dressmaker would say. This season when sheer fabrics like georgette and chiffon have been used so abundantly for both day and evening frocks much attention has been given to effects that can be gained by laying one soft transparent color on top of another. Then with the flowered georgette and chiffons considerable attention has been given the subject of choosing underslips. For instance, a frock of white georgette printed with pink roses and green leaves may be lined either with white, with pink or with green. It is always a mistake to try to use some color or tone not contained in the material on top. Some of the French dressmakers, however, solve the problem by using two or even three tones beneath. Thus they would use a white slip, with thin drops of green and pink, one on top of the other, and finally the white georgette printed with pink roses and green leaves.

French dressmakers often use a slip or lining darker than the tone of the material on top. Thus a light georgette with figures of a violet or purple shade might be made up over a deep violet slip, and quite frequently transparent white materials are made over black.

A really interesting effect can be gained by using varnished crepe de Chine under black georgette or chiffon, and some clever dressmakers have produced a charming result by using light chiffon or georgette over foundation slips of glazed cretton or chintz. None of the chintz shows unveiled and the effect it gives when covered with the transparent fabric is that of some rich brocade.

SOCIETY PIRATES ARE WORRY TO HOSTESSES OF MAYFAIR

Uninvited Guests Wander Into Brilliant Functions in Order to "Hobnob" With Duchesses; Thieves Among Guests.

To all the worries that entertaining on a large scale entails, the hostess of the world of the "Four Hundred" now has to add that caused by a product of modern times—the society pirate. This practice has been particularly rife in Mayfair lately, where the exigencies of the servant problem and the heavy cost of keeping up a large house has led to a frequent use of hotels for entertaining by leading hostesses.

Several societies and clubs that hold periodical dinners at London hotels have discovered recently that the number of dancers on the floor and of suppers served at the buffet has considerably exceeded that of the persons invited. Investigation has shown that "pirates" have turned up about ten o'clock and proceeded to the ballroom, where they have helped themselves to supper and finally departed after having spent an enjoyable evening free of cost.

While Prof. Kerr explained that he was not opposed to horse racing in itself, race courses he asserted now were being built with only one purpose in view, and that was of becoming "carnivals of gambling." He called upon the Christian community in a recent statement to boycott places that sold goods seven days of the week and oil-filling stations that remained open on the Sabbath.

RISK OF DETECTION

Such uninvited guests are a great nuisance. For supper at a dance in Mayfair not long ago provision was made for 150, the number of invitations issued, and when the hostess found that nearly 200 persons were present excursions were made in all directions to add to the provender in readiness.

SMALL

There are, indeed, people who, if they see an awning outside a house and signs of pleasant entertainment within, make a bee-line for it, nod confidently to the footman as they enter, mingle with the crowd, just as if they were friends of the host and hostess. The risk of detection is small, mainly because some invited guests have a habit of bringing with them friends unknown to the entertainers. A man invited to a recent ball arrived with five other friends, all uninvited guests.

As many uninvited guests are people who wish to edge their way into Society, some of them are often present at functions of importance so that they may be in the same room as a duchess. Once having obtained admission to the charming circle, they have sufficient tact to get invitations elsewhere, and the rest is easy.

THIEVES ALSO UN-INVITED

But among the uninvited are many thieves of both sexes. A fashionably dressed woman was caught as she was leaving a "crush" with articles of attire belonging to others. She was searched, and on her were found two valuable pendants, which also were stolen property.

There was a similar encounter on the steps of a Mayfair house where a ball was in progress. Apparently bored, a young fellow came down them languidly, and began looking up and down the street as if for a taxi. Suddenly a man popped out on him. "Where are you going?" he asked, aggressively. The young man raised his brows in apparent surprise. "Er—home," he said, drawlingly. "Then what are you doing with that coat?" demanded the other. With a quick movement he threw back the man's overcoat, showing that he was wearing another beneath it.

Many thieves at social functions, however, get away with their plunder, notwithstanding that there are usually detectives among the guests.

FLOWERS OF GOOD AND BAD LUCK

If you fear thunderstorms why not do as the peasants of Normandy do—keep bunches of box twigs stuck on the wall behind a mirror or a picture? The saying is among them that the box carrier to church and blessed by the priests on Corpus Christi day will perfectly safeguard the dwellers in the house where these twigs are hung.

An old, old saying is that the seed of the fern if carried in the pocket will confer the gift of invisibility. So if you want to go about unnoticed by all means go out into the woods and gather some of these seeds which are so small as to be almost invisible themselves.

Hawthorne is not so common with us as it is in Europe, where the sentiment is that it is very bad luck to carry blossoming hawthorne into the house. In fact, death or grave illness is thought by the superstitious to follow such an act.

After heating a carpet rub it with a cloth wrung out in hot water to which has been added two or three tablespoonfuls of methylated spirit and a small piece of soap. This brings up the colors and does not injure the carpet.

Canada's Political Puzzle

How This Country is Crippled in These Crucial Times by the Chaos of its Electorate

(By The Times Parliamentary Correspondent)

A Canadian looking over his country as a whole, sees its industrial elements divided into conflicting sections; peering into the sphere of public life, he finds that Canadian politics in a Federal sense are confused and confusing. While one province or another, safe in some smooth back-eddy, may imagine that public affairs are as fixed and stable as they used to be in the good old days, anyone who has tried to navigate the main current of politics in Ottawa knows that it is a surging, shifting torrent of uncertainties rushing on to a sea of doubt. In the realm of commerce Canada is recovering magnificently from the war; her foreign trade is expanding enormously; her place in the industrial world is growing steadily; but in politics she is actually in the very middle of the war's upheaval.

This country, in fact, is in the throes of a political revolution. Revolution is never a pleasant process, and the good that it accomplishes is often overlooked in the turmoil that ever goes with it. Canada may yet reap rich compensation for the pains that wrack the body politic now. Out of the furnace will come metal that was worth the waiting. But in the meantime the Government suffers, the politicians suffer and, most of all, the country suffers from a sad lack of national cohesion.

It would be a good thing if Canadians understood this situation. Perhaps if they were thoroughly alive to the seeds of trouble that lurk beneath its surface they would quickly bring about a solution of the problem themselves. Anyway, appreciation of a difficulty is always the first step in overcoming it.

The Fourteenth Canadian Parliament—the one which adjourned the other day after alternately freezing and sweating through five months of Ottawa—started its career in 1922 with three main groups in the House of Commons. They were: The Liberals, the Progressives and the Conservatives, and there seemed to be a real possibility of a union between the first two parties. What happened? By the end of the session just concluded instead of three there were five groups—the Liberals, the Progressives, the Conservatives, the Ontario Progressives and the Ontario Conservatives. Each group was away from the Progressive Party because it was too radical, and the Ontario Progressives, who bolted because it wasn't radical enough.

THE DISUNITED OPPOSITION
Thus in the House of Commons a although it has no more use for the Meighen policy of high protection than the prairies have.

A BUSINESS REVOLT
The rise of the newer groups in Parliament and the general jumble in politics is not based on the same differences that originally split the great Liberal and Conservative Parties. The present confusion is simply the outward symptom of a widespread revolt against an economic structure hopelessly out of date, but now happily in the process of rebuilding. The Progressive Party, for instance, is simply a Western revolution against the business domination of the East. The turnover in Nova Scotia is another cry of protest against the bad times that have dogged the Maritimes for a generation.

PROGRESS IMPEDED
The net result of all this conflict in Parliament is simply to impede a solution of the innumerable external and internal national problems that face this country. In such a wilderness of parties and policies and unrest generally no government can tread a straight and unswerving path. There is bound to be digression, confusion, and delay. Otherwise the nation would stagger from one election to another.

A condition like that prevailing in Parliament now is bad at any time. To-day, when Canada needs every advantage of the biggest trade opportunities ever offered to a young country, it is intolerable. What is more serious still, it prevents the Canadian people from presenting a united front in the vexed problem of inter-empire relations and in the still more bewildering complexities of world affairs.

But even this is not the most serious aspect of the present situation. The most serious aspect of the present situation is the effect of this lack of cohesion on the national existence of the country. So long as this country, in Parliament and out, is concentrating its energies on internal squabbles, it cannot play its part in the world. It cannot in any sense be termed a "success." Until Canada develops a real national spirit broad enough to overcome the petty bickerings of the past, the work started by the fathers of Confederation has been completed. The nation cannot continue to pull apart and still remain a nation. How will the Canadian people meet it?

(The next article of this series will discuss Canada's prospects of getting back to political stability, and what hope of improvement the next federal election holds.)

Noted "Screen Vampire" Retires To Find Only Real Happiness As Nurse

BY GENE COHN

NEW YORK, June 27 (By Mail)—The "greatest screen vampire" of her time may be found to-day tip-toeing from cot to cot in a children's hospital, tenderly ministering to the needs of little invalids.

Valeska Suratt—she of the insinuatingly "wicked" costumes, the naughty songs and plays and the daring publicity—now plays a quiet and matronly role in the private hospital of Dr. Julius Lempert, famous child specialist.

Her fellow nurses say that she is the most adept of students.

"She has an amazing way with children," one remarked. "She wins them immediately and has a way of allaying their fears. She comes to work before any of us and is the last to leave. It's something she really wants to do, and she shows it."

As for Valeska—gone is the fiery star of yesteryear. Instead is the quietest and most motherly of personalities. Her figure has rounded and matured and is quite matronly. She wears a nurse's costume of light pink shade, a color which she says is used in England because psychologists found it pleased the eye of children.

How different from the dress of yesterday, when people gasped as she passed upon the street! Then, it is recalled, her "cutaway backs" and otherwise revealing raiment created many sensations and are remembered to this day when the name of Suratt is mentioned.

She was a bit piqued that her retreat had been discovered. The reporter had interrupted the "story-hour" in the courtyard just back of the hospital where, swinging lazily in a wide-striped hammock, she was reading fairytales. Beside her a baby monkey pranked in a cage and a half a dozen kittens hopped about in pursuit of catnip balls and bits of string.

A strange role, indeed, for the very naughty "Girl With the Whoooping Cough."

"For years I have wanted to do just this—to be about children, to take care of them and study them closely," she explained. "I had known Dr. Lempert, and was interested in operations he was performing and he gave me a chance to come here—I anticipate working among children and thus ending my days, perhaps.

"In the old days I would spend my vacations in Europe. I would travel and relax. But I am older now. I have the urge to do something, something that is helpful to someone. This isn't the first time I have looked after children. I have brought up more than one, children of relatives and strange children, but, no—not my own."

The mouth of the "greatest vampire" dropped in a wistful line.

"You know, of course, that I came from Indiana," she went on. "My family was poor, quite poor. I learned as a child what it meant to hand down clothing from one child to another. Bringing up of two younger ones fell to my lot. I have never forgotten those days. Perhaps that is one reason why I have always taken such an interest in children who are sick and poor.

"I shall stay here only through the Summer. Yes, the vaudeville people are after me to go back next Fall. They're talking about the old, flashy costumes—dresses, dresses and more dresses. It seems funny and artificial, doesn't it? Do you know, I don't believe I was ever stage-struck. The theatre never really got me and held me as it does so many. I had a natural stage presence. I stayed with it for years but it never penetrated very far into my private life."

There may be some who remember the time—oh, many years ago—when the little milliner came out of Indiana, with titian hair and stunning figure, to conquer Broadway. One of the "Gibson girls" was she and, then, one of the "naughty," dashing musical-comedy maids. Finally she became the "wicked woman" of the screen.

But there seems not the slightest suggestion of any of those personalities to-day. Is it a "mother complex"? Valeska smiles a bit sadly; in fact there is a general wistfulness about her present appearance.

"I think I am happier now than I have been in—I hate to tell you how long," she concluded.

"The Steakfast Heart"

By Clarence Badington Kelland

"I do not love him," she whispered again and again into her pillow, and in this denial she confessed, knew she confessed, but still would not admit to herself that she confessed.

Since that day she had not seen Angus and her desire to see him became a gnawing hunger; more than once she was on the point of sending for him, seeking him—but barriers of pride remained strong, unbroken.

This was an attitude which could not persist. Either one is in love or one is not. Love is not a matter of the wall, but of the heart, of the emotions. A certain basic common sense resided in Lydia, and that common sense compelled her at last to face matters as they were. Fact demanded treatment as fact.

And then, with sobbing, with shame, Lydia Canfield admitted to herself that she loved Angus Burke. She, a Canfield, loved the son of a thief—a man who had been tried for murder!

It was a problem. The fact was there to be dealt with. . . . She became calmer as she sought to deal with it. It was her misfortune to love where she should not love, she told herself. Her love had been her own consent, against her will. It could not be helped. It was an intangible thing over which she could exercise no control—but when it came to tangible matters, control was possible. She was mistress of herself. What if she did love? It spelled unhappiness, perhaps, but not surrender. She would not give in to her love. Never would she become a part of his life, mistress of his home. . . . That her will could accomplish. She foresaw distress, wretchedness, but better that than a surrender of high principles—better that to degrade the family blood which was hers in sacred trust. . . . Here was the attitude of a fanatic—and for that reason the more formidable.

There were hours when she was afraid; when she trembled for the strength of her resolution. Sometimes her yearning for Angus was so great as to be almost beyond her power of repression. She determined to go away—to seek safety in flight—to find some means—to hit upon some device which would make it impossible for her to give way to her love.

In calmer moments she was surprised in analyzing her feelings toward Angus, to find that mingled and interwoven with them, was a sincere admiration—admiration for his character, for his person, for his accomplishments. She was conscious of pride in him, and in what he had become. . . . The fact of his squalid origin but added to this pride, she was unable to understand this phenomenon. . . . It added to her fears.

"I'll go away as soon as I'm twenty-one," she told herself. "I'll go long ways—to Europe. I'll visit Aunt Margaret in Paris."

It was in this state of mind that Lydia came to Myrtle's party, which, as such parties inevitably do, divided her into two groups, carrying their chairs here and there; some, lover-like, seeking an obvious seclusion, knowing they were expected to do so; others walking about to form a knot and to break up only to reform again of different constituents. Throughout the early stages of the evening young Malcolm Canfield maneuvered to draw Lydia away from the others. He had come determined to make a last effort to win her for himself, and until he could put his fortune once more to the test, he was silent, taciturn, pronounced.

Lydia, however, was full of other and more compelling matters she would not have permitted herself to be drawn away from. She could not be troubled again—but her own problem; her eyes constantly, against her will, were following Angus Burke. . . . She was unhappy.

"Lydia," Malcolm said with unaccustomed directness. "I have asked you twice before to marry me. I have told you how much I want you. . . . how much I will always wait for you. . . . He stopped for Lydia was looking at him fixedly, studying him as if he were some new and interesting creature she had never seen before. Presently, without a word, she turned her eyes away, closed them, seemed forgetful of his presence. . . . She did not look at Malcolm again—but through the trees she could see Angus Burke talking with Myrtle Cuyler; felt an impulse to go to him, a desire to hear his voice, to be close by his side.

Crane was speaking again—into ears which heard but did not comprehend. Her desire to be near Angus was almost irresistible. It frightened her—the hunger of it terrified her. How could she hold out against such hunger? Was it possible this unwanted love of hers would prove strong enough to overcome her will—break down the determination to shut him out of her life? She feared it would. . . . Her resolution to be away was the only safe refuge, and she must go soon. Something, she knew not what, might surprise her into yielding—some unexpected event might betray her. . . . By an effort she controlled herself to listen to Malcolm's impassioned voice. "I've never wanted any other girl. Ever since we were babies together I've thought of you as my wife—you know I have. . . . When we were used to play with you were married—do you remember?"

"Yes," she said abstractedly, "I remember." To herself she was saying, "I won't go to him."

"I'll be through college in a year," Malcolm was saying, "and I want you to be right at the beginning of my real life. I want you as soon as I can have you."

Lydia watched Angus walk across the yard with Myrtle. "I'll go to him," she thought. "If something happens, I'll go. . . . If something doesn't stop me, I'll go," she said to herself.

Again she called her attention back to Malcolm, who, intent upon his pleading, had not seen how her thoughts were not upon what he was saying. . . . What was he saying? Yes. . . . Yes. He was asking her to marry him. . . . She did not want to marry him—she did not want to marry anybody—or to think of marriage. . . . Then she caught her breath. Why not? Here was safety from Angus Burke. If she married Malcolm, Crane she could not give herself to Angus. . . . Nothing could give her to Angus then. If she pledged her word to Malcolm she would not break it—for her pledged word she knew she would keep. . . . There had not thought of marriage for money, for position. Would she do wrong to save herself from a marriage she feared—to save herself from her weakness—her love—her love? No. No. Anything rather than that; anything rather than link her life with Angus Burke's—whom she loved, hated, despised, admired.

"Lydia," he forced herself to listen to Malcolm.

"Won't you promise, Lydia? Won't you tell me now you'll marry me in a year? It will help me through—the thought of it. Won't you promise?"

"Malcolm," she said in a voice which did not sound like her own. "I don't love you. I don't think I ever shall. But if you want me to marry you, I will." Her voice took on a note of shrillness, of bitterness; her words came rapidly, feverishly, as if she must have them said before something stopped her. "I'll marry you now, this minute, if you want me to, or I'll promise to marry you when you're ready. But I don't love you. You must understand that. . . . I don't love you."

"I will never come. . . . But I will try to be what a wife should be to you, Malcolm. I'll try. . . . I'll try. . . . He drew her closer, sought to pass his arm about her, to draw her to him. . . . "No, no," she cried, "I won't let you. I don't love you. I don't love you. . . . He smiled. Happiness enough for one evening was his, and he could humor her whims. One expected strange whims from Lydia. "I won't Angus, standing by Myrtle Cuyler's side, heard Lydia's announcement; his face became a mask, an impenetrable mask of dullness, unemotional, such a face as he had not worn for years. . . . He stopped, swayed slightly, and clutched at a chair for support. . . . But her face was smiling, and there were those who carried the picture of that smile in their memories for years.

Instantly there was a chorus of excited cries, a clatter of astonished conversation, a pressing forward with curious glances, as if they were at the faces before her, searching for news? How would he take it? It would be a shock, a blow, and how would he bear it? He would bear it, as he should, he thought. A strange thought to come at such a moment.

He turned to her gravely, unsmilingly—startlingly emotionless. "I knew," he said, "I told you she was not for me. . . . I knew."

"It's a shame," said the loyal Myrtle. "Lydia Canfield ought to—I'd know how to choose between Malcolm Crane and you."

"We—we mustn't hang back," he said, and drew Myrtle forward with him to the little group which surrounded Malcolm and Lydia.

"Lydia," he said slowly, "I hope you will be very happy." He did not speak to Crane, did not glance at him. And Malcolm ignored Angus. Lydia's eyes clung to Angus's face appealingly; a suppliant glance, begging for something, he knew not what. . . . He wondered at that glance, and his perplexity grew with the passage of time. . . . "Oh, Angus, Angus. . . . Myrtle's voice came to him dimly, told him how she felt he was suffering.

sold the Judge supplies for his camp, contributed to the growing opinion that Crane might not be a giant of finance after all by his complete expression of worry and by ill-natured remarks which demonstrated he was not wholly at ease respecting the payment of the account. . . . In a week Rainbow seethed with gossip and with sub-surface speculations as to how the Judge was going to "make out."

Crane's manner did nothing to reassure the doubters.

Sertularia after bleaching is dyed green of a shade unknown to the plant world) and sold as an "ever-green moss" to unsuspecting house-plant collectors; for apart from its color it might well deceive the very elect. The "plant" of the newspaper article is very probably a Plumularia, a feather-like sertularia found on our shore and resembling small ostrich plumes. Industries such as the article refers to are of course only possible where the particular organism occurs in large quantities and within a reasonable extent of coastline.

ARTISTIC VALUE OF SEAWEEDS

I have often wondered that no one has taken up the interesting work of producing souvenirs from our local material and especially from the seaweeds which abound on our shores. All the more pleased was I when I was shown in one of our local stores the other day some very artistically mounted seaweeds from I understand, the Star colony (if that is the right term to use) of West Sooke. Each card has one or two pieces of some specimen very daintily set out and accompanied by a few words such as suit a "souvenir." Unfortunately the plants are not named, a point perhaps of no importance to many but adding greatly to the interest of some. It is noticeable in these cards that the beauty is not confined to the crimson and pink ones; it is just as manifest in the dark polychromes. The latter may be said to have the qualities of fine line-drawings or etchings while the former resemble wash-drawings in their respective tints. In both cases the charm is due largely to the gracefulness of outline, fine sweeping curves, delicate branching, expression of the law of repetition, and the breaking of lines by the tiny dots of the spore capsules. So that our seaweed cards are full of suggestions for the designer; especially in the flowing lines suggestive of grace, since the adaptation of the seaweed to its liquid environment has led to the development of this character in particular. It is to be hoped that the day is not far distant when really "local souvenirs" will be for sale in our stores, and that the preparation of them for the market will be as artistic and sympathetic as is that of the cards I have referred to.

Your Bulbs for Next Spring

By JOHN HUTCHISON, F.R.H.S.

Bulbs for flowering in the Spring should be planted in September and October to get the best results. It is true that these months are some time off yet, but as most of the bulbs have to be imported, orders should be given not later than the middle of July. When it is possible to purchase local-grown bulbs, do so by all means.

For general garden planting the Darwin tulip is perhaps the most popular type and the latest, and consequently the most expensive, of these are as follows:

Admiral Jellicoe, deep crimson; Antony Roosen, very large, full rose shaded blush; Dolores, a distinct slaty blue color; Galatia, brilliant red, a fine hot flower; Massenet, soft red, a fine hot flower; Prince of Wales, Remembrance, dark lavender shot with rose with a silvery margin, sweet scented; Prince of the Marston, rich dark rose, inside salmon red, centre pale blue, sweet scented; and Yellow Perfection, light bronzy yellow.

These are the new things, but it is not at all necessary to purchase these to have a wonderful show. Such old kinds as Clara Butt, Baronne de la Tonnaye, Dream, Electra and a dozen others which may be had at a very low price will answer the purpose as well as the expensive ones.

The extreme beauty of the late-flowering Cottage tulips is unquestionable, whether grown in beds or in clumps in the hardy border. Among the newer kinds in this section one may name Blouse, light buff, inside golden bronze; Don Pedro, coffee brown shaded maroon; and Louis XIV, rich purple, flushed golden bronze, shading to bronzy purple. In this section also there are lots of old varieties to suit the slimmer pocket book.

The Rembrandt tulips comprise a strain of variegated Darwins. Although the blooms are not as large as those of the Darwins, the breaks in color provide many exquisite and unique combinations of shades, such as red striped with white, lilac striped with carmine, white feathered apices, Seagull, Mrs. Langtry and White Lady should be in every garden.

Then there are the Poeticus and incomparabilis sections as well as the double daffodils and Jonquills, which should be represented. These have the advantage of being cheap and increase quickly.

Crocuses are the one Spring flower that cannot be done without. Planted for border edgings or in clumps they are most effective. The golden yellows, the soft blues, the purples, the pure whites and the delicately pencilled sepals of the variegated sorts give scope for showy and most tasteful arrangement. Crocuses have also the advantage of being cheap.

When you are buying bulbs don't forget to get some snowdrops so that you may have flowers in January.

I want to say a word about miniature daffodils for the rock garden. A number of people tried these a few years ago, some of them on my advice, and after blooming well the first year they vanished. The same thing occurred in my own garden. I have since found the reason. Such varieties as the Hoop Petticoat (Bulbocodium and Corbularia), must be planted in such a way that they will get no water during the Summer, that is to say, after they have flowered. Planting them in the rock garden they get the water when they simply give up the ghost. The only thing to do is to plant them in a spot in the rock garden by themselves and perhaps with sedums that do not need water, and see to it that they get none.

Quiet Little Village of Dayton, Tennessee, Will Be Scene of Big Battle Between Fundamentalists and Modernists

'MONKEY TOWN' HAS TRADE BOOM

BY ALLENE SUMNER

DAYTON, Tenn., June 27 (By Mail)—The monkey may be in a bad way socially here, but as a business man he has this town all worked up.

Dayton, you know, is the town where monkeys cannot climb the family trees.

Young John T. Scopes is going to be tried shortly for intimating that Southern chivalry once wore tails.

But the town realizes that because of the lowly monkey it has been getting advertising that many a town would pay heavy money for.

So, when Dayton comes into classroom are adopting business crests of a simian trend.

Drug stores are offering "monkey sundae." You can buy postcards adorned with coy gorillas and leering babboons.

There is even talk of planting coconut trees along Main Street. Dayton wants its visitors to feel at home.

You see, Dayton had been more or less asleep for a decade or two. It was a pretty town, a home town, but as a business centre it was in class D-5.

Then came the indictment, and requests for rooms during the trial began to pour in. Dayton expects to accom-

Every home in Dayton will be taking roomers.

Now Chattanooga isn't far away. And Chattanooga had always more or less sniffed at Dayton as a back number.

But Dayton has got even. Her entertainment committee has requested Chattanooga to handle the overflow crowds.

Chattanooga was insulted at first. But then she found that some 20,000 people are included in this overflow and that they will pay good money. So Chattanooga has relented.

LOTS OF MONKEYS

There is going to be a big midway here during the trial. A dozen fakers have applied to sell monkeys that hop on a string. They want to sell a special brand of hot dog, which they will call "hot monkey."

There will be "monkey pop," too, and a bootblack is preparing to give "monkey shines."

All in all, a visitor who can't get into the trial won't miss much entertainment. There'll be plenty of monkeys outside the courtroom.

Dayton's ball park will be lighted all night and guarded by traffic cops and plain clothesmen from Chattanooga. Parked autos and their contents will be safe as if at home.

future discovery it will be possible to raise mankind to a higher plane in which spiritual and intellectual, as well as moral and physical, forces will all take their due part.

"To my mind this cannot be done either through religion or evolution alone, but by the combined influence of a liberal and enlightened religion with a true understanding of the forces of evolution, which are ennobling when rightly understood."

Prof. Osborn points out that consideration of evolutionary problems can be traced through the centuries to the early Greeks. Evolutionary discovery cannot be credited to any one man, such as Darwin, but was scattered over the ages. Several years ago he traced the course of evolutionary thought in a book, "From the Greeks to Darwin."

With the Greeks, the evolutionary theory succeeded mythology, he points out. It began with teachings of Thales and Anaximander, two Ionians, and thence to Aristotle who was first to announce "the survival of the fittest" law. These early theories were vague, tinged with mythological influence and born before natural history and scientific evidence were known.

With Greek decay evolutionary interest declined, met with church interference in the seventeenth century and lay dormant through the middle ages, coming to life only in comparatively recent years.

To-day the "new spirit and purpose of search for causes lies in the domain of energy," the professor says. For while science can trace "how" man evolved, there are still vast unwritten chapters on "why" he evolved. And so it is into the realm of energy forces and energy conceptions that the great scientific minds delve for new secrets of life.

In this work, points out Professor Osborn, it is man's duty to give all possible aid to "discovery in the future of new forces that will guide the race to its new Utopia."

ADAM AND EVE FAITH NEED, SAYS OFFICIAL

DAYTON, June 27 (By Mail).—"Education is a wonderful failure of the world over until every school child believes in a real Adam and Eve, and a real angel with a flaming sword who drove the guilty from the Garden of Eden."

Taxpayers should arise in protest that their hard-earned dollars are paid to teachers who tell their children that their grandparents were animals.

Walter White, superintendent of school in Rhea county, Tennessee, and chief prosecutor of young John Scopes, the teacher who told his pupils of the beliefs of Darwin, set forth his belief in the above sentences.

Some folks in Dayton may not care whether Darwin is or is not right, whether their children did or did not learn that the first man did not resemble their own fathers.

But Walter White is not one of them.

CALLS SCOPE A MENACE

Like a prophet of old arising to denounce those who forsake their Jehovah, so does Walter White, his amber eyes gleaming with fire, his hairy fists clenched, denounce the young teacher as "a menace to our

Is This Man's Family Tree? Or Family Skeleton?

This is the "family tree" of mankind which, in all probability, will blossom at the Dayton, Tenn., evolution trial. The chart, made up of skulls found in many parts of the world, establishes the satisfaction of science the relationships of the principal branches of mankind and the anthropoid apes. It was prepared by Professor Henry Fairfield Osborn, internationally noted anthropologist and president of the American Museum of Natural History (inset) and William K. Gregory, also a noted scientist.

When defense lawyers met in New York with John T. Scopes, defendant, they went into immediate conference with Professor Osborn, who, while unlikely to be a witness, is acting in advisory capacity. It was deemed inadvisable to allow material from the American Museum to be shipped to Dayton as prospective exhibits, but the defense has at its disposal photographic copies.

Of these, the photo here shown is considered most completely to trace man in his various stages of ascent and, if the introduction of such exhibits is found admissible, will be a reference chart at the trial.

Beginning with the tiny skull at lower left, the chart goes as follows: North American, a primitive primate, the fossil skull of which was found in Wyoming and which is traced to the eocene age. Just above it is the propithecus which lived in the oligocene age in Egypt. Here the low-mortals have sinned and mourned ever since.

"I must believe every Biblical word literally," White says, "because if I question one word, I will question more—and then where will I be?"

Walter White chanted his creed in the cool confines of Robinson's drug store, where Scopes and his friends stowed the scheme of challenging the anti-evolution teaching law of Tennessee.

White glowed with fervor as he told how it satisfied his soul to believe that Noah bulled him an ark and watched all the animals come in two by two.

A CASE IN POINT

And as for Jonah, White proceeds to make his philosophy graphic: "Last Summer I found a big black snake swollen near its stomach—if you'll pardon me mentioning it, I poked it, and, if you'll pardon my mentioning it, it came a frog."

"Now, why would it have been any harder for the whale to keep Jonah, especially if the Lord His God were with him?"

"None of these stories are as hard to believe as radio," says White. He pushed a hairy hand through the red locks atop his square-cut head. His voice softened. He was a man abashed in the presence of his sacred belief.

"What have I or these little children left in life if men like Scopes branches break off to form the ape family, represented by the gibbon on the lowest branch and the orang-utan, the chimpanzee and the gorilla on the others. Again ascending the tree appear the Dryopithecus, of the Miocene period in India and the Trinil Java of the upper Pliocene era. Here again a branch shoots out, with those two primitive types of man, the Heidelberg man, found in Germany, and the Neanderthal man, who lived in the Stone age in Europe.

The top branch begins its final blossoming with the Pittdown man, found in England, thence to the Cro-Magnon man and the white at the topmost twig. On the same stalk, are placed the Australian native, the negro and the Chinese.

"We must cling to the faith learned at our mothers' knees."

White admits perhaps Darwin did not exactly say that man came from an ape.

IN GOD'S OWN IMAGE

"But he did say from some lower animal," says White.

"I can not believe in a God who would make me in his image and that image that of an animal."

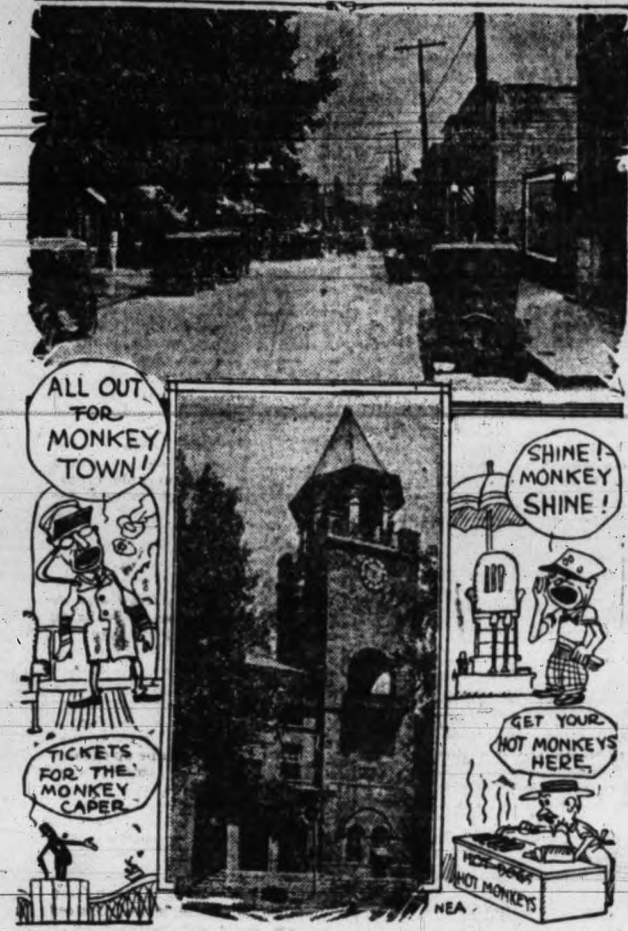

"I want my heaven, and I can't have it with dogs and cats."

Mr. White says that his reading of the Bible permits him to believe the earth is round and revolves about the sun. He admits that he is puzzled, however, by the statement that Joshua commanded the sun to stand still.

White was the first senator to introduce the woman suffrage bill in Tennessee. This was during Governor Ben Hooper's administration in 1911. He has been superintendent of Rhea county schools for over six years.

White has no college degrees but has studied normal and general arts subjects in three Tennessee colleges. He first began to read Darwin and Haeckel, he says, when, in college days, a professor said that most of the Old Testament was legend.

"It so hurt and shocked me then that I am fighting for to-day's youth now," says White.

BOY OF 15 GOES WITH MACMILLAN INTO ARCTIC CIRCLE

WISCASSET, Me., June 27 (By Mail).—Kennett Rawson, fifteen, sailing toward weird sights and venturesome battle for existence under the midnight sun, can snap his fingers at the Rover Boys and all the heroes of G. A. Hefty.

Northward bound with the MacMillan Arctic Expedition, the lad's daily life is becoming more and more the stuff youths' dreams are made of.

There was the exuberant realization of this good fortune in Kennett's farewell gesture. He found a perch in the rigging of the Bowdoin as she left the dock and pulled down the Sheepscot River, answering the waving handkerchiefs of his mother and father who brought him here in their private car.

He was off, as any super-boy of fiction might have started, to visit Etah and other curiously named ports on frozen seas, to see the Eskimo in his igloo, to hunt the walrus, to endure and triumph as any explorer must.

The fifteen-year-old boy looked suddenly grown up, there on the rigging.

To his parents he still was little Kennett. The father, Frederick H. Rawson, wealthy chairman of the board of the Union Trust Company, Chicago, could talk about it being a fine thing for the lad, but he was thinking most about the day when the boats should sail back up the river again. Mrs. Rawson smiled and waved bravely, but she had to keep putting her handkerchief to her eyes.

Although only fifteen, Kennett will be more than a passenger on the expedition. During his Summer vacations from the Hill School in Pennsylvania he has taken strenuous play on the water. Last Summer he spent almost entirely on a fifty-one-foot schooner cruising around Nantucket. He can take in sail, read a compass or shoot the sun with the sextant as well as any young seaman.

And Kennett does not intend that anyone should think him a mere "mascot." He signed his articles as a "sailor," and a sailor he intends to prove himself. The navy aviators brought along ten carrier pigeons which, thanks to the radio, may be used more for pets than as message bearers. They are welcome to the job of mascot. Kennett is a "working member of the Bowdoin's crew." The boy is going to keep his own private "log" of the expedition. This diary giving a boy's eye view of the Polar circle should be a human document to compare almost with Marco Polo's travels.

Kennett was shipped for the expedition through the influence of E. F. McDonald, the Chicagoan who is radio expert and to care for the average routine of a boy's interests. Only the high spots could be touched in that great moment. Someone asked him where was his hunting and fishing gear which he was taking along.

"I don't know, Dad stowed it somewhere," he managed to answer.

The slender, blonde youth in the old dungarees and the stained tennis shoes will be getting around to his gun and his fishing line later. The Rover boy is off just now with bands playing. He is going into the cracking ice and grotesque desolation of the North. He must climb the rigging and wave a cheerful farewell to his mother and father who are older and cannot go with him to live his dream.

ALL THE BOOKMAKERS—WHENCE DO THEY COME?

New York, July 4.—Where do all the bookmakers come from? This town is full of them. At least five make the rounds of the office buildings in which I make a feeble effort to work. In my younger and more foolish days I occasionally wagered on some "hot tip." It was my impression then that the men who collected bets all came from the rough neck gangs, that they carried guns and would stop little short of murder to make an easy dollar.

Yesterday a friend introduced me to an old college classmate who had drawn up to the curb in a sporty roadster. About him and his wife, and his equipage was an air of elegance and refinement. After leaving them my friend told me that his classmate was a bookmaker. After graduating from college he had gone into the wholesale clothing business with his father and was earning $200 a week when he fell in love with a show girl. His father objected to show girls generally, so the young man left his father's employ and his house, married the girl and became a bookmaker. He is now clearing $1,000 a week from the dupes who wager with him.

Another fairly prosperous bookmaker is the son of a wealthy real estate man. He started out to become a doctor, but after two years of college became impatient to be earning his own way. Having had no practical training he started a handbook and found the life so easy that he will pursue that occupation the rest of his days.

These little stories of the easy affluence of bookmakers might serve as a lesson to the thousands who hand over their head-earned coin to that gentry on "hot tips" and "sure things."

HERE IS HOW WAITERS LEARN THEIR BUSINESS

New York, July 4.—Where do all the waiters come from? There are thousands of them here. At least fifty hotels in New York employ 200 or more waiters each. These men must know how to carry dishes properly, how to set silverware, how to spread a napkin, to know intuitively when a patron needs his services. All of which cannot be learned in a day.

Most waiters serve long apprenticeships as bus boys. Then they become aids to waiters who take orders. In the bigger hotels there are sectional head waiters who work under the captain. And that man is a captain, for he exercises more rigid authority than is known in military discipline.

In almost every dining-room there are preferred sections, tables reserved for men known to give big tips. Tables are allotted to waiters according to seniority, but they may be deprived of this seniority by the captain for reporting late, spilling soup, mixing orders or causing a patron some slight inconvenience.

Most diners presume that their tips are kept by the waiter who serves them. However, in almost every big dining-room or restaurant the waiter divides his tips with the bus boy, the pantry boy, the kitchen help and the head waiter. In fact with all who smooth the way for him to give the kind of service that gets generous tips.

THE LIMITS OF DOMINION

By ARNOLD BENNETT

Illustrated by HUBERT MATHIEU

A Story of Before and After—The Hero Is Fortune's Favorite—When He Becomes Tremendously Rich, But Where Women Are Concerned, a Man's Authority Is Very Limited, Especially in Affairs of the Heart

BEFORE the war, before the aerial mails, before the motor cars, before the electric trams, before the gas, before the empty dwelling houses had come to be as rare and precious as pearls, there was a row of sixty-one new small red-brick houses on the east side of the municipal park of Hursley in the Five Towns.

Exteriorly they were all alike, except that thirty of them had the bay-window to the left of the front door, while thirty-one had the bay-window to the right of the front door. The street was not grand enough to look directly on the park, but the houses had long if narrow gardens at the back, with a fair open prospect of the colliery-strewn moors which enclose the Five Towns. Interiorly many of the houses were alike, especially in temperaments, but they were different and the most individual, the most independent, the most efficient, the most successful, was number 41, inhabited by the Furber family.

Dinah, the elder daughter, aged twenty-eight, fair, plump, pleasant, was the housekeeper. She got up first, went to bed last, and received no salary; when she wanted a little money for clothes she seldom wanted money for anything else—she had to ask for it, as for a favor. Mary, the younger daughter, aged twenty-five, fair, golden, slim, pretty, nervous, critical, too much aware of the frailties of human nature and the risks of being alive, was a dressmaker's assistant, and earned twice what she spent. Maidie, the cousin (really a second cousin), aged twenty-two, red-haired, freckled, pretty, fiery, pugnacious, snub-nosed, was a mistress in the board school at Moor-thorne; she earned more than Mary and saved less; still, she saved.

Last of the young generation came Ralph, height, stocky in figure with brown hair and a stiff brown mustache. He was extremely uncouth, rather nervous, very untidy, and amazingly rude. He lived in the house like a wild animal, quarreled fiercely with his cousin Maidie and quarreled even with Dinah, who nevertheless was of a notably pacific disposition; also he had dark, suppressed feuds with his father; but he never quarreled with querulous Mary, though she made no attempt at all to control him. Ralph was employed by the Five Towns Engineering Company Limited, which manufactured machinery for the earthenware works of nearly the whole world, and for many collieries. It was known and admitted that he was quarrelsome and malicious, and that he was further, a considerable organizer and that already he had performed various beneficial wonders for the F.T.E. Co. He existed solely for machinery, and he was entitled to be called mad. He used the front room as a drawing office, and in such a manner that the girls could not use it as a parlor without much preliminary straightening up and grave family complications.

AN IMPRESSIVE VISITOR

And he had bought a small decayed steam-engine and renewed its youth and erected it in a shanty indiscreetly constructed of odds and ends of wood, zinc and iron in the garden. This engine actuated a lathe and other contrivances. When steaming it coughed—a sort of hacking cough; and the neighbors complained of it and even invoked the power of the borough surveyor against it. Then you should have seen a family apparently disunited can be united, welded and riveted together! The family defended Ralph's steam-engine, which in private the girls detested, with ruthless ferocity. Neighbors for forty yards, side were alienated and bitterly for ever. The appeal to the borough surveyor failed. The family spat out triumph on the resentful defeated. The victorious engine continued to cough.

Over all the young generation stood the widowed Mr. Furber, a workman of the old Five Towns school, with a short iron-filings beard and no moustache; a trade unionist but a Conservative, despising all nonsense about socialism. He was senior workman at the Handbridge, whither he went every morning by workmen's train from the station by the park. His uniform at work was shirt-sleeves and a flowing white apron, and from an artisan's scorn of the "jacket" (apparent of clerks and other fustle persons) he preferred to be in shirt-sleeves even at home. Mr. Furber was a broadminded man. He visited church and chapel impartially, studying the variations of religious doctrine with a detached mind. He kept a first-rate whip and sometimes did a bit of courting. But his chief delight was football, on which subject he was omniscient.

Father and son slept in the front bedroom. Dinah and Mary slept in the back bedroom. Maidie slept in the cellars (style a bedroom) over a scullery. Now on a hot Summer Saturday afternoon there was an astonishing knock at the front-door of No. 41. Mr. Furber, for whom Summer meant boredom, through the absence of football, was reclining on his bed in meditation. Dinah was cleaning the kitchen. Maidie was in her room mending a glove. Mary was affixed with a young man, for despite her hypercritical attitude towards men she had admirers. Dinah opened the door and when she opened it she blushed because the male visitor was obviously a swell and because her hair was in iron.

"Good afternoon," said the visitor. "Can I see Mr. Ralph Furber?"

"What's about with our Rafe?" She added: "If you'll step through." The visitor stepped through. The Whippet in his kennel growled.

"Ralph, you're wanted," cried Dinah, and left the visitor alone to face Ralph and the whippet. The impressive visitor stayed nearly an hour, and then stepped through again, back to the front door, under Ralph's own guidance; whereupon Ralph had returned to the engine-shed and been no more seen.

Supper took place in the clean and tidy kitchen, at the bare white deal table, and under a gas jet. It began punctually because both Ralph and his father were punctual persons with imperious appetites. They ate cold sausage and cheese and much bread, and drank a glass of beer apiece. The girls were content with nibbles of cheese and bread, and drank water or milk or milk and water. Mr. Furber and Ralph were in shirt sleeves. Dinah wore her housewife's apron. Maidie, as her school mistress had no apron, Mary, freshly arrived from the transaction abroad of affairs of the heart, alone was dressed up.

MAIDIE LIGHTS FUSE

Ordinarily Mary would have been in a brooding, withdrawn state of mind; but she was by far the most inquisitive member of the family, and her curiosity had now been stimulated almost to exasperation by the murmured news of Ralph's visitor.

However, she did not speak. Nobody spoke at meals. Meals were for eating, not chatter. Unlike over-civilized and decadent people, the Furber family felt no awkwardness in silence at table; indeed, it seemed to them a small talk as being in silence and affected politeness.

Dinah, though she would gabble nineteen to the dozen in private with the other girls, rarely said a word at meals. Mr. Furber was uniformly taciturn. And the most taciturn of all was Ralph, whom nothing, but the need of something that he could not get himself, or the desire to carry on an altercation, could rouse into speech. None, even Mary, dared cross-examine Ralph; being made of dynamite, he might have exploded and blown the entire house to bits.

But something was bound to happen that evening. It happened. Maidie the red-haired, failed first in self control.

"Of course we must be thankful if he leaves us even a crust now—with his grand friends and all!" she snorted, flushing and lifting her snub nose, as Ralph helped himself to two lumps of cheese when there were only two lumps on the dish.

It was as if she had put a match to a haystack. Ralph—sleeves rolled up, hastily washed face, black finger nails, rough hair—Ralph started and glowered, then checked himself. For once in his life he was genuinely anxious to communicate facts to his fellow-creatures, and the opportunity had arrived.

"I never saw the fellow before," he said, with pride. "But his scheme is to set me up in business. There's a works for sale at Longshaw. He's ready to buy it if I'll take it on, and he'll find twenty thousand capital besides. And now ye know." He was careful not to look at his father.

"And what did ye say?" Maidie asked challengingly, dangerously. "I said, 'Where ye coddling of mister? That's what I said. But he wasn't coddling. He's coming back to London to-night, and he'll come again next Saturday for my answer.' And you should be the boss of a great big works?" Maidie demanded with calculated incredulity.

"Yes, miss. I should be the boss." With that Ralph suddenly roared, pushing his Windsor chair gratingly across the tiled-floor, and passed into the front room. He was too excited and triumphant to remain another moment with the family. He could not bear the emotional tension of his triumph. The kitchen was scared by the unbelievable magnitude of the event. The meal abruptly ended. No one could say any more.

The girls retired into the scullery, out of earshot of Ralph, and chattered in whispers. They knew naught except what Ralph had told them, and yet they managed, quite easily, to find subject-matter for more than an hour's glib, swift, dramatic discussion of the terrible situation.

When Ralph, last of all, went to bed, leaving the ground-floor to dark night and the whippet (who slept in the scullery unless under coercion for sins) he found that his father had not put the candle out. The ageing man, with heavy lower lip protruding, lay in wait for the son. He brushed his beard from the back of it upwards into the air and said:

"What didst say to that there gentleman as called?"

"I think he's in the engine-shed," said Dinah, all of a flutter, wondering what face Ralph and the whippet.

The impressive visitor stayed nearly an hour, and then stepped through again, back to the front door, under Ralph's own guidance; whereupon Ralph had returned to the engine-shed and been no more seen.

Dinah and Maidie and Ralph stood in the bedroom together. Maidie was about to run for a useless doctor.

They were all deeply shaken with emotion, and Ralph not least.

But in his agitated heart Ralph could distinctly hear himself muttering to himself:

"A near thing, that! A near thing, that. A very near thing."

A PIERCING LETTER

Mr. Ralph Furber sat in his study on a Saturday afternoon reading a very short letter. The study was a vast apartment, larger than the whole of No. 41 where his father had died, and it was furnished in mahogany and gilt and damask. Emperors had been cast from their thrones; yet Ralph looked little older. He looked fiercer, and jollier.

The letter ran:

"Dear Ralph—We were all extremely disappointed that you did not come down for Mary's wedding after all, and I think you ought to be downright ashamed of yourself. Yours, Maidie."

Mr. Furber frowned and glanced out at the garden which surrounded his mansion and the park which surrounded the gardens. She had a nerve, that young woman! He was not accustomed to being written to in such a manner. He was accustomed to flattery and to his own way. He was an exceedingly wealthy person. He had made himself rich and he had made others rich too. He had not fought in the war, but he had fought in the war of the market; the war cabinet had other work for him to do, and the work was of such a nature that he could not help making money out of it, and a lot of money. As an inventor and as an organizer he had had no superiors, and he had developed a talent for most profitably investing the money which the government compelled him to acquire. He was popularly classed as a "profiteer," but he laughed at the epithet, knowing it to be unjust. Moreover, so far as he was concerned, people might call him what they liked—he did not care. He knew the reality of power, and the value of his brain. He cared for nobody and for nothing—except dominion and the wonders of his brain.

Not quite true. He cared for the letter; the letter had pierced him like a dagger between two ribs. He ripped the letter to pieces.

A girl was standing near him with a notebook in her hand—one of the secretaries—but he behaved as though she did not exist.

"Anybody come yet?" "Lady Eleanor Raynes and Sir Thomas Wrighton, sir."

These were the advanced-guard of his week-end party; he took every week-end. His invitations were seldom refused; and his curious deportment was cheerfully accepted by all because he was he.

"Tell Chapter he's to take the car and start out for the Five Towns at once. It's a hundred and seventy miles. He's to be at Miss Maidie Furber's, 1 Clayton Street, Hillport, Knyveton, at ten sharp to-morrow morning to bring Miss Furber here, and tell him he's got to get back with way for a quarter of a million. Everybody says it's dirt cheap."

Ralph seized Lady Eleanor's hand and looked her in the face loweringly.

"Listen to me, Lady Eleanor," he said, with a mixture of grimness, cynicism, and benevolence. "You're going to get a commission out of Steinheil if that paper is sold to me for more than twenty-one thousand."

"Why do you say such a thing?" "Because it just came into my head, that's all. I shouldn't be surprised if he's offered you half of everything over twenty-one thousand. It's quite all right. Business is business." He laughed indulgently, as at a rather mediocre joke.

A deep blush spread over Lady Eleanor's cheeks and down to her neck and throat.

"Then I guessed right," he exclaimed savagely, and then burst into a roar of laughter.

"Listen here. I won't give Steinheil more than twenty-one thousand. But I'll make you a present of two and a half thousand—for your trouble."

There was an interruption of guests into the room, headed by Sir Thomas. Lady Eleanor rushed pell-mell through the open French window into the garden. She was holding her hands to her face, and between her hands, catenae of brighter seemed to escape. But only Ralph knew that it was hysterical laughter.

"But I thought you were ill!" This exclamation came from Maidie as she stepped out of the Packard on the following Sunday. The whole of the week-end party thought that Maidie must be some secretarial messenger arriving with important news bearing on the host's private affairs.

"Why do ye think I was ill?" asked Ralph, ignoring completely all his other guests.

"Well, I couldn't think why else ye should send for me. I asked the chauffeur, but he didn't seem to know anything about you. I certainly shouldn't have come if I hadn't thought you were ill."

"I wanted to see ye."

"Oh, my!" she murmured in voluntarily, gazing at the formidable double staircase which rose grandly, bifurcating out of the main hall. She was outwitted by the splendor, and the result of her fright was that she became brusque, hostile and hedgehog-like. Ralph Furber reflected quickly.

"Am I supposed to sleep here?" asked Maidie, in the glittering Regency bedroom to which Ralph had personally conducted her. She had never before had the opportunity of witnessing Ralph's way of life. She knew he was a millionaire, but she had not imagined the state of being a millionaire. She had the sensation of having stepped somehow into the unreal pages of a novel.

"But who are all those people downstairs?" "Oh, just a job lot here for the week-end."

"But who?" "He mentioned some names. 'Well, I'm not going down to have my tea with them folk and so you needn't think I'm Ralph Furber!'" to Mary. She expected to be married ten years ago and she ought to have been. Then after as she was! And at last it comes off, and you were to throw her away and all. And you throw her over and she has to be given away by that stupid old Ezra."

"All right, silly! All right!" he agreed testily.

(Ezra was Dinah's husband.) "And it was a scandalous shame. You're the head of the family still, even if you do have lords and ladies and things at your precious week-end parties. I suppose you'll say you gave Mary a thousand pounds for a wedding present. If I'd have been her I'd have ripped the check in half and sent it back to you in an unstamped envelope. That I would! You're a disgusting snob. And you think everybody's afraid of you and you can do what you like and we shall lick your boots. Not a bit of it, my lad! And I'll thank you to send me to the station early to-morrow as I'm going back by train. If you please. You aren't the only independent person in the world."

At this point Mr. Furber picked up his finger-bowl and dashed it on to the carpet, water and all. He let himself go. Hammer and tongs were personified with astounding vigor in the little sitting-room. A report of the dialogue between the hammer and tongs would not be edifying, but it constituted a great scene in the finest tradition of the Five Towns. It was interrupted by the sound of the gramophone from the hall. A fox-trot. The week-end party was solacing itself for the absence of the host in a dance. Silence fell between the second cousins. Then Mr. Furber left the room. Leaning over the rail of the corridor, he saw the heads of the dancers below. Lady Eleanor ran up to him and leaned over by his side.

SHAKEN BY DESTINY

"I know you hate me," she said in a low, poignant tone, while maintaining a rapid smile for the benefit of the upward public gaze. "I know you've done with me. But if you only knew how I—"

"I don't hate ye," he answered. "I admire you for that commission idea. Business is business. Don't forget I'm a business man myself. Why shouldn't you have made a bit out of the sale of this paper? You shall. Go downstairs again now."

"But I must talk to you to-night. I must explain myself. You must let me defend myself. Meet me in the cloak at eleven. I'll slip out. I shall expect you."

She glided down the stairs. He watched her. She was indeed ornamental. What an ornament for a rich man's home! How intensely feminine.

"She's got me," he reflected. "She was going to make a commission out of me. And I've forgiven her, and she's got me."

It was a relief to him to admit to himself that he was at last caught. "Anyhow, she adores me."

His ear caught a strange sound. It came along the corridor as from a distance. It reminded him of the distant gigantic breathing of the great blast furnaces over at Cauldon in the Five Towns. Only it was very, very faint. He went towards it. It came from the little sitting-room. It was Maidie sobbing with singularly regular intervals. Her head lay on the table and her arms round it amid the debris of the meal. He shut the door and approached the agitated maid anxiously, hoping that she alone had heard the sound. He bent over Maidie. She ceased to cry. Her eyes glistened wet.

"Here, listen here," he said. "I was wrong not to go to that damned wedding. But you've been saying a lot of very wicked things. And ye know ye have. Very unjust. But ye can't control yourself. Never could. And why aren't you married, I should like to know! Fellows are afraid of you. But I'm not. I'm not. At least I don't think I am."

She smiled pitifully.

"Now, why am I kissing her?" he asked himself as he kissed her. No, she did not draw back. "Let him kiss her fair and square. And the terrible strangeness and mystery of destiny shook him. For he was a man who could comprehend and appreciate big things."

"A near thing, that!" he said to himself. "An hour later, half an hour later, and I should have been—"

Thus he reflected as he went out to give exactly two minutes to Lady Eleanor in the Summer night. On the first day of his ownership of the Charing Cross Echo appeared therein an announcement of his marriage (ceremony strictly private) to Maidie Furber, daughter of the late, etc., etc.
